2 The manslayer, after being received into the city of refuge, could only be punished, if found guilty, by the authority of the magistrate; but if he ventured to leave the city, and the avenger met him and slew him, he was supposed to merit his doom by thus neglecting the appointment of God for his preservation, and the avenger could not be punished.

Among the Arabians compensation is admitted, and is very common—having indeed been sanctioned by their lawgiver, but God requires that in every case the murderer shall be punished with death. The design of the cities of refuge was to afford shelter only to the unintentional slayer, but the murderer could be dragged forth to punishment from the very horns of the altar.

came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers, of the children of Israel;

2 And they said, [b]The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel: and my lord was commanded by the LORD [c]to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken[1] from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe whereunto[2] they are received: so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

4 And when [d]the jubilee[3] of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put into the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

5 ¶ And Moses commanded the children of Israel, according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph [e]hath said well.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them marry[4] to whom they think best; [f]only to the family[5] of the tribe of their father shall they marry:

5 This law extended only to heiresses, for many of their great men and priests married wives of other tribes and countries; and other women, who had brethren to inherit, were free to marry into any other tribe, though it seems they generally confined themselves to their own. If their brethren died after they were married into another tribe, they could not inherit, but the estate went to the male heir. The design of this law was, to keep the tribes distinct, and hereby to fulfil the prophecies, particularly those respecting the Messiah. As this law affected only heiresses, there are numerous instances of women marrying out of their own tribes. And by reason of such marriages, as Ainsworth remarks, 'there might be kindred between Elizabeth the mother of John the Baptist, who was of the daughters of Aaron, and Mary the Virgin, the mother of our Lord, who was of the lineage of David, and tribe of Judah.'

2 This law is here made general, although the Talmudists are of opinion that it was designed only for that generation, and that after the first division of the land by Joshua, even heiresses might marry into any tribe. The restriction in the case of heiresses was recognised by the Attic laws, which, as Grotius remarks, were plainly borrowed from the law of Moses. They ordained that an heiress should not marry out of her kindred, but dispose of herself & her estate to one of the nearest of kin to her. Plato made the same provision, suggesting that if there was a want of near kindred, it should descend to her father's brother, or the children of the grandfather, some of whom he ordains should marry her.

4 By this example, and the law of inheritances in the Holy Land, the people of God, says Ainsworth, 'are taught to hold fast their inheritance in his promises, and their right in Christ, which they hold by faith; that as the father hath made them meet to be partakers of the inheritance among the saints in light, Col. 1. 12, so they may keep the faith and grace they have received to the end.'

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe; for every one of the children of Israel shall keep[1] himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

8 And [g]every[2] daughter, that possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers.

9 Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.

10 ¶ Even [h]as the LORD commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad:

11 For [i]Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married unto their father's brothers' sons.

12 And they were married into[3] the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph; and their inheritance remained[4] in the tribe of the family of their father.

13 These are [k]the [5]commandments and the judgments which the LORD commanded, by the hand of Moses, unto the children of Israel [l]in the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF NUMBERS.

THIS book is at once most interesting and most instructive. Presenting us with the history of the Israelites during the greater part of their sojourning and wandering in the wilderness, it developes the method of the providence of that God, who is 'the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever.' It declares in the most striking manner, at once his justice and his mercy. It delineates his character as 'angry with the wicked,' and determined 'by no means to clear the guilty,' while at the same time, it proclaims Him to be 'the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious,' ready to forgive the penitent, and to restore them to favour. In almost every transaction which it narrates, His holiness and justice appear in closest union with His benevolence and mercy; He is seen to be at once 'a just God and a Saviour.'

The whole book may be divided into four parts or sections. The first contains the census of the Israelites, &c., and extends to the end of the fourth chapter. The second section records the institution of various ceremonial observances; narrates the consecration of the Levites, the setting up, and dedication of the tabernacle, and may be viewed as describing the full establishment of the Mosaic system. It extends to the end of the tenth chapter. Surely when studying this portion, while we admire the goodness of God to his ancient church, our gratitude will ascend to Him who has favoured us with the substance of which these were but the shadow, and has placed us under 'that better covenant, established on better promises,' of which Jesus is the mediator. The third section comprises the history of Israel's journey from Sinai to the land of Moab, and extends to the end of the twenty-first chapter. This section is peculiarly interesting, and is full of warnings to the Christian, while sojourning in the wilderness of this present evil world. Let the interesting notice of the brazen serpent, with which we are furnished in ch. xxi. remind us of the method by which we are to become personally interested in the peculiar benefits of the gospel, and to be saved from sin and death. There could have been little doubt, even although the fact had not been expressly stated, that under a system, distinguished as one of types and shadowy ordinances, a method of cure so strange, and, in itself, so obviously inadequate, must have been designed to include some hidden meaning, or to convey to the people some important moral instruction. It was obviously fitted to lead them to exercise faith in God's word and promise, and also to yield obedience, even where the reason of the command could not be apprehended. The ancient Jews acknowledged that it contained a mystery. The author of the book of Wisdom, whose work, though not inspired, is nevertheless useful as testifying the opinions of the Jews in his own times, presents us with a comment, which is worthy of observation. See Wisd. xvi. 5—7. What the Jews of old could but obscurely hint at, and what their children cannot now in any measure understand, because the vail is on their hearts, the teacher sent from God has disclosed to us. Jesus himself has indicated a resemblance which it becomes us humbly to endeavour to trace. He has divulged the mystery, 'For as Moses,' says he, 'lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life?' John iii. 14, 15. Have we felt our need of this Saviour? And when, like the wounded Israelites, ready to perish, have we turned the eye of faith to him who says, 'Look unto me and be ye saved?' The fourth and last section contains a narrative of the transactions which took place in the plains of Moab. The vain attempts of Israel's enemies to effect their ruin by means of the enchantments of Balaam, remind us of the security of God's church and of every believer, under the protection of him 'who slumbereth not nor sleeps.' Christ hath said of the church in general, that 'the gates of hell shall not prevail against it;' and of all believers, 'that none shall be able to pluck them out of his hands.' Let us, however, be warned by the fact, that what Balaam could not do by his enchantments, he succeeded in effecting through the seductions of the women of Moab. When the people rebelled and disobeyed Jehovah, their protection was gone. 'Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.' We have a subtile enemy to contend with. We are safe only when we 'commit the keeping of our souls to God in well-doing, as unto a faithful Creator.'

THE FIFTH BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

DEUTERONOMY.

THIS book is named Deuteronomy from two Greek words signifying the second law, or a repetition of the law, and is the name given it in the Septuagint. It is called by some Misnah Torah, which denotes the same thing. Others call it Sepher takechoth, or Book of Reprehensions, from the reproofs contained in it. The Hebrews themselves call it, from the opening words of the book, Elleh Hadabarim. Deuteronomy is indeed a very appropriate name. 'It contains indeed a compendious recapitulation of the law, enlarged with many explanatory additions, and enforced by the strongest and most pathetic exhortations to obedience: as well for the more forcible impression on the Israelites in general, as in particular for the benefit of those who being born in the wilderness, were not present at the first promulgation of the law. It is a kind of manual of divine wisdom; a commentary on the decalogue; and contains such laws as concerned the people in general, as to their civil, military, and religious government, omitting for the most part what related to the priests and Levites. It was delivered by Moses a little time previous to his death; to the people whom he had long governed and instructed; and bequeathed with his other writings to the charge of the Levites, as the most valuable testimony of his regard, in the fortieth year after the departure from Egypt, A. M. 2552.'—Gray's Key. The book contains a period of two months, the last of the life of Moses. He was aware of his approaching end, and addresses the people with the pathos and solemnity of a dying parent, ruler, and instructor. It is repeatedly quoted by our Lord, and in both Testaments, as the work of Moses, and divinely inspired. Besides, the prophecies contained in it, some of them fulfilled during a course of more than 3000 years, and some yet to be accomplished, demonstrate its divine original. It is a portion of holy scripture alike important and interesting.

2 Some have supposed that this is an oriental hyperbole, or exaggerated figure, to express their multitude. But we must keep in mind that the language of scripture speaks to men's common apprehension, and as things present themselves to common observation. In this way the figure was not an exaggeration, but the reverse. At the last account that had been taken of them they were 600,000, independently of women & children. The stars visible to the naked eye are only about 3000.

3 In rather more than two hundred years, the people had multiplied to much more than ten thousand times the number of which they had consisted! The promises of God did not limit their future increase, nor did the faith and prayer of Moses; for a large definite is taken for an indefinite number. Under Pharaoh the increase of Israel excited jealousy & cruelty, Ex.1.9,10; but Moses delighted in it.

THESE be the words[1] which Moses spake unto all Israel *a*on this side Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain over against the[2] Red sea,[3] between Paran,b and Tophel, and Laban, and Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

2 (There are eleven days'[4] journey from Horeb, *d*by the way of mount Seir, *e*unto Kadesh-barnea.)

3 And it came to pass *f*in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that the LORD had given him in commandment unto them;

4 After *g*he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, which dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, which dwelt at Astaroth in Edrei.

5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses *h*to declare this law, saying,

6 ¶ The LORD our God spake unto us *i*in Horeb, saying, *k*Ye have dwelt long enough[5] in this mount:

7 Turn you, and take your journey, and go to *l*the mount of the Amorites, and unto[6] all the places nigh thereunto, in*m* the plain, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea-side, to the land of the Canaanites, and unto Lebanon, unto *n*the great river, the river Euphrates.

8 Behold, I have set[1] the land before you: go in and possess the land *o*which the LORD sware unto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto them, and to their seed after them.

9 ¶ And I spake unto you at that time, saying, *p*I am not able to bear you myself alone:

10 The LORD *q*your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven[2] for multitude.

11 (The LORD God of your fathers *r*make you a thousand times[3] so many more as ye are, *s*and bless you, as he hath promised you!)

12 How can I myself alone *t*bear your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?

13 [4]Take ye *u*wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

15 So *v*I took the chief of your tribes, wise men, and known, and made[4] them heads over you, *w*captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes.[1]

16 And I [z]charged your judges at that time, saying, [y]Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and [z]the stranger that is with him.

17 Ye [a]shall not respect[2] persons in judgment, but [b]ye shall hear the small as well as the great; [c]ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the[d] judgment is God's: and [e]the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I [f]commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

19 ¶ And when we departed from Horeb, we went [g]through all that great and terrible wilderness,[3] which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and [h]we came to Kadesh-barnea.

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto [i]the mountain of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; [k]fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 ¶ And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, [l]We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

23 And the saying pleased me well;[4] and I took twelve men of you, one of a tribe:

24 And [m]they turned, and went up into the mountain, and came unto the valley of Eshcol,[5] and searched it out.

25 And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give us.

26 Notwithstanding [n]ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God:

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because [o]the LORD hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have discouraged[1] our heart, saying, [p]The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great, and walled up to heaven:[2] and, moreover, [q]we have seen the sons of the Anakims there.

29 Then I said unto you, [r]Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 The LORD your God, which goeth before you, [s]he shall fight for you, [t]according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes;

31 And [u]in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God [v]bare thee,[3] as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32 Yet in this thing [w]ye did not believe the LORD your God,

33 Who went [x]in the way before you, to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, [y]in fire by night, to show you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 ¶ And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, [z]and sware, saying,

35 Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I sware to give unto your fathers,

36 Save [a]Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it; and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because he hath wholly[4] followed the LORD.

37 Also [b]the LORD was angry with me[5] for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither.

38 But [c]Joshua the son of Nun, [d]which standeth before thee, he shall go in thither: [e]encourage him; for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

39 Moreover [f]your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, and your children, [g]which in that day had no knowledge between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it.

40 But as for you, [h]turn you, and High walls around houses, &c. in these parts of Arabia, are still deemed a sufficient defence against the Arabs, who scarcely ever attempt any thing in the way of plunder except on horseback. The monastery on Mount Sinai is surrounded with very high walls without any gate; in the upper part of the wall, thirty-two feet from the ground, there is a sort of window or opening from which a basket, sometimes a rope with a loop at the end, (see Kinnear's Cairo, Petra and Damascus, 1840, p. 78.) is suspended by a pulley, by which both persons and goods are received into and sent from the place.

ike your journey into the wilderness, y the way of the Red sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto e, [i]We have sinned against the ORD, we will go up and fight, accordg to all that the LORD our God comanded us. And when ye had girded n every man his weapons of war, ye ere ready to go up into the hill.

42 And the LORD said unto me, ay unto them, [k]Go not up, neither ght; [l]for I am not among you; lest e be smitten before your enemies.

43 So I spake unto you, and ye ould not hear, [m]but rebelled against ne commandment of the LORD, and ent[1] presumptuously up into the hill.

44 And the Amorites, which dwelt that mountain, came out against ou, and [n]chased you, as bees[2] do, and estroyed you in Seir, even [o]unto Horah.

45 And [p]ye returned, and wept bere the LORD; but the LORD would ot hearken to your voice, nor give ar unto you.

46 So ye abode [q]in Kadesh many ays, according unto the days that ye ode there.

CHAPTER II.

The story is continued, that they were not to meddle with the mites, 1—8; nor with the Moabites, 9—15; nor with the monites, 16—23; but Sihon the Amorite was given up to be ued by them, 24—37.

THEN [a]we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness, by the y of the Red sea, as the LORD spake to me; and [b]we compassed mount ir many days.

2 And the LORD spake unto me, ring,

3 Ye have compassed this mouni [c]long enough:[3] turn you northrd.

4 And command thou the people, ing, [d]Ye are to pass through the st of your brethren[4] the children of u, which dwell in Seir, and [e]they ll be afraid of you: [f]take ye good d unto yourselves therefore.

5 Meddle not with them; for I will give you of their land, no,[5] not so h as a foot breadth; [g]because I given mount Seir unto Esau for ssession.

6 Ye shall [h]buy meat of them for money, that ye may eat; and ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink.

7 For the LORD thy God hath [i]blessed thee in all the works of thy hand: [k]he knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: [l]these forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing.

8 And [m]when we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from [n]Elath, and from Ezion-gaber,[1] we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

9 And the LORD said unto me, Distress[2] not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession; because I have given [o]Ar[3] unto [p]the children of Lot for a possession.

10 The [q]Emims dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims;

11 Which also were accounted giants, [r]as the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 The [s]Horims also dwelt in Seir beforetime; but the children of Esau succeeded[4] them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their stead,[5] [t]as Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.[6]

13 Now rise up, said I, and get you over the brook[7] [u]Zered: and we went over the brook Zered.

14 And the space in which we came from [v]Kadesh-barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, was thirty and eight years; [w]until all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as the LORD sware unto them.

15 For indeed [x]the hand of the LORD[8] was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 ¶ So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to [y]pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day.

2 Although the power of these courageous insects is too well known to render any persons willing to expose themselves to the effects of their resentment, strong demonstrations of that power are so rare in this country as to render this comparison apparently undignified. But it is not really so. The ancient writers always speak of the bee as a very formidable adversary. Aristotle and Pliny, in particular, dwell on its courageous character, & the great power of its sting, by which the largest animals, even horses, have been destroyed. The latter writer mentions that, in some districts of Crete, they were so troublesome as to expel the inhabitants.

3 Here again an almost total silence is observed, concerning more than thirty-seven years of the time which the Israelites passed in the wilderness, Nu. 20. 1. We may, however, suppose, that Moses, Aaron, and the priests and Levites, were diligently employed in instructing the people, and that many, even 'of them whose carcases fell in the wilderness,' were thus prepared for heaven; while the survivors were humbled & proved, in order to their entrance into the promised land. In the meantime the Canaanites, elated with their first success, & perceiving their dreaded invaders entangled in the wilderness, grew more insolent and daring in their wickedness, and ripened apace for destruction.

1 These races of people called giants, probably were a fierce and warlike people, living by plunder and violence, as the Arabs do to this day. The word rendered giants, ver. 11, is Rephaim, and in allprobabilitythese Emim, Anakim, and Rephaim were the same race, or different tribes of the same people. There were doubtless some of them of gigantic stature, and the fears of the Israelites would magnify into giants the whole race.

2 These fragments of ancient history were introduced to encourage the Israelites. If the Lord destroyed these gigantic people before the posterity of Lot and of Esau; what cause had the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, his chosen servants and friends, to fear the Anakims or Canaanites? especially as Israel acted by commission from God, and had his promise as their security of success, and the pledge of it in his presence, and the wonders He had already wrought for them; and as they were the only nation of worshippers of the LORD, in the ordinances of his institution, which could be found on earth. —Scott.

1 The secret purposes of God can neither be the rule nor motive of man's conduct. Though God revealed his purposes to the Israelites, Sihon knew nothing of them; and when he would not let Israel pass through, he was actuated by his own proud and presumptuous spirit; and the message sent to him does not originate this spirit, but only makes it manifest, and renders the justice of his punishment apparent.

As it is a sin, this cannot be ascribed unto God, but as it is a punishment, might justly be inflicted by him upon Sihon for his former sins.'—Patrick.

4 A brook or mountain torrent, sometimes called in scripture,as in this place, a river. It has its rise in.the mountains of Gilead, on the east of Jordan,above Rabbath-Ammon. Passing that city on the north, it runs in a north westerly direction, passing also the city of Ramoth-Gilead, & finally loses itself in the Jordan, about eight miles below the sea of Galilee.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not[1] let us pass by him: for [t]the LORD thy God hardened[2] his spirit, and made his heart [t]obstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to [u]give Sihon and his land before thee: begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 Then [v]Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

33 And [w]the LORD our God delivered him before us, and [x]we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that time, and [y]utterly destroyed the[3] men, and the women, and the little ones, of every city; we left none to remain:

35 Only [z]the cattle we took for a prey unto ourselves, and the spoil of the cities which we took.

36 From [a]Aroer, which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the river, even unto Gilead, there was [b]not one city too strong for us: the LORD our God delivered all unto us.

37 Only [c]unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river [d4]Jabbok, nor unto the cities in the mountains, nor unto whatsoever the LORD our God forbade us.

CHAPTER III.

The story of the conquest of Og king of Bashan, 1—10. The size of his bed, 11. The distribution of the conquered lands to the two tribes and half, 12—22. Moses' prayer to enter into the land, 23—25. He is permitted to see it, 26—29.

THEN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and [a]Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.[5]

2 And the LORD said unto me, [b]Fear him not: for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him [c]as thou didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

3 So [d]the LORD our God delivered into our hands Og also, the king of Bashan, and all his people: and we smote him, until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took [e]all his cities at that time; there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, all[f] the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

5 All these cities were [g]fenced with high walls, gates, and bars, besides unwalled towns a great many.

6 And [h]we utterly destroyed them, as[i] we did unto Sihon king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children, of every city.

7 But [k]all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves.

8 And we took at that time, out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites, [l]the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon;[1]

9 (Which [m]Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion, and the Amorites call it Shenir;)[n]

10 All [o]the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and all Bashan, unto Salchah and [p]Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

11 For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants; behold, his bedstead[2] was a bedstead of iron: is it not in [q]Rabbath of the children of Ammon? [r]nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

12 And this land, which we possessed at that time, [s]from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites.

13 And [t]the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half-tribe of Manasseh; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

14 [u]Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of [v]Argob, unto the coasts of [w]Geshuri and Maachathi, and called them after his own name, [x]Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day.

15 And I gave Gilead unto [y]Machir.

16 And unto [z]the Reubenites, and unto the Gadites, I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon, half the valley, and the border, even unto the [a]river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon;

17 The plain also, and Jordan, and the coast thereof, from [b]Chinnereth even unto [c]the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, under [1]Ashdoth-pisgah eastward.

18 ¶ And [d]I commanded you at that time, saying, The LORD your God hath given you this land to possess it: ye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are meet[2] for the war.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you,

20 Until the LORD have given rest unto your brethren,[3] as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the LORD your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye [e]return every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

21 ¶ And [f]I commanded[4] Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: [g]so shall the LORD do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

22 Ye shall not fear them: [h]for the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23 ¶ And [i]I besought the LORD at that time, saying,

24 O Lord GOD, thou hast begun to shew thy servant [k]thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for [l]what god is there in heaven or in earth that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

25 I pray thee, let me go over and see [m]the good land[5] that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon.

26 But [n]the LORD was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, [o]Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter.

27 Get thee [p]up into the top of Pisgah,[6] and [q]lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

1 Mount Hermon is obviously here mentioned as the northern boundary of Palestine, and still more distinctly in Joshua, 11. 1. It would therefore seem to be a name not of any mountain or range of mountains distinct from Lebanon, but to be applied in a particular designation to that part of the Anti-Libanus which forms the northernmostfrontier of the country, and also the eastern frontier of the northernmost portion of the country. The map will render this intelligible. It is there seen that the range of Anti-Libanus, in descending (so to express it) from the north to the border of Palestine, divides into two branches, one of which inclines off to the Mediterranean, while the other descends southward for about 40 miles. It seems to be the whole of the southward prolongation of the nearer part (not the whole) of the westward, to which the name of mount Hermon was applied.

2 An oriental bedstead, says the writer in the Pict. Bible, 'is not like any in use among ourselves. It consists of a platform raised on posts and beams two orthree feet above the ground. The platform for supporting the bedding is not of sacking, but of wood, or whatever else may be the general material of this heavy contrivance; and it is boarded up at the sides, head, and foot, to retain the bedding, as in a trough. Such bedsteadsaregenerally of wood; butwhere the palm tree is common, its strong leaf stems are applied to this among many other purposes.' Either the Ammonites seized on the bedstead of Og, or they bought it from the Israelites, and carrying it to Rabbath, it was there preserved as a monument of his stature, or of Israel's victory.

4 The command seems to be, that Joshua should not fear the kingdoms whither he should pass. God's commands are introduced to sinners under his covenant with promises and testimonies of his favour & love, and obedience to them is the 'obedience of faith.' Moses puts the command on this ground, 'for the Lord your God he shall fight for you.' The people of God need fear no dangers. If 'God be for them, who can be against them?'

Tho' his prayers had more than once been heard for Israel, they were in this case refused for himself, as a warning and example. But he saw the land afar off in faith, and entered at last the Canaan above. In this he was a type of Christ, who drank the bitter cup, but through the cross entered on his glory.

CHAPTER IV.

An exhortation to obedience, 1—40. Moses appointeth the three cities of refuge on the east side of Jordan, 41—49.

NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, unto[a] the statutes, and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, [b]that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

2 Ye shall not [c]add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments[1] of the LORD your God which I command you.

3 Your eyes have seen [d]what the LORD did because of Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you.

4 But ye that did [e]cleave unto the LORD your God are alive every one of you this day.[2]

5 Behold, [f]I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

6 Keep therefore, and do them; for this[g] is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, [h]Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

7 For [i]what nation is there so great, who[k] hath God so nigh unto them, as the LORD our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

8 And what nation is there so great, that hath [l]statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?[3]

9 Only take heed to thyself, and keep[m] thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and [n]lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life; but teach[o] them thy sons, and thy sons' sons:

8 A strong, but just expression, to describe the hard bondage of Egypt. Patrick says, 'it is a phrase used by Solomon, 1Ki. 8.51, and by Jeremiah, ch. 11. 4; to express the most cruel servitude; wherein God suffered them to be tried, as metals are in a furnace of iron red hot,' that they might hence become more pure and more worthy servants of God.

2 Many expressions in this prophecy evidently refer to times much later than even the Babylonish captivity. The Jews could not then with any propriety be said to have 'utterly perished' out of the promised land, as they returned to it at the end of seventy years; but their present state, in which they have been 'scattered among the nations' for almost eighteen hundred years, without any access to their own land, and without any regular government, answers the language of the prediction with great exactness. They do not at present worship images; but they are grossly ignorant of the true God, 'for he that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father that sent him, (John 5. 20-23; 8. 54-59.)

1 God hath fulfilled his threatenings, & He will as certainly fulfil his promises, & Israel shall yet be restored. It is declared, in Jos. 23. 15, that God will fulfil his threatenings as he did his promises; so we may believe He will do the reverse, for He is faithful.

4 Never since the creation of the world, not only to the time of Moses, but down to this present time, three thousand years later, has there been such a wonderful deliverance as that a multitude of slaves, under the leadership of two unarmed and powerless men, should be brought forth from the dominion of a powerful monarch, most determined to retain them in bondage. It was manifestly the power of God —and so it was intended to teach that Jehovah was God and none else.

CHAPTER V.

A commemoration of the covenant in Horeb, 1—5. The ten commandments, 6—21. At the people's request Moses receiveth the law from God, 22—33.

AND Moses called [a]all Israel, and said unto them, [b]Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep,[3] and do them.

2 The LORD [c]our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

3 The LORD [d]made not this covenant[4] with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.

4 The [e]LORD talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the midst of the fire,

5 (I [f]stood between the LORD and you at that time, to shew you the word of the LORD; for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount,) saying,

6 ¶ [g]I am the LORD thy God, which [h]brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.[1]

7 Thou [i]shalt have none other gods before me.

8 Thou shalt not make thee any [k]graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth:

9 Thou [l]shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am [m]a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me,

10 And [n]showing mercy unto thousands[2] of them that [o]love me, and keep my commandments.

11 Thou [p]shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

12 [q]Keep the sabbath-day to sanctify it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee.[3]

13 [r]Six days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work;

14 But the seventh day is [s]the sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor [t]thy stranger that is within thy gates; that [u]thy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest[4] as well as thou.

15 And [v]remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that [w]the LORD thy God brought thee out thence, [x]through a mighty hand, and by a stretched-out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath-day.

16 ¶ [y]Honour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; that [z]thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

4 The Sinai covenant was different from that made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; for that was personal, and related mainly to spiritual blessings; this was national, and especially stated the terms on which the possession of the promised land, and other privileges, would be continued to Israel, (Ge. 17. 1-8; Ex. 19.5; Ga. 3.15-18). But this language may also mean, that the covenant made at Horeb, was as obligatory on the generation whom Moses then addressed,as on those who were immediately present, when the law was delivered, and the covenant ratified. For they were a collective body, incorporated by charter, the obligations and advantages of which descended to the successors of those to whom it was first conceded. Someindeedwhom Moses addressed had been present at the giving of the law, though under age; but most of them were then unborn, or children; yet the covenant made with their fathers included them likewise.—Scott.

2 The mercy of God is held out as a motive to obey the law of God, though the law itself holds out no mercy to the transgressor. In the preface God speaks to them as their Redeemer, and it is only in this view that a sinner can yield it obedience. The mercy of God is here promised to thousands; not only of individuals, or to great multitudes to the third and fourth generation, but to successive generations to the end of time. The Lord's dealings with the posterity of Abraham, who believed his word, loved him,&kepthiscommandments, illustrate this promise.

4 This is not a different reason from that originally assigned in Ex. 20. 11; but an additional one. for observing the sabbath. The original reason, a commemoration of the creation, remains always valid; but that here specified is a farther one, viz., that as they had been bondmen in Egypt, and grievouslyoppressed, and their observance of the day of rest grievously interfered with, they should piously allow their servants, and even heathen slaves, to rest from labour, and teach them the worship of Jehovah. In addition to these, Christians have other great motives, such as their completed redemption, in the resurrection of their Lord, for observing the sabbath, and the resurrection of their Lord being the pledge of their own, the foundation of their 'lively hope' of the rest remaining for the people of God.

17 Thou [a]shalt not kill.

18 Neither [b]shalt thou commit adultery.

19 Neither [c]shalt thou steal.

20 Neither [d]shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21 Neither [e]shalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his man-servant, or his maid-servant, his ox, or his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

22 ¶ These [f]words the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice; and he added no more:[1] and [g]he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me.

23 And it came to pass, [h]when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders;

24 And ye said,[2] Behold, the LORD our God hath showed us his glory, and his greatness, and [i]we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and [k]he liveth.

25 Now therefore why should we die? for [l]this great fire will consume us. If we hear[3] the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

26 For [m]who is there of [n]all flesh that hath heard the voice of the [o]living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

27 Go thou near, and [p]hear all that the LORD our God shall say; and speak thou unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee, and we will hear it, and do it.

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: [q]they have well said all that they have spoken.[4]

29 [r]Oh that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and [s]keep all my commandments always, [t]that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

30 Go say to them, Get you into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and [u]I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

32 Ye shall [v]observe to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: [w]ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

33 Ye shall [x]walk in all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be [y]well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

CHAPTER VI.

The end of the law is obedience, 1, 2. An exhortation thereto, 3—19. What they are required to teach their children concerning it, 20—25.

NOW these are [a]the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments,[1] which the LORD your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go[2] to possess it:

2 That thou mightest [b]fear the LORD thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee; thou, [c]and thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life, and that [d]thy days may be prolonged.

3 ¶ Hear therefore, O Israel, [e]and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and [f]that ye may increase mightily, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, [g]in the land that floweth with milk and honey.

4 Hear, O Israel; [h]The LORD our God is one LORD:[3]

5 And [i]thou shalt love the LORD thy God [k]with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.[4]

6 And these words, which I command thee this day, [l]shall be in thine heart;[5]

7 And thou [m]shalt teach[6] them diligently[7] unto thy children, and [n]shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the

4 When the people were impressed with the terror of immediate destruction from the voice of God speaking from mount Sinai, and were conscious that they could not thus approach him, but desired a mediator by whom he might speak to them; & when they promised to hear and obey that mediator; they spake well, and had they properly understood their own request, and been permanently disposed according to it, all would have proceeded and terminated happily. But the Lord, in very affecting and emphatical language, suggests that it was not so, for he saw that tho' they were alarmed, they were neither duly humbled nor prepared to receive in faith the promised Mediator whom Moses typified, nor disposed to walk in the ways of holy obedience.—Scott. The approbation by Jehovah of their request for a Mediator to speak with them, is very remarkable, and is referred to in the promise of the 'Prophet like unto' Moses, whom God was to raise up unto them. 1 These directions in ver. 7-9, show not only the duty and necessity of knowing, understanding, and carefully treasuring in our own hearts the law of God, but of most diligently and perseveringly teaching them to others, and constantly in every proper way 'holding forth the word of life' in our walk and conversation; the phrase, 'thou shalt teach them diligently,' signifies to do it by reiterated attempts, as one in whetting an instrument. Some of these directions here given have been supposed to be figurative, but some of them were intended doubtless to be literal. The Jews followed them not only literally but also superstitiously, and used these passages of scripture written on pieces of parchment as amulets and charms, which they tied to their arms or foreheads. The Mahomedans paint passages of the Koran on the doors and ceilings of their houses to this day. We have seen passages of scripture thus piously painted on the log-built houses of the inhabitants of German Switzerland. But this method of proclaiming scripture truth is now superseded.

On the other hand, by habitually neglecting any part of the law, their obedience in other respects would be rendered useless, and their partiality would evince their hypocrisy.—Scott.

25 And [o]it shall be our righteousness,[2] if we observe to do all these commandments before the LORD our God, as he hath commanded us.

CHAPTER VII.

All communion with the seven nations of Canaan is forbidden for fear of idolatry, 1—5; for the holiness of the people, 6—8; for the nature of God in his mercy and justice, 9—16; for the assurednes of victory which God will give over them, 17—24. Images must be wholly destroyed, 25, 26.

WHEN [a]the LORD thy God shall bring thee into the land whither thou goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations before thee, [b]the Hittites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, seven nations[3] [c]greater and mightier than thou;

2 And when the LORD thy God shall [d]deliver them before thee, thou shalt smite them, and [e]utterly destroy them; thou shalt [f]make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them:

3 Neither shalt thou [g]make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son.

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me,[4] that they may serve other gods;[h] so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall [i]destroy their altars, and break down their images,[5] [k]and cut down their groves, and [l]burn their graven images with fire.

2 Those that hate God cannot hurt him, but certainly ruin themselves. He will repay them to their face, in defiance of all their impotent malice. His arrows are said to be 'made ready against the face of them,' Ps. 21. 12. Or, he will bring those judgments upon them which shall appear to themselves to be the just punishment of their idolatry. Compare Job 21.19. 'He rewardeth him and he shall know it.' Tho' vengeance seem to be slack, yet it is not slack. The wicked and the sinner shall be recompensed in the earth, Pr. 11. 21.—Henry.

Bible.* The Israelites had been repeatedly commanded to attempt the immediate and entire extirpation of the devoted nations; as far as sloth, cowardice, or unbelief induced them to spare them, they sinned; and to punish this and their other sins, as well as to prove them, the Lord was pleased to permit a considerable remnant of these nations to remain among them, Ju. 2.1-5; 3.1-4. deliver thee;[i] thine eye shall have no pity upon them; neither shalt thou serve their gods; [k]for that will be a snare unto thee.

17 If [l]thou shalt say in thine heart, [m]These nations are more than I, how can I dispossess them?

18 Thou [n]shalt not be afraid of them; but shalt well [o]remember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt:

19 The [p]great temptations[1] which thine eyes saw, and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched-out arm, whereby the LORD thy God brought thee out; so shall the LORD thy God do unto all the people of whom thou art afraid.

20 Moreover, the LORD thy God will send the [q]hornet among them, until they that are left, and hide themselves from thee, be destroyed.

21 Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for [r]the LORD thy God is among you, [s]a mighty God and terrible.

22 And the LORD thy God will[2] put out those nations before thee by little and little: [t]thou mayest not consume them at once, lest the beasts of the field increase[3] upon thee.

23 But [u]the LORD thy God shall deliver them unto[4] thee, and [v]shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, until they be destroyed.

24 And [w]he shall deliver their kings into thine hand, and thou shalt destroy [x]their name from under heaven: [y]there shall no man be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them.

serve to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

2 And thou shalt [b]remember all the way which the LORD thy God [c]led thee these forty years in the wilderness, [d]to humble thee, and to [e]prove thee, [f]to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no.

3 And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and [g]fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee know that man doth[h] not live by bread only, but by every word that proceeded out of the mouth of the LORD[1] doth man live.

4 Thy [i]raiment waxed not[2] old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell, these forty years.

5 Thou shalt also [k]consider in thine heart, that, [l]as a man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, to [m]walk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land;[3] [n]a land of brooks of water, of fountains, and depths that spring out of valleys and hills;

8 A land of [o]wheat, and [p]barley, and [q]vines, and fig-trees, and pomegranates; a land of oil-olive,[4] and honey;

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it; a land [r]whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.[4]

10 When [s]thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

11 [t]Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day;

12 Lest [u]when thou hast eaten and art full, [v]and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

2 The Israelites doubtless brought out of Egypt more raiment than what they had upon them; they might manufacture the fleeces of their flocks in the wilderness; and they might be favoured in providence with other supplies; yet when we consider their immense numbers, their situation and long continuance in the wilderness, and the strong expressions here made use of, there seems no reason to question the constant and most extraordinary miraculous interposition of God in this respect as well as in others.

1 This threatening, which was afterwards dreadfully fulfilled, suggests the answer to a very common infidel objection, that the cruelties inflicted on the Canaanites were unworthy of God, and could not have his authority, viz. that they were not to gratify the passions of the Israelites, but the just judgments of God on their signal wickedness, and that the Israelites would be, and actually have been, subjected to the same judgments when they practised the same crimes against God.

3 This is a strong but not unusual hyperbole, of which we have already had some instances & shall have more. The fact, however, is interesting, that at this early time, as well as now, it was customary to surround towns with very high walls. Few towns of the least consequence in western Asia are without walls, which, whatever be their character in other respects, are sure to be lofty. As the use of artillery is still but little known, where a town has a wall too high to be easily scaled, and too thick to be easily battered down, the inhabitants look upon the place as impregnable.—*Pict. HEAR, O Israel: Thou art to [a]pass over Jordan this day,[2] to go in to possess [b]nations greater and mightier than thyself, [c]cities great, and fenced up to heaven;[3]

2 A people [d]great and tall, the children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard say, [e]Who can stand before the children of Anak?

3 [f]Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God is he which [g]goeth over before thee; as [h]a consuming fire [i]he shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: so shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the LORD hath said unto thee.

4 [k]Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land; but [l]for the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

5 Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go in to possess their land; but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and [m]that he may perform the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.[1]

6 [n]Understand therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art [o]a stiff-necked people.

7 ¶ [p]Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the LORD thy God to wrath in the wilderness; [q]from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the LORD.

8 Also [r]in Horeb[2] ye provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry with you, to have destroyed you.

9 When [s]I was gone up into the mount, to receive the tables of stone, even [t]the tables of the covenant which the LORD made with you, [u]then I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights; [v]I neither did eat bread nor drink water:

10 And the LORD delivered unto me two tables of stone, [w]written with the finger of God: and on them was written according to [x]all the words which the LORD spake with you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, in the day of the assembly.

11 And it came to pass, at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even [y]the tables of the covenant.

12 And the LORD said unto me, [z]Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have [a]corrupted themselves; they [b]are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.[1]

13 Furthermore the LORD spake unto me, saying, [c]I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a [d]stiff-necked people.

14 [e]Let me alone, that I may destroy them,[2] and [f]blot out their name from under heaven; [g]and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.

15 So [h]I turned, and came down from the mount, and [i]the mount burned with fire; and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And [k]I looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

18 And [l]I fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

19 (For [m]I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure wherewith the LORD was wroth against you to destroy you.) [n]But the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

20 And the LORD was [o]very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

21 And [p]I took your sin, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.

22 And at [q]Taberah, and at [r]Massah, and at [s]Kibroth-hattaavah,[3] ye provoked the LORD to wrath.

1 It was of great moment, which makes him repeat it again, that they should understand the true causes why God expelled these nations, and gave their land to the Israelites; which were these two: First, the wickedness of the Canaanites, for which they deserved to be rooted out. Secondly, God's gracious promises to the pious ancestors of the Israelites, with whom He made a covenant and confirmed it with an oath, to plant them there, in the room of the former inhabitants. — Patrick.

2 In the sixth, seventh, & eighth verses, the circumstances are repeated, and dwelt upon, which are fitted to show that they were not put in possession of the promised land for any righteousness of their own. The utmost care is taken to eradicate this opinion from their minds. They are reminded that so far from being signally righteous, they were remarkably perverse and obstinate. God himself complains of it, Ex. 32. 9; 33. 3-5. Moses acknowledges it in praying for them, ch. 34. 9. To impress this truth more deeply upon them, repeated instances of their disobedience and provocation are recalled; their unvarying spirit of rebellion is declared; and even in Horeb, where they had newly received the law, and had a visible appearance of God, in great glory, upon mount Sinai, and had entered into covenant with God, they still rebelled against him to such an extent, that He thought to have destroyed them, as we learn from Ex. 32. 7, 8, &c.

1 This was the crowning point of their iniquity. It was a crime so heinous, that it is constantly brought up before them. Of all others it was the most senseless and unjustifiable. It betrayed the deepest stupidity, and the blackest ingratitude. It was committed under the most aggravating circumstances. 'It was done in the very place where the law was given, by which they were expressly forbidden to worship God by images; and while the mountain was yet burning before their eyes, & Moses was gone up to fetch them the law in writing; they turned aside quickly, ver.16.' All this strikingly displayed their obstinate & perverse rebellion against God, and showed unanswerably that God had manifested his grace, not for any good in them, or for any righteousness they had done, but for his mercy's sake.

2 God was very angry with them for their sin. Let them not think that God overlooked what they did amiss, & gave them Canaan for what was good among them. No, God had determined to destroy them, ver. 8. He could easily have done it, and had been no loser by it; he even desired Moses to let him alone that He might do it. By this it appeared how heinous their sin was, for God is never angry with any above what there is cause for, as men often are. Moses himself, tho' a friend and favourite, trembled at the revelation of God's wrath from heaven against their ungodliness and unrighteousness, ver. 19.—Henry.

23 Likewise [t]when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea,[1] saying, Go up and possess the land which I have given you; then [u]ye rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and [v]ye believed him not, nor hearkened to his voice.

24 Ye have been [w]rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

25 Thus [x]I fell down[2] before the LORD forty days and forty nights, as I fell down at the first; because the LORD had said he would destroy you.

26 I [y]prayed therefore unto the LORD, and said, O Lord GOD, destroy not thy people, and thine inheritance, which[z] thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, [a]which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

27 [b]Remember thy servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; [c]look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin;

28 Lest the land whence thou broughtest us out say, [d]Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay them in the wilderness.

29 Yet [e]they are thy people, and thine inheritance, [f]which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power, and by thy stretched-out arm.

CHAPTER X.

God's mercy in restoring the two tables, 1—5; in continuing the priesthood, 6, 7; in separating the tribe of Levi, 8, 9; in hearkening unto Moses' suit for the people, 10, 11. An exhortation to obedience, 12—22.

AT that time the LORD said unto me, [a]Hew thee[3] two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and [b]make thee an ark of wood.

2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and [c]thou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And [d]I made an ark[4] of shittim-wood, and [e]hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

4 And [f]he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, [g]the ten commandments,[1] [h]which the LORD spake unto you in the mount, [i]out of the midst of the fire, [k]in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

5 And [l]I turned myself, and came down from the mount, and [m]put the tables in the ark which I had made; and [n]there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel [o]took their journey from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to [p]Mosera: [q]there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead.

7 From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.[2]

8 ¶ At that time[3] [r]the LORD separated the tribe of Levi, to [s]bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, [t]to stand before the LORD to minister unto him, and [u]to bless in his name, unto this day.

9 Wherefore [v]Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him.

10 ¶ And [w]I stayed in the mount, according to the first[4] time, forty days and forty nights; and [x]the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee.

11 And the LORD said unto me, [y]Arise, take[5] thy journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land which I sware unto their fathers to give unto them.

12 ¶ And now, Israel, [z]what doth the LORD thy God require of thee, but [a]to fear the LORD thy God, [b]to walk in all his ways, and [c]to love him, and to serve the LORD thy God [d]with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, 13 To keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day [e]for thy good?

14 Behold, [f]the heaven, and the heaven of heavens, is the LORD's thy God, [g]the earth also, with all that therein is.

2 Moses fasted and prayed in intercession for the people full forty days and forty nights; some supposed he did so twice before God declared his mercy to them. He pled God's covenant with their fathers.—In this he was a type of Christ. He prays that the gracious promises of God to their pious forefathers, would move him to overlook the high provocations of their posterity; which he aggravates in several words, the more to humble them, and to magnify God's mercy in granting them a pardon.

4 It is evident that the ark of the covenant, and not a temporary ark, was here intended; for the two tables of the law continued in it, at the time when Moses delivered this discourse. Probably before he ascended the mount the second time, he gave express orders to Bezaleel to get the ark ready against he came down; & having directed and ordered the making of it, he speaks as if he had made it, thus Solomon is said to have builded the temple, which he caused to be builded by the hands of others. Some, however, think, that Moses prepared the ark himself as made of shittim-wood, and carried it up with the tables into the mount, and that Bezaleel afterwards covered it with gold.

2 It is supposed by many that the verses from the 6th to the 9th inclusive, are an interpolation. We cannot, in so short space, enter on the merits of this critical question. The opinion that it is an interpolation, may be seen stated and supported in Kennicot's Remarks, quoted by Clarke, in the Pict. Bible, &c. On the 6th and 7th verses Scott says, 'These verses so break in upon the connection of Moses's discourse, and give such an account of the names of places, that they perplex commentators. But several of the places mentioned seem to have had more names than one; (Marg. Nu. 33. 30-39;) & some particulars, which for want of information we cannot reconcile with other accounts, might be perfectly intelligible to the Israelites. It is evident that Moses did not much regard exactness of method in this discourse; yet perhaps, by some means, a transposition has taken place, for these verses would come in more regularly after the eleventh verse.'

8 [n]Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, [o]that ye may be strong, and go in and possess the land whither ye go to possess it;

9 And that ye may [p]prolong your days in the land which the LORD [q]sware unto your fathers to give unto them, and to their seed, [r]a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 ¶ For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and [s]wateredst it with thy foot,[4] as a garden of herbs:

11 But [t]the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven;

12 A land which the LORD thy God careth[5] for: [u]the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year, even unto the end of the year.[6]

13 ¶ And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken [v]diligently unto my commandments, which I command you this day, [w]to love the LORD your God, and to serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul;

14 That [x]I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, the first rain, and the latter rain, that thou mayest gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

15 And [y]I will send[7] grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest [z]eat, and be full.

1 This figurative language most plainly teaches the Israelites the necessity of the inward spiritual change and pure and holy character, the mortification of the carnal affections of the heart, of which outward circumcision was the sign, and without which it was of no avail. So that Moses taught them the very same doctrine on this point as did Paul, Ro. 2. 25–29, that circumcision is that of the heart in the spirit, and not in the letter. God addresses his commands even to corrupt and fallen creatures, as the means of leading them to seek pardon and sanctification through the blood of atonement.

4 There is certainly no intention here to compare the two countries as to fertility. Egypt being, perhaps, without exception, the most fertile country in the world; but there is an interesting comparison as to the process of irrigation. Of Canaan it is said that it is watered, without human labour, by the rain of heaven; which rarely, or almost never, falls in Egypt, where the fertility of the country depends upon the Nile and its annual inundation, which is made available for the purposes of irrigation in the fullest extent, only by means of the numerous canals and trenches, which require every year to be cleaned out, & the dykes carefully repaired. The 'foot,' may be figuratively used for labour, in which case they are assured they shall be saved the labour of Egypt in watering the ground. There is doubtless, however, a particular reference to the custom in Egypt and other eastern countries, of watering the gardens and fields by machines for raising the water, either from the river or from cisterns, and which were turned by men ascending revolving steps in the manner of the tread mill, and which is very severe labour, to which the Israelish slaves would of course be put —See *Pict. 18 ¶ Therefore shall [f]ye lay up these my words in your heart, and in your soul, and bind them for [g]a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

19 And [h]ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

20 And thou shalt write them upon the door-posts of thine house, and upon thy gates:

21 That [i]your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, [k]as the days of heaven upon the earth.[2]

22 ¶ For [l]if ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, to do them, [m]to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and [n]to cleave unto him;

23 Then will the LORD [o]drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves.

1 The Israelites are here reminded that the fertility of their land, and their continuance in it, depended on the favour of God, and that if, by their wickedness, they should provoke his displeasure, its fertility should cease, and they should perish from the land. 3 This significant ceremony is afterwards more explicitly commanded, and the blessing and curse enlarged on; and likewise the observance of it recorded, ch. 27. 12-27; Jos. 8. 30-35. Gilgal was on the west side of Jordan, not far from the place where Israel passed that river; and the Canaanites dwelt over against Gilgal, near the plain of Moreh, Ge. 12. 6; so that the blessing and the curse were to be pronounced nigh to the place, where Abraham the blessed had formerly resided. This appointment of it at this time was a pledge of Israel's passing over Jordan. In this world we believe, and in part experience, that the righteous are blessed and the wicked are accursed; but beyond the grave the reality and extent of the blessing, and of the curse, will be more perfectly apprehended.—Scott.

4 God is a 'jealous God.' He will not permit the worship and glory to be given to any other, which is due to Him alone. He commanded the Israelites to destroy all the monuments and instruments of idolatry, that they might sink into oblivion, and be no longer incitements to the practice of it. Men anciently worshipped in groves, or shady places, the true God. But they were afterwards, especially among the Canaanites, perverted to idolatrous purposes, and the abominations attending them. and the Israelites are commanded to burn them with fire.

5 Hitherto they had been commanded to bring their sacrifices to the door of the tabernacle. But it is here intimated, that when they entered and took possession of the promised land, God would choose out for them a particular place where they should worship God together in purity and harmony, through the appointed ordinances, which were typical of the Redeemer, that there God would 'put his NAME,' the one living & true God, a just God and yet a Saviour. Shiloh was the place which God at first did choose, and afterwards he chose Jerusalem as the place to record his name.

CHAPTER XII.

Monuments of idolatry are to be destroyed, 1—3. The place of God's service is to be kept, 4—14. Blood is forbidden, 15, 23. Holy things must be eaten in the holy place, 17, 20, 26. The Levite is not to be forsaken, 19. Idolatrous practices are not to be inquired after, 29—32.

THESE are [a]the statutes and judgments which ye shall observe to do in the land which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to possess it, [b]all the days that ye live upon the earth.

2 Ye shall [c]utterly destroy all the places wherein the nations which ye shall possess[2] served their gods, [d]upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree.

3 And ye shall overthrow[3] their altars, and break their pillars, [e]and burn their groves[4] with fire; and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods, [f]and destroy the names of them out of that place.

4 ¶ Ye [g]shall not do so unto the LORD your God.

5 But [h]unto the place[5] which the LORD your God shall choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, even unto his [i]habitation shall ye seek, and thither thou shalt come:

6 And thither ye shall bring [k]your burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, and your [l]tithes, and heave-offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your free-will-offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks:

hatsoever is right in his own eyes.[1] soever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: [z]the unclean[4]

3 It is curious that the place is not yet indicated. Various reasons have been assigned for this by the Jewish writers. The most probable is, (tho' as God hath not revealed it, it is of no great consequence to ascertain it,) that it was not expressly pointed out as yet, lest every tribe should so earnestly desire to have the place within its own lot, that disputes and contentions might arise about it.

5 This light and elegant creature, which is the 'roe' in the Song of Solomon, and the gazelle of the Arabians, is very common in northern Africa and western Asia. The gazelle is about two feet in height, the hair on the back is of a delicate fawn colour, passing into a brown band along the sides, which is suddenly interrupted by the white of the under surface of the body. The horns, which are variegated by twelve or fourteen rings, stand diverged like the horns of an antique lyre. Its beautiful form, and large beaming eye, are favourite objects of comparison in oriental poetry & compliment.—Pict. Bible.

1 The Levite here spoken of, probably is intended to denote those of the Levites that were dispersed in the country to instruct the people. As they had no part, or portion, or inheritance assigned them, as God himself was said to be their portion, as their services in assisting at the worship of God, and teaching the people his law, were of the highest value and importance: justice, gratitude, benevolence, and wisdom alike enforced the duty of kindness to them. As long as they lived they would need the benefits of religion.

4 The eating of blood is here repeatedly prohibited; when not offered, before the Lord in sacrifice, they must pour it out upon the earth as water. The reason given is, that it was the life, and therefore an acknowledgment that it belongs to him who gives life, and as an atonement, belonged to him to whom life is forfeited. We are much disposed to adopt the opinion of Bishop Patrick, that this eating of blood was to prevent their mingling in the superstitious and idolatries of the heathen, who imagined that their demons delighted in blood, & that then they revealed secret things to those who thus feasted them. This seems to be the reason specially in view here. It explains, moreover, the prohibition in Ac. 15. 20, to abstain from pollutions of idols, and from blood. Eating of blood, as a sacrifice to their idols, was very common among certain Asiatic nations, and especially the Phœnicians, who bordered on the Israelites.

go well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.

29 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall cut[u] off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou succeedest[1] them, and dwellest in their land;

30 Take heed to thyself [v]that thou be not snared by following[2] them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou enquire not after their gods, saying, [w]How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

31 Thou [x]shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every abomination to[3] the LORD which he hateth have they done unto their gods; for [y]even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

32 What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: [z]thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

CHAPTER XIII.

Enticers to idolatry, 1—5; how near soever unto thee, 6—8; are to be stoned to death, 9—11. Idolatrous cities must be utterly destroyed, 12—18.

IF there arise among you [a]a prophet, or [b]a dreamer of dreams, and giveth thee a sign or a wonder,

2 And [c]the sign or the wonder[4] come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them;

3 Thou shalt [d]not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams: for the LORD your God proveth[e] you,[5] to know whether [f]ye love the LORD your God with all your heart, and with all your soul.

4 Ye shall [g]walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, [h]and cleave unto him.

5 And that [i]prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death;[6] because he hath spoken to[7] [k]turn you away from the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in: so shalt thou [l]put the evil away from the midst of thee.

6 ¶ If [m]thy brother, the son of thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, [n]which is as thine own soul, [o]entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, [p]which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers;

7 Namely, of the gods of the people which are round about you, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth;

8 Thou shalt not [q]consent unto him, nor hearken unto him; neither [r]shall thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him:

9 But [s]thou shalt surely kill him; [t]thine hand shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

10 And thou shalt [u]stone him with stones, that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God, [v]which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.[1]

11 And [w]all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is among you.[2]

12 ¶ If thou [x]shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given thee to dwell there, saying,

13 Certain men, the[3] [y]children of Belial, [z]are gone out from among you, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known;

14 Then shalt thou [a]enquire, and make search, and ask diligently: and, behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought among you;

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, [b]destroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it

4 Should any one pretend to the gift of prophecy, or to have had a divine revelation conveyed to him, and should give what he pretended to be a true sign from heaven, perhaps to predict from his knowledge of nature, an eclipse, or in any other way to deceive them into idolatry, they were not to hearken to him. They had already seen stupendous miracles wrought, to show that Jehovah alone is God, and any thing to the contrary they must at once reject as imposture. God cannot contradict himself.

5 God permits such impostors to arise to try the faith of his followers, and to put their religious experience to the test; for he who experimentally knows God, cannot be drawn away after idols. He who has no experimental knowledge of God, may believe anything. Experience of the truths contained in the word of God, can alone preserve any man from deism, or a false religion. 2 By this law, every Israelite was bound in conscience to inform against, to prosecute, and to assist at the execution of any one, even the nearest relation or friend, who attempted to persuade him to idolatry. Yet it is observable that parents and husbands are not expressly mentioned in the list of those who were to be thus accused; perhaps out of deference to the divine appointment of authority and subordination in families. This singular institution would powerfully operate to produce an abhorrence of idolatry, and to render every one afraid of harbouring a thought in his heart, which he could not disclose to his nearest relation without risking his life. Israel was under a peculiar covenant, of which idolatry was the grand forfeiture: and this could not be prevented from becoming a national sin, unless individuals, and even cities, that were guilty of it, were punished by public authority. They were in a special manner under the government of God as a nation, and this crime was, as it were, high treason. They were also a single nation surrounded by idolaters, & prone to idolatry themselves in a surprising degree. These reasons for punishing this crime by death do not now exist; and there is no command or precedent in the New Testament, to use the sword for matters merely of conscience towards God.—Scott.

God's children are not to disfigure themselves in mourning, 1, 2. What may, and what may not be eaten, 3; of beasts, 4—8; of fishes, 9, 10; of fowls, 11—20. That which dieth of itself must not be eaten, 21. Tithes of divine service, 22. Tithes and firstlings of cattle to be eaten before the Lord, 23—27. The third year's tithe of alms and charity, 28, 29.

YE are [a]the children of the LORD your God.[2] [b]Ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.[3]

2 For [c]thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.

3 ¶ Thou shalt not [d]eat any abominable thing.

4 These are [e]the beasts which ye shall eat: the ox, the sheep, and the goat,

5 The hart, and the roe-buck, and the fallow-deer,[4] and the wild goat,[5] and the pygarg,[6] and the wild ox,[7] and the chamois.[8]

6 And every beast that [f]parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat.

7 Nevertheless these [g]ye shall not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof, as the camel, and the hare, and the coney: for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore they are unclean unto you.

8 And [h]the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, nor [i]touch their dead carcase.

9 ¶ These [k]ye shall eat of all that are in the waters: all that have fins and scales shall ye eat:

10 And whatsoever hath not fins and scales ye may not eat; it is unclean unto you.

11 ¶ Of all clean birds ye shall eat.

12 But [l]these are they of which ye shall not eat: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

13 And the glede,[1] and the kite, and the vulture after his kind,

14 And every raven after his kind,

15 And the owl, and the nighthawk, and the cuckoo, and the hawk after his kind,

16 The little owl, and the great owl, and the swan,

17 And the pelican, and the gier-eagle, and the cormorant,

18 And the stork, and the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

19 And [m]every creeping thing that flieth is unclean unto you: they shall not be eaten.

20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.

21 ¶ Ye shall not eat of [n]any thing that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto [o]the stranger[2] that is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: for thou art [p]an holy people unto the LORD thy God. [q]Thou shalt not seethe a kid[3] in his mother's milk.

22 Thou shalt [r]truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year.

23 And thou shalt [s]eat before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose to place his name there, the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks; that thou mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always.

24 And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it; or [t]if the place be too far from thee, [u]which the LORD thy God shall choose to set his name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

The practice of shaving the head and throwing the hair into the fire, as an offering to the dead, was alike prevalent, & is for the same reasons forbidden.

4 The animal well known in the parks and pleasure grounds of this country.
5 Or ibex, remarkable for its sweeping pair of horns, and an additional coat of long shaggy hair, which forms its winter suit. Like the goat, of which it is a species, it frequents the highest ridges of the mountainous regions throughout Europe and Asia, especially in the western parts of the latter.
6 Called in the margin Bison, Heb. Dishon. There seems much uncertainty as to what animal is here meant. It seems to be a species of antelope.
7 The antelope, gazella of Linnæus. It is a native of north Africa. It is a most beautiful animal, its hair being white, spotted with yellow & red. The horns are long & slender.
8 The animal here called the chamois is in all probability the Camelo Pardalis, or giraffe; a singular and very beautiful animal. Several specimens have lately been exhibited in this country. It has a neck of extraordinary length and stands very high on its forelegs, to enable it to crop the twigs of trees.

1 Rsah. As the name contains an allusion to the extraordinarily keen and piercing sight of the vulture, we shall, perhaps, not be greatly mistaken in supposing that a species of that remarkable family was meant. It was perhaps the Neophuon percnopterros, or Pharaoh's chicken, one of the smallest of the vultures, and very common in all the warmer portions of the old world. It resembles the turkey buzzard of North and South America in its habit of assembling in large flocks, to perform the necessary and important office of clearing away the filth & offal which would necessarily decompose and render the air putrid and pernicious. Its plumage is white, excepting the quill fenthers, which are black; the naked skin of the neck and face is a livid yellow. The Egyptians attributed to their sense of the useful services of this bird the undue veneration in which they held it. —Pict. Bible.

2 This permission to give that which dieth of itself to the stranger sojourning among them, or to sell it to the alien passing through their land, clearly proves, that the prohibition to eat that which dieth of itself was ceremonial. It would not have been lawful in them to be accessary to what was immoral in others. It has been well observed, that as the blood was not separated from these animals, so this allowance likewise proves that the restriction from eating blood is not of moral obligation.

3 This prohibition is repeated for the third time. Various explanations have been given of it; among others, that milk here is used for butter, & that the object of it was to force the Israelites to the use of oil, and the consequent cultivation of the olive for purposes of cookery, that they might not return to the nomade or wandering shepherd life, but cultivate their own land. The explanation already given, Ex. 34. 26, that the juice so obtained was sprinkled as an idolatrous offering, is the true one. All these ceremonial injunctions had a moral and spiritual end.

27 And [y]the Levite that is within thy gates; thou shalt not forsake him: for [z]he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

28 ¶ At [a]the end of three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates:

29 And the Levite, (because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the[b] stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; [c]that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest.[2]

CHAPTER XV.

The seventh year a year of release for the poor, 1—6. It must be no hindrance to lending or giving, 7—11. An Hebrew servant, 12—15, except he will not depart, must in the seventh year go forth free and well furnished, 16—18. All firstling males of the cattle are to be sanctified unto the Lord, 19—23.

AT the end of every [a]seven years thou shalt make a release.

2 And this is the manner of the release: Every creditor[3] that lendeth ought unto his neighbour shall release it; he shall not [b]exact it[4] of his neighbour, or of his brother; because it is called the LORD's release.

3 Of [c]a foreigner thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release;[5]

4 Save[6] when there shall be no poor[7] among you; for the LORD shall [d]greatly bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it:

5 [e]Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

6 For the LORD thy God blesseth thee, as he promised thee:[8] and [f]thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow: and [g]thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee.

2 They were required to bring a second tithe from the produce of the land, which with that appropriated to the maintenance of the Levites, formed a fifth part. They were to bring this second tithe to Jerusalem, two years together, & religiously to feast upon it, and the third year they were to spend it charitably and hospitably. This law was well fitted to promote cheerfulness, kindness, and charity.

2 The righteous and merciful demands of the divine law excite the dormant enmity of man's wicked heart, and prove an occasion of increasing his guilt, Ro. 7. 7-14; for the same law condemns every rising thought of sin. The Israelites were therefore exhorted to beware, lest this equitable statute should awaken their covetousness, and lest they should evade it, by refusing to lend the poor in their distress, or by only lending them in a niggardly and grudging manner. The caution may be considered as, in this respect, a divinely inspired comment on the law of 'loving our neighbour as ourselves.'

3 It is evident that Moses never expected, as human nature is now constituted, that there should be no poor in the land. Yet it has been remarked, that he does not seem to have contemplated mendicancy, or regular vagrant begging, as a profession, there not being even a noun descriptive of it in the Hebrew; and in the New Testament, beggars are described as persons disabled from working.

8 But [i]thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth.

12 And [t]thou shall remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt: and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

13 ¶ Thou shalt observe [u]the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy corn[6] and thy wine.

1 This form of procedure was gone through under the cognizance of the magistrate, Ex.21. 5, 6. Whatever was the meaning or origin of this practice, it was one common in the east, and is very frequently alluded to by ancient heathen writers. Some such regulations were of great importance both to the slave, to show that there was, on the one hand, no claim to detain him beyond the period of release, if he did not desire it; and on the other, no pretence for turning him off when old or enfeebled, or unable to provide for himself. It appears from the passage, that female servants were purchased for labour only, as well as males, & that they were under the same regulation.

Thither the males were required to come, both at the passover and the two other great feasts, unless unavoidably prevented; and the women, though not commanded, frequently attended them.

2 Some suppose that in cases of urgent necessity, those who celebrated the passover might return home the next morning after eating it. Others suppose the phrase 'in the morning,' to mean, the next morning after the conclusion of the feasts; the celebration of which employed the day on which the passover was eaten, six intervening days, and the last day of the solemn assembly; in all eight days, from the fourteenth to the twenty-first day inclusive.

4 This was one of the three great annual festivals of the Jews, and thus called on account of its being seven weeks, or, according to the Hebrew phrase, a week of weeks, from the first day of the passover festival. It is also 'the feast of harvest,' (Ex. 23. 16.) that is, of the wheat harvest, the first-fruits of which were offered on this occasion, whence it is also called, 'the day of the first-fruits,' (Nu.28.26.) This offering consisted of 'two loaves of fine flower baked with leaven,' to which were added the animal sacrifices specified in Lev. 23. 18, 19. The primary object of the festival was undoubtedly to thank God for the blessings of the season. In De. 26. 5-11, is given the beautiful form of thanksgiving which was appointed to be used on this occasion. It was one of the festivals at which all the adult males resorted to Jerusalem; and the vastness and mingled character of the concourse, in the later years of the Hebrew polity, is alluded to in Acts 1. 2; 20. 16.

in the place which the LORD shall choose; [x]because the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thine increase, and in all the works of thine hands; therefore thou shalt surely rejoice.

16 ¶ [y]Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose; in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles: and [z]they shall not appear before the LORD empty.

17 Every man shall give as[1] he [a]is able, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee.[2]

18 ¶ [b]Judges and officers shalt thou make thee in all thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, throughout thy tribes: and they shall judge the people with just judgment.

19 Thou shalt not [c]wrest judgment; thou shalt not [d]respect persons, neither take a gift: for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the words[3] of the righteous.[4]

20 That[5] which is [e]altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest live,[f] and inherit the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

21 ¶ Thou shalt not [g]plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the LORD thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

22 Neither shalt thou set thee [h]up any image,[6] [i]which the LORD thy God hateth.

CHAPTER XVII.

The things sacrificed must be sound, 1. Idolaters must be slain, 2—7. Hard controversies are to be determined by the priests and judges, 8—11. The contemner of that determination must die, 12, 13. The election, 14, 15; and duty of a king, 16—20.

THOU [a]shalt not sacrifice unto the LORD thy God any bullock or sheep[7] wherein is blemish, or [b]any evil-favouredness: [c]for that is an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

2 ¶ If there be found among you, within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God giveth thee, [d]man or woman, that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of the LORD thy God, [e]in transgressing his covenant,

3 And hath gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, either [f]the sun, or moon, or any of the host of heaven, [g]which I have not commanded;[1]

4 And it be told thee, and thou hast heard of it, and [h]enquired diligently, and, behold, it be true, and the thing certain that such abomination is wrought in Israel;

5 Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman, which have committed that wicked thing, unto thy gates,[2] even that man or that woman, and shalt [i]stone them with stones, till they die.

6 At [k]the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death.

7 The [l]hands of the witnesses[3] shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people: [m]so thou shalt put the evil away from among you.

8 ¶ If there [n]arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, [o]between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy, within thy gates; then shalt thou arise, and [p]get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:

9 And thou shalt come unto [q]the priests the Levites, and unto the [4]judge that shall be in those days, and enquire; and [r]they shall shew thee the sentence of judgment.

10 And [s]thou shalt do according to the sentence which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee:

11 According to [t]the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall tell thee, thou shalt do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall shew thee, [u]to the right hand, nor to the left.

12 And the man that [v]will do presumptuously, and[5] will not hearken unto [w]the priest that standeth to minister there before the LORD thy God, or unto the judge, even that man shall

2 In the 16th and 17th verses, the laws concerning the three solemn feasts are summed up. The general commands concerning them are, 1. That all the males must then make their personal appearance before God, that by their frequent meeting to worship God, at the same place and by the same rule, they might be kept faithful and constant to that holy religion which was established among them. 2. That none must appear before God empty, but every man must bring some offering or other, in token of a dependence upon God, and gratitude to him. And God was not unreasonable in his demands, let every man but give as he was able, and no more was expected. The same is still the rule of charity, 1Co. 16. 2.

2 The gates were the places of judgment. The expression, 'within any of thy gates,' ver. 2, means, 'in any of their cities,' or perhaps within the compass of their authority, any inhabitants of their land. In this sense the commission to execute this sentence did not extend to all idolators wherever found. Those within their gates, under their authority, who were guilty of this crime, broke the national covenant, did dishonour not only to the God of heaven and earth, but to the covenant God & King of Israel, and had it been permitted, it was a forfeiture of the national covenant and all its blessings.

3 Here are two securities against false accusations in this crime. 1. Such an accusation must not be sustained before a judge, when made on the testimony of one witness, where human life is involved, of which God, in his word, is very careful. 2. Where the witnesses must be the executioners, they will be more careful not to incur thus the guilt of direct murder, than perhaps to be guilty of it by false accusation.

1 In every state there must be some final award from which there lies no appeal, and that must be submitted to, even though in some cases it should be unjust; but this gives no countenance to the monstrous claim, which some have made, of being absolute interpreters of doctrines and precepts, in matters of conscience, to which all ought to submit, however evidently, their decisions contradict the word of God. In this case it suffices to say, 'we must obey' and believe 'God rather than man;' as Peter replied, to the successors of those very persons to whom this authority was originally given, and on whom it had at that time devolved; Ac. 4.13-22; 5. 29-31.—Scott.

2 They were not to choose a stranger who should seduce them to idolatry. But this does not mean that they were not to obey a stranger, under whose authority they were in providence placed. See Je. 27.2-17; 29. 4-7. God did not command or advise them to choose a king; on the contrary, they sinned when they asked one. Yet He laid down rules for regulating them and him. In prescribing laws, therefore, to regulate slavery, divorce, or polygamy, God does not sanction this practice. Their lawfulness must be tried by ordinary scripture principles.

3 These prohibitions relate to every species of idolatry and superstition, which had for their object to seek information, guidance, or protection from any but God himself, in the use of his word, & in following the leadings of his providence. They all implied a denial of his perfections and government, — a worshipping of the creature, rather than the Creator; and were, by whomsoever practised, an abomination to the Lord, and were the causes of the destruction of the Canaanites, and would be of themselves, if they followed them.

6 This is a prediction of Christ, the great antitype of Moses. He was like unto Moses in a great variety of ways. The parallel is too extensive to be drawn here: Moses was a type of Christ in the manner of his birth under a tyrant, who sought his life in its preservation, in his contempt of worldly honours, in his rejection by his brethren, in his delivering his people, in his meekness and patience, in his being a prophet, lawgiver, king & priest, in his mighty works, in dividing the sea, feeding the people; in his communion with God, and in many other ways, but above all in his mediation and intercession.—See Scott and Clarke's Commentaries.

CHAPTER XIX.

The cities of refuge, 1—3. The privilege thereof for the manslayer, 4—13. The land-mark is not to be removed, 14. Two witnesses at the least to prove a fact, 15. The punishment of a false witness, 16—21.

WHEN the LORD thy God [a]hath cut off the nations, whose land the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou succeedest[2] them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their houses;

2 Thou shalt [b]separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

3 Thou shalt [c]prepare thee a way, and divide the coast of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to inherit, into three[3] parts, that every slayer may flee thither.

1 This promise following so close upon the preceding prohibition, seems evidently to imply, that instead of such false diviners and guides, God should give them an infallible guide who should instruct them in all that it was necessary to know, for present duty & peace, and future safety; to him they were to hearken, and him they were to obey. And He was to be a mediator between God and them, such as they had desired in Horeb, without knowing all that was implied in their own prayer, and which was agreeable to the mind and will of God.

3 The appointment of cities of refuge we have had in Exod.21.13; Num. 35. 10, &c.; and in Deut. 4. 41-43. Three cities had been already appointed on the east of Jordan, and now they are ordered, when settled in the other part, to appoint three more. They are ordered to 'prepare a way' to these cities, and the Jews say that this refers to the keeping the way to them in good order, broad & level, free of all hindrances of any kind. Once every year the magistrates of every city were obliged to inspect the roads, to see that they were in good condition & to order whatever repairs were necessary. The cities were to be placed at equal distances, the country being divided into three equal parts, and along the roads, or where two ways met, proper posts were to be set up, with the word, Miklat, miklat, Refuge, refuge, engraven on them in large letters.

7 Three cities more are to be added, if their territories were enlarged, which they should be if they kept the commandments of God. They did not, and this promise they confess was not fulfilled. 'Yet the holy blessed God, say they, did not command it in vain, for in the days of Messiah the Prince, three other cities shall be added to these six; they expect it to be fulfilled in the letter, but we know that in Christ it has its spiritual accomplishment, for the borders of the gospel Israel are enlarged, according to the promise, & in Christ, the Lord, our righteousness, refuge is provided for those that by faith fly unto him.' —Henry.

9 It is here declared that these cities of refuge are typical of Christ, and the ready access to him by faith; but they can be no protection to the wilful murderer, for he must be dragged thence & delivered over to the magistrates, & justice executed against him. Sanctuary, so long practised, and even still to a certain extent continued, in the Romish Church, to criminals, is contrary to the principles of justice, and an encouragement to crime. This may be alluded to, says Henry, to show that in Jesus Christ there is no refuge for presumptuous sinners, that 'go on still in their trespasses.' If we thus 'sin wilfully,' sin, and go on in it, 'there remaineth no sacrifice,' He. x. 26. Those that flee to Christ from their sins, shall be safe in him, but not those that expect to be sheltered by him in their sins. Salvation itself cannot save such, divine justice will fetch them even from the city of refuge, the protection of which they are not entitled to.

4 ¶ And this is the case of [4]the slayer which shall flee thither, that he may live: whoso killeth his neighbour [1]ignorantly, whom he hated not [1]in time past;

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the head[2] slippeth from the helve,[3] and lighteth[4] upon his neighbour, that he die; [e]he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live:

6 Lest [f]the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and slay[5] him; whereas he was [g]not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not in[6] time past.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

8 And if the LORD thy God [h]enlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers;

9 [i]If thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the LORD thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; then shalt thou add three cities more[7] for thee, besides these three:

10 That [k]innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee.

11 ¶ But [l]if any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him mortally[8] that he die, and fleeth into one of these cities;

12 Then the elders of his city shall send and [m]fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13 [n]Thine eye shall not pity [9]him: but [o]thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

at the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.[1]

15 ¶ One witness shall not rise up against a man for any iniquity, or for any sin, in any sin that he sinneth: [q]at the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall the matter be established.

16 ¶ If [r]a false witness rise up against any man, to testify against him that[2] which is wrong;

17 Then both the men, between whom the controversy is, shall stand before the LORD, [s]before the priests and the judges which shall be in those days:

18 And the judges shall make [t]diligent inquisition: and, behold, if the witness be a false witness, and hath testified falsely against his brother;

19 Then [u]shall ye do unto him as he had thought to have done unto his brother: [v]so shalt thou put the evil away from among you.[3]

20 And those which remain shall hear,[w] and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you.

21 And [x]thine eye shall not pity; but [y]life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

The priest's exhortation to encourage the people to battle, 1—4. The officers' proclamation who are to be dismissed from the war, 5—9. How to use the cities that accept or refuse the proclamation of peace, 10—15. What cities must be devoted, 16—18. Trees for man's meat must not be destroyed in the siege, 19, 20.

WHEN thou [a]goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses[b][4] and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: [c]the LORD thy God is with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2 And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that [d]the priest shall approach and speak unto the people,

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel; Ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies: [e]let not your hearts faint; fear[5] not, and do not tremble,[6] neither [f]be ye terrified because of them:

For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, [g]to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

5 ¶ And the [h]officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not [i]dedicated it? let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it.

6 And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet eaten[1] of it? let him also go and return unto his house, [k]lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it.

7 And what man is there that hath [l]betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, [m]lest he die in battle, and another man take her.

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, What man is there that is [n]fearful and faint-hearted? let him go and return unto his house, [o]lest his brethren's heart faint[2] as well as his heart.[3]

9 And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies to[4] lead the people.

10 ¶ When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, [p]then proclaim peace unto it.

11 And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall be, that all the people that is found therein shall be [q]tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee.[5]

12 And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it:

13 And when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, [r]thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword:

14 But [s]the women, and the little ones, and the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou take[6] unto thyself; and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which are not of the cities of these nations.

16 But [t]of the cities of these people,

1 As land-marks constituted the customary method of distinguishing landed property in those days, and do so even to the present day in the East, great care was taken of them by ancient nations. Removing them would be a crime similar to forging, altering, destroying, or concealing the title-deeds of estates at this day; and it would occasion atrocious injustice, & make way for disputes and lawsuits.

This would have a great effect in protecting the life, character, and property of the Israelites, and preventing malicious accusations.

4 The Israelites themselves were forbidden the use of horses in battle, that they might depend on God alone; and they are warned not to be afraid of them when brought against them, but to remember the mighty works of the Lord, and to rely on his aid. The priests are enjoined to encourage them to trust in Jehovah, and to remind them how He had already fought for them. It is supposed that one of the most considerable of the priests always accompanied them in the war, who the Jews say, was anointed for the purpose, and called the anointed of the war, and might be thus a type of Christ.

3 These regulations contained in the verses from the 5th to the 8th, inclusive, are very singular. They indicate a remarkable degree of tenderness on the one hand, and of wisdom on the other; tenderness, to all the allowable affections of human nature, intimating too that God could protect them without the necessity of their violation; and wisdom, inasmuch as men in such circumstances would not have their hearts in the war, but would enter on it with reluctance, have their minds and affections elsewhere, and be more ready to fail in the hour of need; and their slackness or cowardice would be ruinous to others. God would also teach them solely to depend upon himself; & while they should use all proper means, he could save them by many or by few. He taught them this lesson very remarkably in the case of Gideon & his army, who defeated the vast host of the Midianites without themselves striking a blow, see Judges vii. In the 5th verse, allusion is made to the custom among the Israelites, of entering their houses by a cheerful feast with their friends, and solemnly placing it under the protection of God.

In other words, we have first the general law, & then the exceptions.

1 'We must suppose,' says Scott, on verses 10-18, 'in the cases here intended, that the Israelites had some warrantable cause of levying war; which covetousness, ambition, and the thirst of dominion could not be. When, therefore, they had been injured or assaulted by any foreign nation, they were required to proceed in the manner here prescribed; for the Lord purposed by these means to enlarge their dominions, whilst they continued obedient. There were doubtless wise reasons why they were not only allowed, but commanded, to put to death all the males who were capable of resistance. The lives and property of all men are the Lord's, forfeited to his justice, to be disposed of at his pleasure and for his glory. These regulations, however, are not the rule of our conduct, which must be directed by the general law of love; and that prohibits unnecessary bloodshed & plunder, in war as well as in peace. One reason of this severity (justly merited) might be, to shadow forth the fatal consequences of persisting in rebellion and enmity against God, and in contempt of the proposal of peace and reconciliation set before men in the gospel.'

5 This follows very properly after the law he had delivered about making war; because then the bodies of dead men were most frequently found; about which the wisest lawgivers took the greatest care that inquisition should be made how and by whom they were slain. This appears by Plato, who, in his ninth book, De Legibus, hath a law something like to this, though far short of the solemnity that is here required to be used.—Patrick.

3 This law was enacted to increase the horror of murder, and to promote the detection of the criminal, by a public and solemn transaction, under the management of the magistrates of the nearest city, associated with the priests; by putting numbers upon inquiry; by calling upon every one to clear himself; and by warning all men not to conceal the criminal. The 'heifer, which had not drawn in the yoke,' represented the murderer, the son of Belial, who refused to bear the yoke of God's law: and the 'rough valley' might denote the worthlessness of the criminal's character, or the disagreeableness of the transaction. 'Striking off the neck of the heifer,' not by the priests but by the elders, expressed the desert of the criminal, & their readiness thus to punish him if they could detect him. 'Washing their hands' was an external sign of the protestation of innocence and ignorance concerning the murder, which they were required to make, Mat. 27. 24, 25; the prayer, which the priests are supposed to have added, strongly declared that murder contaminates, and leaves guilt upon, everyland & every person, that does not endeavour by all proper means to bring the criminal to condign punishment, Nu. 35. 31-34; and the whole shadowed forth the atonement and intercession of Christ, thro' which iniquity is pardoned by a merciful God to his redeemed people.—Scott.

7 And they shall answer and say, [h]Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, and [i]lay not innocent blood unto[2] thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven [3]them.

9 So [k]shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, [l]when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

10 ¶ When [m]thou goest forth to war against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive,

11 And seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast [n]a desire unto her, [o]that thou wouldest have her to thy wife;

12 Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house, and [p]she shall shave her head, and pare[4] her nails;

13 And she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and [q]bewail her father and her mother a full month: and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife.

14 And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; but [r]thou shalt not sell her at all for money, thou shalt not make merchandize of her,[5] [s]because thou hast humbled her.

15 ¶ If a man have [t]two wives, one beloved, and another hated, and they have born him children, both the beloved and the hated; and if the first-born son be her's that was hated:

19 Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, [b]and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place:

20 And they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice; [c]he is a glutton and a drunkard.

21 And [d]all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die: [e]so shalt thou put evil away from among you; and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

22 ¶ And if a man have committed [f]sin worthy of death, and he be to be put to death, and [g]thou hang him on a tree;

23 His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day; (for [h]he that is hanged is accursed[1] of God;)[2] that [i]thy land be not defiled, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not; then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and [c]thou shalt restore it to him again.[3]

3 In like manner shalt thou do with his ass, and so shalt thou do with his raiment; and with all lost thing of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do likewise: thou mayest not hide thyself.

2 The Jews did not put criminals to death either by strangulation or crucifixion; the latter, by which our Lord suffered, was a Roman punishment. But they frequently suspended the bodies after they were dead, in detestation of their crimes, and for a public example; but did not permit the bodies to hang all night: because those so executed were accounted accursed, and their thus hanging would defile the land. In this there was, doubtless, a typical allusion to the Lord Jesus Christ, Ga. 3.10-14.

3 He was not merely to give notice to the owner where he saw them, but take care himself to bring them back, that they might not go farther astray, and perhaps be quite lost before the owner could have notice of them. This, & many that follow, are precepts of humanity, and care of each other's welfare, without which society could not be preserved. The owner was to pay the charges of keeping the beast, from the time it was brought to the house of him who found it. But if nobody could prove a right in the beasts that were lost, they became his who found them and he might lawfully keep them; for no other owner appearing they were his that was in present possession of them. In some places the law was to give them in such case to the poor. The kindness that was commanded to be shown in reference to an enemy, Ex. 23. 4, &c. is here required to be much more done for a neighbour, though he was not an Israelite, for the law is consonant to natural equity.—Henry.

2 The prohibition no doubt was intended to exclude the customs of the heathen worshippers, who shamefully violated it for the worst of purposes; yet it is of 'moral tendency, and of generalobligation; as it is added, 'for all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord,' which is never annexed to a 'merely ceremonial institution. The practice prohibited is not only indecent and of bad appearance, but has in all ages been made subservient to lewdness, & to obtain opportunities of perpetrating the grossest crimes; to prevent which it is of great importance that the distinction of the sexes should be visibly marked in their garments, without variation. . . . The spirit of the commandment also requires the distinction of the appearance, deportment and occupation of the sexes.—Scott.

3 The houses of Eastern nations, have generally flat roofs. They are usually made of reeds or twigs of trees, and the like, formed into a compact mass, covered with earth or clay, smoothed and hardened for resisting the rain. The people are in the habit of resorting to the roof to enjoy the cool breeze, to converse and even to sleep. A parapet, therefore, becomes indispensably necessary. As all eastern houses have such parapet of mud or brick, on the outside toward the street, both for safety and privacy, the writer of the notes to the Pict. Bible supposes that privacy is the chief object, as the side of the roof overlooking the inner court, round which the house is generally built, is usually less guarded, and that this command to the Israelites respected it also. Frequent allusion is made to these flat roofs, not only in the scriptures but in some ancient heathen writers.

6 ¶ If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, [g]thou shalt not take the dam with the young;

7 But thou shalt in any wise let the dam go, and take the young to thee: [h]that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

not thy daughter a maid; and yet these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him;

19 And they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel;[1] and she shall be his wife;[2] [g]he may not put her away all his days.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel:

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel[3] to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall stone[r] her with stones that she die: because [s]she hath wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house: [t]so shalt thou put evil away from among you.

22 ¶ If [u]a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

23 ¶ If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed[v] unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her;

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that they die; the damsel, because she cried not, being in the city;[4] and the man, because he hath humbled his neighbour's [w]wife: so[x] thou shalt put away evil from among you.

25 ¶ But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man force[5] her, and lie with her: then the man only that lay with her shall die:

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel [y]no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter:

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel [z]cried, and there was none to save her.

28 ¶ If a man find [a]a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her, and lie with her, and they be found;

1 Laid the most infamous crime to the charge of an innocent virgin, & that out of hatred to her, and love to his money. For if he would have put her away according to the law of divorce, no man could have hindered him, as Maimonides observes; but then he must have paid her fifty shekels, which they take to be the dowry of virgins, mentioned Ex. 22. 16, 17. To keep which to himself, & to be rid of her, he brought this scandalous action against her, for which he was thus justly punished.—Patrick.

2 Besides the two former punishments in his body and his purse, he was deprived of the common benefit which all men had who did not like their wives, which was to sue out a divorce. Here Maimonides calls upon his readers to admire the wise ordination of God, which appears in his judgments as well as in his works. For, because this man took away his wife's reputation, therefore God ordered him to be rendered vile, by being whipped; & because he basely contrived to save her dowry of fifty shekels, he ordered to be amerced as much more; & because he indulged his lust, and sought nothing but his pleasure, therefore he was bound to keep her as long as she lived.—See Patrick.

3 This law(v.13-21), like many others, was intended to prevent wickedness by the fear of detection and punishment. The dread of a future discovery, productive of such tremendous consequences, could not fail to increase the natural barriers of chastity, and counteract the effects of sinful passions and strong temptations, among the young women of Israel. And it would also prevent a hard-hearted husband from robbing his injured wife of her reputation, when his affections were transferred to another object.—Scott.

4 Not to cry for help was an evidence of consent in the crime, and being found in the city, a place of company and diversion, when she should have kept under the protection of her father's house, was an evidence against her.

1 'The violation of chastity being so great a wickedness, & in females especially of such fatal consequences, how cautious should they (should all) be what company they keep, what places they frequent, to what language they listen, what books they read, and into what situations they venture! Indeed both men and women should seriously and daily meditate on God's abhorrence of unchastity; on the certain detection and punishment of the wicked in a future state, and the fatal effects which will probably follow in this world; that their minds may be fortified against temptation, by a dread of sin & of its consequences. How carefully should parents keep out of the sight and way of their children, whatever can pollute their imaginations or inflame their passions! and how should all join in execrating those wretches, who wantonly bring ruin upon their fellow-creatures for the sake of gratifying a mean sensual inclination! Nor is the cruelty of those wretches much less to be abhorred, who rob the innocent of their reputation by infamous slanders, from malice or any other base passion. We should never forget the peculiar atrociousness of adultery in every form, and the punishment which awaits those who are guilty of it. We may also recollect, that all deception in contracting marriage is both very wicked, and a source of future misery; that the nearer we stand related to God, the more inexcusable are our crimes, 'folly in Israel' being worse than elsewhere.—Scott on ver. 22-30.

then shall he go abroad out of the camp; he shall not come within the camp:

11 But it shall be, [q] when evening cometh[1] on, he shall [r] wash himself with water; and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again.

12 ¶ Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad:

13 And thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon; and it shall be when thou wilt[2] ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back and [s] cover that which cometh from thee:

14 For the LORD thy God [t] walketh in the midst of thy camp,[3] to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy, that he see no unclean[4] thing in thee, and turn away from thee.

15 ¶ Thou [u] shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee:

16 He [v] shall dwell with thee, even among you, in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates, where it liketh[5] him best: [w] thou shalt not oppress him.[6]

17 ¶ There [x] shall be no whore[7] of the daughters of Israel, nor a [y] sodomite of the sons of Israel.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not bring the [z] hire of a whore, or the price [a] of a dog, into the house of the LORD thy God [b] for any vow; for even both these are abomination[8] unto the LORD thy God.

19 ¶ Thou shalt not [c] lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury.

20 Unto [d] a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury, but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury; [e] that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

21 ¶ [f] When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

8 Such vile crimes, and the perpetrators of them, are to be discouraged and extirpated by the civil magistrate to the uttermost. They were not to be acknowledged by public authority, far less encouraged. If such wretches were to attempt to sanctify their conduct, or to atone for their enormities, by dedicating a part of their infamous gains to religious purposes, their offerings were to be respected as an abomination. 'If the price of a dog,' says Scott, 'be understood literally, not only the meanness of the animals, but their greediness, and resemblance of shamelessly lewd persons, must be considered as the reason of the restriction, and the extraordinary association. Many, however, understand it of the hire of unnatural crimes; yet figurative language seems hardly admissable in statutes.'

4 This is to be understood as part of the judicial law, and to be carried into effect under the eye of the civil magistrate. The moral law of the seventh commandment, and all that is implied in it, as illustrated and enforced by our Lord, still remained the same. And the permission of separation on the terms here specified was not a relaxation of the moral law, but an accommodation of the judicial to the existing habits and circumstances of the people of Israel, with the benevolent intention of preventing cruelty to those wives who might be discovered to have some bodily defect, disease, or ceremonial defilement. But to prevent rash and capricious divorces, the husband in such a case must have a regularly prepared and authenticated legal instrument; and the parties can never come together again. Our Lord tells us the reason of this permission of the judicial law: 'because of the hardness of their hearts —but from the beginning it was not so.' In the moral law as interpreted by him, it is expressly prohibited.

The law of divorce, 1—4. A new married man is exempt from war, 5. Of pledges, 6, 10. Of manstealers, 7. Of leprosy, 8—13. The hire is to be given, 14—16. Of justice, 17, 18. Of charity, 19—22.

WHEN a man [a] hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness[2] in her; then [b] let him write her a bill of divorcement,[3] and give it in her hand, [c] and send her out of his [4] house.

2 And when she is departed out of his house, [d] she may go and be another man's wife.

3 And if the latter husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife;

4 [e] Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and [f] thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

5 ¶ When a [g] man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, neither[5] shall he be charged with any business; but he shall be free at home one year, and shall [h] cheer up his wife which he hath taken.

6 ¶ No man [i] shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge[6]: for he taketh a man's [k] life to pledge.

or selleth him; [m]then that thief shall die: [n]and thou shalt put evil away from among you.[1]

8 ¶ Take heed in [o]the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them, so ye shall observe to do.

9 [p]Remember what the LORD thy God did unto [q]Miriam[2] by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.

10 ¶ When [r]thou dost lend[3] thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house[4] to fetch his pledge.

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee.

12 And [s]if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge:

13 In any case thou shalt [t]deliver him the pledge again when [u]the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and bless thee: and it shall[v] be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not [w]oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates:

15 At [x]his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and setteth[5] his heart upon it: [y]lest he cry against thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee.

16 ¶ The [z]father shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

17 ¶ Thou shalt not [a]pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless, [b]nor take a widow's raiment to pledge:

18 But [c]thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

19 ¶ When [d]thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: [e]it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow; that the LORD thy God [f]may bless thee in all the work of thine hands.

20 When thou beatest thine olive-tree, thou shalt not go[1] over the boughs again: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

21 When thou [g]gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it afterward:[2] it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

22 And [h]thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

3 Many crimes had been mentioned for which no punishment was specified. In all these cases it is supposed, that scourging was used at the discretion of the magistrate, & according to the degree and aggravations of the crime. This punishment was inflicted in open court, under the inspection of the judge, & without respect to the rank of the criminal. But lest the malefactor should seem vile, as a slave or a beast, the number of forty stripes must not be exceeded; & lest they should miscount, the Jewish magistrates always confined themselves to thirty-nine, which St Paul repeatedly endured, 2 Co. 11. 24. Punishment is administered in the East in the same way to this day, the bastinado being inflicted in the presence of the judge.

1 If a married man died without issue, his brother, or near kinsman, was required to marry the widow; and the eldest son of this marriage inherited the estate of the deceased, and thus preserved his name in the genealogies. If any one refused to comply with this custom, being averse from the person or character of the widow, he must be publicly disgraced. By pulling off the shoe he was rendered like the slaves, who generally went barefoot; and the widow even spit in, or before, his face, in contempt of the man who had thus disgraced her, and shown such disrespect to the memory of the deceased. It is not agreed among commentators, whether married men were concerned in this law or not; and it is not material to us, as it had reference to a particular case which no longer exists, & our duty is not in the least affected by the determination, Ru. 4. 1-10; Mat. 22. 23-33.—Scott.

2 In the margin, 'a stone and a stone,' indicating that stones, the due weight of which was properly ascertained, were the weights then most commonly in use. The phrase, 'a stone weight,' indicates the same to have been, and indeed it still is, used, among ourselves. It is obvious that as stones vary greatly in their weight in proportion to their size, deception was easy in this way. The dealer having a stone of different weights, one light to sell with, and another heavier to buy with, even when the apparent size was the same, could not be so easily detected. They were forbidden therefore to have such weights in their houses; and it is called like the greatest crimes, an abomination to the Lord.

1 All the people, when settled in Canaan, were required to present annually some part of its several kinds of fruits, and the first ripe of each, of which the priests had the use, after it had been solemnly offered to God, with a thankful acknowledgment of his faithfulness, and after it had been placed before the altar. The quantity was not prescribed, ch. 15. 13-15; for it was a free-will-offering, to the denial of their own appetite, which would especially crave the first ripe fruit, Mic. 7. 1. Every production would not be ripe at the same time, and some could not be preserved till the rest were ready. It is therefore generally thought that these first-fruits were presented at the feast of Pentecost, by those who went up together to worship; but we must suppose, that the best & choicest and such as could be preserved, were thus presented, and the rest, as occasion required, were offered to the priests in their several cities, or as others think, carried to the sanctuary at some other time.—Scott.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The confession of him that offereth the basket of first-fruits, 1—11. The prayer of him that giveth his third year's tithes, 12—15. The covenant between God and the people, 16—19.

AND it shall be, [a]when thou art come in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein,

2 That [b]thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt [c]go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name there.

3 And thou shalt go unto [d]the priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country [e]which the LORD sware unto our fathers for to give us.

4 And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down [f]before the altar of the LORD thy God.[1]

5 And thou shalt speak and say before the LORD thy God, [g]A Syrian [h]ready to perish[2] was my father; and [i]he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with [k]a few, and [l]became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous:

6 And [m]the Egyptians evil entreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage:

7 And when [n]we cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and [o]looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression:

8 And [p]the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with great terribleness, and with signs, and with wonders:

9 And [q]he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even [r]a land that floweth with milk and honey:

10 And now, behold, [s]I have brought the first-fruits of the land which thou, O LORD, hast given me. [t]And thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, and[u] worship before the LORD thy God.

11 And thou shalt [v]rejoice in every good thing[1] which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

12 ¶ When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithes of thine increase[w] the third year, which is the year of tithing, and [x]hast given it unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled;

13 Then thou shalt say before the LORD thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the Levite,[y] and unto the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: [z]I have not transgressed thy commandments, neither have I [a]forgotten them.

14 I have not [b]eaten thereof in my mourning, neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for [c]the dead: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou hast commanded me:

15 [d]Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and [e]bless thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou swarest unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.[2]

16 ¶ [f]This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore [g]keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

17 Thou hast [h]avouched the LORD this day to be thy God, [i]and to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and to [k]hearken unto his voice:

18 And [l]the LORD had avouched thee this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promised thee, and that thou shouldest keep all his commandments;

19 And to make thee [m]high above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.[1]

2 This related to the second tithe before considered, (ch.14. 22-29.) 'Two years together they paid the Levites' tithe, and the festival tithe; but in the third year, they paid the Levites' tithe, and the poor man's tithe; that is, what was wont in other years to be spent in feasting, was wholly spent every third year upon the poor.'(Mede, quoted by Patrick.) Once in three years, this solemn protestation was required from every proprietor of land in Canaan, probably in the presence of the priests at the tabernacle. They all declared, that the whole of this second tithe had been employed to those purposes for which it was appropriated, & that no part had been used by them in mourning, or at funerals, which rendered them unclean; or in any superstitious ceremony, in imitation of the idolators around them. As the matter lay very much between God and their conscience, this protestation was the more suitable, and would tend both to remind them of their duty, & render them afraid of neglecting it, (ch. 12. 5-7; 18. 6-8.)—Scott.

1 Every Israelite seems here addressed, as having personally acceded to the national covenant to obey and serve God; & Jehovah engages to be their God and peculiarly to bless them. This is descriptive of the covenant relation of God and his redeemed people.

CHAP. XXVII.

The people are commanded to write the law upon stones, 1—4; and to build an altar of whole stones, 5—10. The tribes divided on Gerizim and Ebal, 11—13. The curses to be pronounced on mount Ebal, 14—26.

AND Moses, with the elders of Israel, commanded the people, saying, [a]Keep all the commandments which I command you this day.

2 And it shall be, [b]on the day when ye shall pass over Jordan [c]unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up [d]great stones, and plaster them with plaster.

3 And [e]thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law,[2] when thou art passed over; that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, [f]a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee.

4 Therefore it shall be, when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, [g]in mount Ebal,[3] and thou shalt plaster them with plaster.

5 And [h]there shalt thou build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones: [i]thou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

6 Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones; and thou shalt offer [k]burnt-offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God:

7 And thou shalt offer [l]peace-offerings, and shalt eat there, and [m]rejoice before the LORD thy God.

8 And [n]thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law [o]very plainly.

9 ¶ And Moses, and the priests the Levites, spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; [p]this day thou art become the people of the LORD thy God.

10 Thou [q]shalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes, which I command thee this day.

11 ¶ And Moses charged the people the same day, saying,

2 Some expositors think, that the whole book of Deuteronomy was written on these plastered stones, and that they were twelve in number, according to the tribes of Israel. Others restrict the writing to the preceptive part of it, others to the ten commandments only; while many are of opinion that the latter part of this chapter alone was meant. Josephus was of opinion, that the blessings and the curses themselves, formed the subject of this inscription. Joshua seems to favour this idea when he says, (ch. 8. 39.) 'He read all the words of the law, the blessings and curses.' Scott says, 'Indeed as the stones were placed upon mount Ebal, whence the curses were denounced, it is probable that these were added; but we may conclude, that at least the ten commandments, & the great outlines of the whole law, were likewise inscribed in the most legible manner.'

3 Ebal and Gerizim are two closely adjoining mountains, separated by a narrow valley, about a furlong in breadth, in which stands the town of Naplous, the ancient Shechem. This beautiful valley, covered with olive woods and corn fields, has mount Gerizim on the south, and mount Ebal on the north. The two mountains are said to be nearly equal in height, neither of them exceeding seven or eight hundred feet above the level of the valley, tho' more above the level of the sea.

1 No doubt the blessings, as well as the curses, were audibly pronounced and ratified in a general manner, by the tribes appointed for that purpose; so that by this solemnity, all Israel deliberately consented to the national covenant; declared that they expected the blessings stipulated to them, only in a way of obedience; and confessed that, individually and nationally, they should merit, and should expect, to be accursed of God, if they were disobedient to his commandments. It does not appear that the tribes who occupied the sides of the one mount, were to pronounce the blessings, and those who occupied the sides of the other, the curses, but they alternately added their solemn Amen to them, when uttered by the Levites, in testimony of their assent.

1 This chapter so much resembles the 26th chapter of Leviticus, addressed 40 years before to the forefathers of this generation, that it seems only a repetition of it; containing at the same time an enlarged explanation of the blessing and the curse in the preceding chapter. It contains some very striking prophecies, which have been wonderfully fulfilled, and are every day fulfilling before our eyes in the condition of the Jews.

4 From the 3d to the 14th verses, inclusive, in a variety of forms, every kind of prosperity & happiness are promised to the Israelites if they kept the covenant of their God. God engages thus to bless them in every thing in the productions of the field, the increase of their cattle and flocks, in all their relations, personal & social, public and private, domestic and outward, spiritually and temporally. So long as they fulfilled the terms of this covenant as a people, their whole history testifies that they thus prospered, & even as individuals, had the manifest blessing of God.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The blessings for obedience, 1—14. The curses for disobedience, 15—68.

AND it shall come to pass, [a]if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe and [b]to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the LORD thy God [c]will set thee on high above all nations of the earth.

2 And all these blessings shall [d]come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God.[1]

3 Blessed [e]shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be [f]in the field.

4 Blessed shall be the [g]fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

5 Blessed shall be [h]thy basket and thy store.[2]

6 Blessed shalt thou [i]be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

7 The LORD [k]shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and [l]flee before thee seven ways.

8 The LORD shall [m]command the blessing upon thee [n]in thy[3] store-houses, and in all that thou [o]settest thine hand unto; and he shall bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

9 The LORD shall [p]establish thee an holy people unto himself, [q]as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, and walk in his ways.[4]

10 And all people of the earth shall see that thou art [r]called by the name of the LORD; [s]and they shall be afraid of thee.

11 And the LORD shall make thee [t]plenteous in goods,[5] in the fruit of thy body,[6] and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

12 The LORD shall [u]open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven to give the rain unto thy land in his season, and [v]to bless all the work of thine hand: and thou shalt [w]lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow.

13 And the LORD shall make thee the[x] head, and not the tail;[1] and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; [y]if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the LORD thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them;

14 And [z]thou shalt not go aside from any of the words which I command thee this day, to the right hand or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 ¶ But it shall come to pass, [a]if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes, which I command thee this day, that all[b] these curses shall come upon thee, and overtake thee.[2]

16 Cursed shalt thou be [c]in the city, and cursed shalt thou be [d]in the field.

17 Cursed shall be [e]thy basket and thy store.

18 Cursed shall be [f]the fruit of thy body, and [g]the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

19 Cursed shalt thou be [h]when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

20 The LORD shall [i]send upon thee cursing, [k]vexation, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto for[3] to do, [l]until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doings, whereby thou hast forsaken me.

21 The LORD shall make [m]the pestilence cleave unto thee, until he have consumed thee from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

22 The LORD shall smite thee with a[n] consumption,[4] and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the sword,[5] and with [o]blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

23 And [p]thy heaven[6] that is over thy head shall be brass, and the earth that is under thee shall be iron.

24 The LORD shall [q]make the rain of thy land powder and dust: from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed.[1]

25 The LORD shall [r]cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them; and [s]shalt be removed[2] into all the kingdoms of the earth.[3]

26 And [t]thy carcase shall be meat unto all fowls of the air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away.

27 The LORD will smite thee [u]with the botch of Egypt, and with the [v]emerods, and with [w]the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed.

28 The LORD shall smite thee [x]with madness, and blindness,[4] and astonishment of heart:

29 And thou shalt [y]grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways: and [z]thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore,[5] and no man shall save thee.

30 [a]Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: thou [b]shalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather[6] the grapes thereof.

31 Thine [c]ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass shall be violently taken away from before thy face, and shall not be restored[7] to thee: thy sheep shall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them.

32 Thy [d]sons and thy daughters shall be given unto another people,[8] and thine eyes shall look, and [e]fail with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might in thine hand.

33 The [f]fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up; and [g]thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed alway:

34 So that thou shalt be [h]mad, for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

2 All the terrible curses which were denounced against the Israelites when disobedient, have indeed uniformly 'overtaken them,' in every situation, and in every country, from that day to this; as it must be evident to all those who are in the least acquainted with their history,—that is to say, predictions uttered upwards of three thousand years ago, have been demonstratively fulfilled, testifying, that they were dictated by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost.

The disease designated by that name among us, is said to be unknown in the East.

36 The LORD shall [k]bring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and [l]there shalt thou serve other gods,[1] wood and stone.

37 And thou shalt [m]become an astonishment, a proverb, and a by-word,[2] among all nations whither the LORD shall lead thee.

38 Thou [n]shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in: [o]for the locust shall consume it.

39 Thou shalt plant vineyards, and dress them, but shalt neither drink of nor gather the wine, nor gather the grapes: [p]for the worms shall eat them.

40 Thou shalt have olive-trees throughout all thy coasts, but thou shalt not [q]anoint thyself with the oil: for thine olive shall cast his fruit.

41 Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but thou[3] shalt not enjoy them: [r]for they shall go into captivity.

5 They, in the madness and fury of their sufferings, destroyed each other. After the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, some of the worst of the Jews took refuge in the castle of Massada, where, being closely besieged by the Romans, they, at the persuasion of Eleazar, their leader, first murdered their wives and children; then ten men were chosen by lot to slay the rest; this being done, one of the ten was chosen in like manner to kill the other nine; which having done, he set fire to the place, and then stabbed himself. There were nine hundred and sixty who perished in this miserable manner; and only two women and five boys escaped, by hiding themselves in the aqueducts under ground.—Newton.

1 The miseries and persecutions which the Jews have endured, and which in some measure they still endure, without apparent prospect of redress, are unparalleled in the history of mankind both for their weight, their number, and their duration, yet after all their oppressions & massacres with which they have been wasted, and the long continued dispersion by which they have been scattered, they still remain a distinct and very numerous people, Nu. 23. 9; Je.30.10,11. These events, compared with the favour of God in ancient times manifested towards them, and with the predictions concerning them, should not only excite our astonishment, but turn unto us for a testimony; and should serve, instead of successive miracles, to assure us of the truth of the scriptures. Indeed, successive miracles would soon become familiar, but this testimony endureth. And when they turn fully to the Lord, they shall be still more 'a sign and a wonder' to all nations.

siege and straitness, wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 [t]If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear[u] this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD;

59 Then the LORD will make [v]thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover, he will bring upon thee [w]all the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee:

61 Also every sickness, and every plague,[1] which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD bring[2] upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

62 And ye shall be left [x]few in number, whereas ye were [y]as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that, as the LORD [z]rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you; so the LORD will [a]rejoice over you[3] to destroy you, and to bring you to nought: and ye shall be [b]plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

64 And the LORD shall [c]scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and there[d] thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

65 And among these nations [e]shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but [f]the LORD shall give thee there a trembling heart, and [g]failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind:

66 And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; [h]and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life:[4]

67 In [i]the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

68 And the LORD shall [k]bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, Thou shalt see it no more again: and [l]there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bond-men and bond-women, and no man shall buy[1] you.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Moses exhorteth the people to obedience by the memory of the works they had seen, 2—9. All are presented before the Lord to enter into his covenant, 10—17. The great wrath on him that flattereth himself in his wickedness, 18—28. Secret things belong unto God, 29.

THESE are [a]the words of the covenant which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, [b]besides the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

2 ¶ And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, [c]Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land;

3 The great [d]temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles;

4 Yet the LORD hath not [e]given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day.[2]

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness: [f]your clothes are not waxen old upon you, [g]and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.

6 Ye have not [h]eaten bread, [i]neither have ye drunk wine[3] or strong drink; that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, [k]Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them:

8 And we took their land, and gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh.

9 [l]Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may prosper in all that ye do.

10 ¶ Ye [m]stand this day all of you before the LORD your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and

4 The history of many European nations affords powerful evidence of the fulfilment of these predictions even to the minutest particular; & such, as makes it difficult to understand how scepticism itself can resist the proof it affords of the divine inspiration of the scriptures, except on the ground pointed out in themselves, 'the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them who believe not.' Bishop Newton may well say, 'What stronger proofs can we desire of the divine legation of Moses? How these instances may affect others, I know not, but for myself I must acknowledge, they not only convince, but amaze and astonish me beyond expression.'

1 This prophecy like the others, was fulfilled to the very letter. After the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, and the desolation made by Adrian, multitudes of Jews were carried away into Egypt, and elsewhere, & sold for slaves to work in the mines, till they became so vile that no one would buy them at any price. 'Let us all,' says Henry, 'from hence learn to stand in awe & not to sin. I have heard of a wicked man, who, upon reading the threatenings of this chapter, was so enraged that he tore the leaf out of his bible, as Jehoiakim cut Jeremiah's roll. But to what purpose is it to deface a copy while the original stands upon record in the divine counsels, by which it is unalterably determined, that the wages of sin is death?'

2 Moses here reminds the Israelites, that they themselves had been eye-witnesses of God's majesty, & of the various miracles He had wrought for them. But yet laments that their hearts were hardened and their understandings spiritually blinded, that they did not perceive them. The bulk of the people remained insensible to the real design and tendency of all that the Lord had spoken and done among them; and multitudes had provoked him to give them up to their own hearts' lusts, & their consciences were stupified & their hearts hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

1 The national covenant made with Israel, was in some things a shadow of the covenant of grace; as it also represented the outward dispensation of the gospel. This covenant is confirmed with true believers 'for the good of them and their children after them,' and in their families, the profession of Christianity is principally continued. Thus they enjoy permanent religious advantages, which are seldom withdrawn, unless they renounce the religion of their forefathers, or evince a total disregard of it.—Scott.

8 The ancient versions all differ from one another in the rendering of this phrase. It seems, however, a figurative expression to denote the eagerness with which wicked men gratify their depraved inclinations; that they rush to iniquity as eagerly as the drunkard to the gratification of his base appetite. Such is the effect of a departure from the Lord, in stupifying the conscience, and removing all restraint. But on such persons God threatens in the next verse, his most tremendous indignation.

2 The ancient fertility of the Holy Land cannot be justly called in question. Multitudes of travellers bear witness to its present desolations, and barrenness, and scanty population. So that this prediction, like the others, (ch.xxviii.) has been fulfilled; but the most remarkable circumstance is, that it has been so striking, as to make those who behold it conclude, that it was plainly the result of divine judgments.

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses which[1] the LORD hath laid upon it;

25 Then men shall say, [n]Because [o]they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers which he made with them, when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt:

cording to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, [f]with all thine heart, and with all thy soul;

3 That [g]then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return, and gather[h] thee from all the nations whither the LORD thy God hath scattered thee.

4 If any of thine be driven out [i]unto the utmost parts of heaven, from thence will the LORD thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee.

5 And the LORD thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And the LORD thy God [k]will circumcise thine heart,[1] and the heart of thy seed, [l]to love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the LORD thy God will [m]put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.[2]

8 And [n]thou shalt return, and obey the voice of the LORD, and do all his commandments, which I command thee this day.

9 And the LORD thy God will [o]make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good: for the LORD will again [p]rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers;

10 If thou shalt [q]hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes, which are written in this book of the law, and if thou [r]turn unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.[3]

11 ¶ For this commandment, which I command thee this day, [s]it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off:

12 It is [t]not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, [u]Who shall [v]go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

14 But the word is [w]very nigh unto thee, [x]in thy mouth, and in thy [1]heart, that thou mayest do it.

15 ¶ See, [y]I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil;

16 In that I command thee this day [z]to love the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

17 But [a]if thine [b]heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them;

18 I [c]denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it.

19 [d]I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, [e]that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore [f]choose life, [g]that both thou and thy seed may live;

20 That thou mayest [h]love the LORD thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest [i]cleave unto him; (for he is [k]thy life, and the length of thy days;) that [l]thou mayest dwell in the land[2] which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Moses encourageth the people, 1—6. He encourageth Joshua, 7, 8. He delivereth the law unto the priests to read it in the seventh year to the people, 9—13. God giveth a charge to Joshua, 14—18; and a song to testify against the people, 19—23. Moses delivereth the book of the law to the Levites to keep, 24—27. He maketh a protestation to the elders, 28—30.

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

2 And he said unto them, [a]I am an hundred and twenty years old this day; [b]I can no more go out and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, [c]Thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

3 The LORD [d]thy God, he will go over before thee, and he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: [e]and Joshua,

1 The predictions of this chapter point to better days, and refer to events doubtless yet to be accomplished, when God will visit and redeem his dispersed people, and bring them to their own land. But it seems clearly intimated that he will first renew them by the power of his Holy Spirit. See Eze.36. 25-38.

2 It is a striking fact that though God corrects his rebellious people by the hand of their enemies, these enemies are always visited with his displeasure; because though He corrects in justice and mercy, they persecute in all the hatred and malignity of human nature.

3 We must return to our allegiance to God as our Lord and Ruler, our dependence upon him as our Father and Benefactor, our devotedness to him as our highest end, and our communion with him as our God in covenant. We must return to God from all that which stands in opposition to him, or competition with him. In this return to God, we must be upright—with the heart and soul, & universal—with all the heart and all the soul. It is evidenced by a constant obedience to the holy will of God. If thou shalt 'obey his voice,' ver. 2, 'thou and thy children;' for it is not enough that we do our duty ourselves, but we must train up and engage our children to do it.—Henry.

1 What Moses here spake of the commandment, St Paul applied to the method of a sinner's justification, by faith in Jesus Christ, Ro.10.5-11. For the covenant, proposed to Israel in the form of commandments, did not consist of the moral law alone, obedience to which especially constitutes 'the righteousness of works;' but of the ceremonial law also, in which Christ was typified, 'as the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth:' & though a large portion of the Israelites mistook the nature of these instructions, (as multitudes of professed Christians utterly misunderstand the sacraments of the New Testament,) yet in the legal ordinances, their dispensation of the gospel was principally contained. There never was, since the fall of man, more than one way to heaven; which is marked out in both Testaments, though not with equal clearness and precision. Moses therefore assuredly meant to include that way of acceptance, which the apostle more explicitly described; and St Paul's words implied the same conscientious obedience, of which Moses more fully treated.—Scott.

e shall go over before thee, as the LORD hath said.

4 And [f]the LORD shall do unto them s he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of he Amorites, and unto the land of hem, whom he destroyed.

5 And the LORD shall give them up efore your face, that ye may do unto hem [g]according unto all the commandments which I have commanded ou.

6 [h]Be strong, and of a good courage, ear[i] not, nor be afraid of them: for he LORD thy God, he it is that doth o with thee; [k]he will not fail thee, or forsake thee.[1]

7 ¶ And Moses called unto Joshua, nd said unto him in the sight of all srael, [l]Be strong, and of a good courage: [m]for thou must go with this eople unto the land which the LORD ath sworn unto their fathers to give hem; and thou shalt cause them to nherit it.

8 And the LORD, [n]he it is that doth o before thee; [o]he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake hee: fear not, neither be dismayed.

9 ¶ And [p]Moses wrote this law,[2] and elivered[q] it unto [r]the priests the sons of Levi, [s]which bare the ark of the ovenant of the LORD, and unto all the lders of Israel.

10 And Moses commanded them, saying, [t]At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11 When all Israel is come [u]to appear before the LORD thy God, [v]in the place which he shall choose, [w]thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 [x]Gather the people together, men,[y] and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that[z] they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law;

13 And that [a]their children, which have not known any thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.[3]

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thy days approach [b]that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that [c]I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and [d]presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the LORD [e]appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, [f]thou shalt sleep[1] with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, [g]and go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land whither they go to be among them, and will [h]forsake me, and [i]break my covenant which I have made with them.

17 Then [k]my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and [l]I will forsake them, and I will [m]hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall[2] them; so that they will say in that day, [n]Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us?

18 And [o]I will surely hide my face in that day, for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.[3]

19 ¶ Now therefore write ye [p]this song for you, [q]and teach it the children of Israel: [r]put it in their mouths, that this song[4] may be [s]a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For [t]when I shall have brought them into the land which I sware unto their fathers, [u]that floweth with milk and honey, and they shall [v]have eaten, and filled themselves, and [w]waxen fat; [x]then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that [y]this song shall testify against[5] them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for [z]I know their imagination which they go[6] about, even [7]now, before I have brought them into the land which I sware.

2 Some understand this of the book of Deuteronomy alone; but it is far more reasonable to conclude, that the whole law was delivered to the priests and elders, a copy, perhaps, to the principal person in each tribe, besides, one to be deposited by the side of the ark. It may be supposed, that afterwards many more copies would be taken; tho' they would not be greatly multiplied in that infancy, as it were, of writing. The ordinary Levites of the family of Kohath, generally carried the ark when the priests had covered it; but on great occasions, the priests who were of the family of Kohath performed this service.

3 The rulers, the chief persons, and the priests, are enjoined to carry this injunction into effect, and at such times as the people were probably most at leisure to hear the law of the Lord. The duty would be performed by several persons, & at several places. A few instances are recorded of the observance of this command, 2 Ki. 23. 2; Ne. 8. 1-9, 14-18; 9. 3; 13. 1-3. But it was too much neglected, & the neglect was one cause of the prevalence of idolatry. The 'people perished for lack of knowledge.'

7 The Lord knows what is in man, & whither his inclinations will lead him if left to himself; and nothing can be more undeniable, or more incomprehensible, than his foresight of the innumerable volitions of rational agents, to the remotest futurity, and his method of overruling them all to accomplish his wise & righteous purposes, without in the least interfering with their free agency. Thus neither his foreknowledge, nor his deep decrees, cause or excuse man's wickedness, or diminish the punishment which sinners will justly suffer.—Scott.

22 ¶ Moses [a]therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 And [b]he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, Be strong, and of a good courage: for [c]thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I sware unto them; and I will be with thee.

24 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of [d]writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites, which [e]bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying,

26 Take this book of the law, and put it [f]in the side of the ark[1] of the covenant of your LORD your God, that it may be there for [g]a witness against thee.

27 For [h]I know thy rebellion, and thy [i]stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, [k]ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death?

28 [l]Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and [m]call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly [n]corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; [o]and evil will befall you in [p]the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses [q]spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Moses' song, which setteth forth God's mercy and vengeance, 1—43. He exhorteth the people to set their hearts unto all the words of the law, 44—47. God sendeth him up to mount Nebo, to see the land, and die, 48—52.

GIVE [a]ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth,[2] the words of my mouth.

2 My doctrine shall [b]drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew; as the small rain upon the tender herb, and [c]as the showers[3] upon the grass:

3 Because [d]I will publish the name[4] of the LORD; [e]ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is [f]the Rock, [g]his work is perfect; for [h]all his ways are judgment: [i]a God of truth, and [k]without iniquity, just and right is he.

5 They[1] have [l]corrupted themselves; their spot is not the spot of his children: they are [m]a perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus [n]requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he [p]thy Father that [q]hath bought [2]thee? hath he not [r]made thee, and established thee?

7 ¶ [s]Remember the days of old, consider the years of many [3]generations: [t]ask thy father, and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

8 When the [u]Most High [v]divided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, [w]he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel:

9 For [x]the LORD's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot[4] of his inheritance.

10 He [y]found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about,[5] [z]he instructed him, he[a] kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 As [b]an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings;

12 So [c]the LORD alone did lead him, and there was [d]no strange god with him.

13 He made him [e]ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and he made him to suck [f]honey out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock;

14 [g]Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rams of the breed [h]of Bashan, and goats, with [i]the fat of kidneys of wheat; and thou didst drink the pure [k]blood of the grape.

15 ¶ But [l]Jeshurun waxed fat, and [m]kicked: thou art [n]waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness: [o]then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed [p]the Rock of his salvation.

16 They [q]provoked him to jealousy

1 In a coffer or box, without the ark. This appears to have been a correct and authentic copy of the five books of Moses, probably written with his own hand, which would be reserved, that in cases of errors or disputes, or defect of other copies, it might be referred to, and would be a witness against the sins of Israel, whenever it was examined. This is an express declaration, that Moses himself was the writer of the whole law, in that very form, in which it was kept by the priests in the sanctuary.

a ch. 4.26; 30. 19; 31. 28; Ps. 49.1,2; 50. 4; Is. 1, 2; Je. 2. 12; 6. 19; 22. 29.
2 This sublime invocation of the heavens and earth, as witnesses between God and his people, is adopted by Isaiah, (ch.1.2.)
b 2 Sa. 23. 4; Job 29. 22, 23; Ps. 72. 6; Is. 55. 10, 11; Ho. 6. 4; 14. 5; 1 Co. 3. 6-8; He. 6. 7.
c Eze.34.26; Mi. 5.7; Zec. 10. 1.
3 The beautiful allusion in this verse must have been peculiarly expressive to the Israelites, who had wandered in the sandy desert. It is descriptive of the refreshing, comforting, fertilizing effect of the divine instruction he was to give in this sacred song, which should descend from on high as the rain and the dews of heaven; not proceeding from men but from God, and gently and silently winning its way to the heart and conscience, as the showers to the heart of the earth.
d Ex. 3. 13-16; 6. 3; 20.24; 34.5-7; Ps.29. 1,2; 89.16-18; 105.1-5; 145. 1-10; Je. 10. 6,7; 23.6; Mat.1.23; 6. 9; John 17.6, 26.
4 To 'publish the name of the Lord,' and to 'ascribe greatness to God,' is to proclaim the being and perfections of Jehovah. When God is styled in the 4th verse, a 'Rock,' the first time He is spoken of under this similitude, it is descriptive of his immutability and strength, as the Protector and Saviour of his people.

ith strange gods, with [r]abominations provoked they him to anger.

17 They [s]sacrificed unto devils, not God;[1] to [t]gods whom they knew not, to [u]new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not.

18 Of [v]the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast [w]forgotten God that formed thee.

19 And [x]when the LORD saw it, he abhorred[2] them, because of the provoking [y]of his sons and of his daughters.[3]

20 And he said, [z]I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are [a]a very froward generation, [b]children in whom is no faith.

21 They have [c]moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger [d]with their vanities: and [e]I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

22 For [f]a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn[4] unto [g]the lowest hell, and shall [h]consume[5] the earth with her increase, and set on fire [i]the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will [k]heap mischiefs upon them; I will [l]spend mine arrows upon them.

24 They shall be [m]burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat,[6] and with bitter destruction: I will also send the[n] teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of [o]serpents of the dust.

25 The [p]sword without, and terror within,[7] shall destroy[8] both [q]the young man and the virgin, the suckling also, with the man of gray hairs.

26 I said, [r]I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men:

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, [s]lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest [t]they should say, Our hand is high,[9] and the LORD hath not done all this.

28 For they are [u]a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them.

29 Oh [v]that they were wise, that they understood this, that [w]they would consider their latter end!

30 How should [x]one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had [y]sold them,[1] and the LORD had [z]shut them up?

31 For [a]their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges.

32 For their vine is of the vine of Sodom,[2] and of the fields of Gomorrah: [b]their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

33 Their wine is [c]the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps.[3]

34 Is not this [d]laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my[4] treasures?

35 [e]To me belongeth vengeance, and recompence; [f]their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and [g]the things that shall come upon them make haste.

36 For [h]the LORD shall judge his people, and [i]repent himself for his servants, when he seeth that their [5]power is gone, and there is [k]none shut up, or left.

37 And he shall say, [l]Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted;

38 Which did [m]eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink-offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.[6]

39 See now that [n]I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: [o]I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: [p]neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.

40 For [q]I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 If I [r]whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment, [s]I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward [t]them that hate me.

42 I will [u]make mine arrows drunk with blood,[7] and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain, and of the captives, from the beginning of revenges upon the enemy.

43 Rejoice,[8] [v]O ye nations, with his people: for he will [w]avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and [z]will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.[1]

44 ¶ And Moses came and [y]spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, he and Hoshea[2] the son of Nun.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

46 And he said unto them, [z]Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is [a]not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

48 ¶ And [b]the LORD spake unto Moses that self-same day, saying,

49 Get thee up into this [c]mountain Abarim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho, [d]and behold the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession;

50 And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and [e]be gathered unto thy people;[3] [f]as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

51 Because [g]ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of Meribah-kadesh,[4] in the wilderness of Zin; [h]because ye sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel.

52 Yet [i]thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give the children of Israel.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The majesty of God, 1—5. The blessings of the twelve tribes, 6—25. The excellency of Israel, 26—29.

AND this is [a]the blessing, wherewith Moses [b]the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

2 And he said, The [c]LORD came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them;[5] he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with [d]ten thousands of saints: from his right hand went[6] a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, [e]he loved the people; [f]all his saints are in thy hand: and [g]they sat down at thy feet;[1] every [h]one shall receive of thy words.

4 [i]Moses commanded us a law, even [k]the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was [l]king in [m]Jeshurun, when the heads of the people and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 ¶ Let [n]Reuben live,[2] and not die; and let not his men be few.

7 ¶ And this is the blessing of Judah:[3] and he said, Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah, [o]and bring him unto his people: [p]let his hands be sufficient for him; [q]and be thou an help to him from his enemies.

8 ¶ And of Levi he said, [r]Let thy Thummim[4] and thy Urim be [s]with thy holy one, whom thou didst [t]prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 Who [u]said unto his father, and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.

10 They shall teach[5] Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law: [6]they shall put incense before thee,[7] and [v]whole burnt-sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, LORD, [w]his substance, and [x]accept the work of his hands: [y]smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again

12 ¶ And of Benjamin he said, [z]The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by him; and the LORD shall [a]cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

13 ¶ And of [b]Joseph he said, Blessed of the LORD be his land, for the precious things of heaven, for [c]the dew, and for the deep that coucheth beneath,

14 And for [d]the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things put[8] forth by the [9]moon,

15 And [e]for the chief things of the ancient mountains, and for the precious things of the lasting hills.

16 And for the precious things of [f]the earth, and fulness thereof, and x Ps. 85. 1.

1 The nations here must be the converted Gentiles who have been witnesses of God's judgments upon his people; but when God has mercy upon them, and restores them to their own land, they shall rejoice along with them, and praise Jehovah. The many threatenings against the nations that oppress the heritage of the Lord, are remarkable and should make them tremble, even when it is for judgment to his people.

3 Moses having delivered the preceding prophetical song to Israel with earnest attestations and exhortations, continuing the 'labour of love' to his latest breath, received the summons from God to take a view of the promised land, & then close his eyes in death. The expression, 'gathered unto thypeople,' must here relate to the soul, not to the body; for none of Moses's people were buried in mount Abarim; yet the words are not used exclusivelyof the righteous, (Ge. 25. 7, 8.) The Israelites should havelearnt, thnt as Moses left them short of the promised land, & could not bring them into possession of it, so his law did not contain a perfect revelation of God's will, but they were to expect something beyond it.

2 The order in which the tribes are blessed, is different from that elsewhere given.
3 The blessing of Judah is put before Levi, because our Lord sprang out of Judah. Judah was both pious and active. But the hearing of his prayers, may refer to David as a type of Christ, 'whom God heareth always.' The bringing him to his people, may be anotherview of the prophecy, 'to him shall the gathering of the people be,' Ge. 49. 10. Simeon is omitted in the blessing, because Jacob left it under a brand, and it had never done any thing, as Levi had done, to retrieve its honour.—Henry.

for[g] the good-will of him that dwelt in the bush: let the blessing come upon the head of Joseph, [h]and upon the top of the head of him that was separated from his brethren.[1]

17 His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and [i]his horns are like the horns of unicorns:[2] with them [k]he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth; and they are [l]the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.[3]

18 ¶ And of Zebulun he said, [m]Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy going out; and, Issachar, in thy tents.

19 They shall [n]call the people unto the mountain;[4] there [o]they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness: for they shall [p]suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand.

20 ¶ And of Gad he said, [q]Blessed be he that enlargeth Gad: [r]he dwelleth as a lion, and [s]teareth the arm with the crown of the head.

21 And he provided [t]the first part for himself, because there, in [u]a portion of the lawgiver, was he seated;[5] and he[v] came with the heads of the people, he executed the justice of the LORD, and his judgments with Israel.

22 ¶ And of Dan he said, [w]Dan is a lion's whelp: he shall leap from Bashan.[6]

23 ¶ And of Naphtali he said, [x]O Naphtali, satisfied with favour, and full with the blessing of the LORD; possess[y] thou the west and the south.[7]

24 ¶ And of Asher he said, Let Asher[z] be blessed with children; [a]let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let[b] him dip his foot in oil.

25 Thy shoes[8] shall be iron and brass; [c]and as thy days, so shall thy strength be.

26 ¶ There is [d]none like unto the God of [e]Jeshurun, who [f]rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky.

27 The [g]eternal God is thy [h]Refuge, and [i]underneath are the everlasting arms: and he shall [k]thrust out the enemy from before thee, and shall say, Destroy them.

28 [l]Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: [m]the fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his[n] heaven shall drop down [1]dew.

29 Happy[o] art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people [p]saved by the LORD, [q]the shield of thy help, and who is [r]the sword of thy excellency! and thine enemies shall be found[2] liars unto thee, and [s]thou shalt tread upon their high places.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto [a]the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah,[3] that is over against Jericho: and the LORD [b]shewed him all the land of Gilead, [c]unto Dan,

2 And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, [d]unto the utmost sea,

3 And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, [e]the city of palm-trees, unto [f]Zoar.

4 And the LORD said unto him, [g]This is the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: [h]I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither.

5 ¶ [i]So Moses, the servant of the LORD, [k]died there, in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

6 And [l]he buried him[4] in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.

7 ¶ And Moses was [m]an hundred and twenty years old when he died: [n]his eye was not dim, nor his [5]natural force abated.

8 ¶ And the children of Israel [o]wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun was [p]full of the spirit of wisdom; for [q]Moses had laid his hands upon him: and [r]the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

10 ¶ And there [s]arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses,[6] whom [t]the LORD knew face to face;

1 By which God fully ratified Moses' commission, and proved it beyond exception to be divine, & this in sight of all Israel.

12 And in all that mighty hand, and in all the great terror[1] which Moses showed in the sight of all Israel.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF DEUTERONOMY.

As indicated in the title, the chief design of this book, we have seen, is to give a repetition to the Israelites of the chief laws of God which had been previously given to them, that those who were not then born, or were incapable of understanding them, might be instructed in them. They are thus solemnly reminded by Moses of their importance, and that they were to be their rule when they entered the promised land, and he had gone the way of all the earth. Agreeably to this design, the book opens with a most interesting and instructive address, recapitulating the peculiar circumstances in which they had so signally experienced the divine favour above any other people. He describes their wonderful success, and the great victories which God gave them over their enemies; their ingratitude, unbelief, and rebellion, by which they provoked Jehovah to anger; the chastisements which he inflicted upon them, and pathetically alludes to his own exclusion from the promised land, as a punishment, for being tempted by their perversity and obstinacy, to complain as if the whole burden of this people had been left on him alone. All this is very instructive to us as individuals, and as a people, like the Israelites, highly favoured of Jehovah, who is the Governor among the nations. We have seen this faithful servant of God, most zealous for his honour, and most ardently devoted to advance the deliverance and happiness of his people. For this end, exhorting them in the most animated strains to obey in all time to come the LORD their GOD—repeating, with additions and explanations, the commandments, the statutes, and judgments which God had commanded him to set before them—he unfolds to them the majesty and perfections of Jehovah, reminds them that they had entered into covenant with Him, avouched the Lord to be their God, as He had in great condescension avouched them to be his people. Well might he ask what nation was so great as this nation, or had so many opportunities of being 'a wise and understanding people.' Would that there were in us, as a people, such an heart to know God; it would be our wisdom and understanding in the sight of all the nations. Moses commanded them to make a public profession of reverence for his law, by inscribing it on stones set up for that purpose; and made provision for their being acquainted with it by commanding it to be read to all the people at the end of every seventh year. Every wise ruler should imitate the conduct of this divinely appointed lawgiver, by providing the means for having all the people made acquainted with 'all the words of this life.'

In shortly noticing some of the special subjects for reflection in this book, we should not pass over the prophetical parts of it, which tend so greatly not only to confirm our faith in the divine inspiration of this portion of holy writ, but to point to the Lord Jesus Christ, the Mediator between God and man. 'With respect to the prophetic part of Deuteronomy, it should be remarked, that the Messiah is here more explicitly foretold than in the preceding books, and described as the completion of the Jewish economy. "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak unto thee all that I command him," Deut. xviii. 18. Comp. with John i. 45; Acts vii. 37. The prophecies of Moses increase in number and clearness towards the close of his writings. As he approached the end of his life, he appears to have discerned futurity with more exactness. His denunciations concerning the future rewards and punishments, the successive dispensations, and desolations of his people; his prophetic blessings on the tribes, his descriptions of the rapid victories of the Romans; of the miseries to be sustained by his besieged countrymen; and particularly his prophecies relative to their present condition, as accomplished under our own observation, bear a striking evidence to the truth and inspiration of his writings, and fearfully illustrate the character of the divine attributes.'—Gray's Key, pp. 122, 123.

The book of Deuteronomy concludes the volume of the Pentateuch, in which we have revealed to us the great religious, moral, and political principles of the Jewish law. Before the time of Moses, the patriarchal religion, which pointed out the one God and Creator of all, instituted the Sabbath, and typically revealed, by the use of sacrifice, the atonement of the promised Redeemer, had been grievously corrupted, and varied idolatry had overspread the earth. Its attendant crimes and vices were universal; and all human means were utterly inefficient to check it. God in great mercy made choice of Abraham, entered into covenant with him, and promised that through his 'seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed.' To bring about this promise the seed of Abraham was multiplied into a nation, miraculously preserved, and delivered from their idolatrous oppressors, on whom God executed his judgments, and vindicated his supremacy as Jehovah. He revealed to them his will, his unity, self-existence, his perfections and government, and the method by which sinners could be accepted with him. All this is done in a way that clearly marks the divine original of this revelation. Not less remarkable are the noble moral principles of the Jewish economy, revealed in these books; particularly as summed up in the ten commandments, and comprehended in these two great and comprehensive principles, love to God and love to men. If we have attentively considered these books, we must see, that though the Israelites were commanded, in the just judgments of God on the nations signalized by the most fearful abominations, to destroy them, yet that they are commanded, in the principles of their law, to love their enemies, to be kind to the stranger, to exercise forgiveness and forbearance, and the utmost tenderness and kindness to all in distress. We are taught at the same time that outward ceremonies and observances would be of no avail without internal piety, faith, and purity of heart. These principles are enforced by the highest sanctions. 'A moral system thus perfect, promulgated at so early a period, to such a people, and enforced by such sanctions as no human power could undertake to execute, strongly bespeaks a divine original.'—Graves on the Pentateuch, vol. i. p. 326.

An examination of the political principles of the Jewish law, as fitted to promote religion, liberty, security, general happinesss, and the highest temporal and spiritual interests of man, as compared with those of all other nations, would lead to the same conclusions. And just in proportion as they are adopted and acted upon at the present day, are these great advantages secured to nations. In this point of view alone the debt of gratitude we owe to the King of kings and Lord of lords is inestimable, and that people and nation which forgets it would justly incur the charge and the punishment of impiety and ingratitude.

THE BOOK

JOSHUA.

It is impossible to determine with certainty who was the author of the Book of Joshua. Jewish tradition assigns it to the person whose transactions it records and after whose name it is called; and with few exceptions, the early fathers of the Christian church entertain the same opinion. The most probable supposition upon the whole, does seem to be, that Joshua, imitating the example of his illustrious master and predecessor, who entered on record the great things which the Lord did by his hand, furnished the chief materials of the history; and, although some circumstances are introduced which necessarily belong to a later period, these may have been added by one or other of the inspired men, with a succession of whom, Israel was for so many ages blessed. It is sufficient, however, for us to know, as we do on the highest authority, that whoever the writer was, he acted under the inspiration of God. The book was ever received by the Jewish church, as part of the oracles of God; and as such, is quoted and referred to in the New Testament. It forms a continuation of the Pentateuch. It bears, as has been well remarked, the same relation, in many respects to the five books of Moses, which the book of the Acts of the Apostles does to the Gospels. It narrates the fulfilment of the great promises made to Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the settlement of their descendants in Canaan; recording the successful wars of Israel with the doomed inhabitants of the land, and the division of the territory by lot among the tribes. This book presents us with an illustrious manifestation of the faithfulness of Jehovah; and the narrative affords a striking emblem of the warfare of the Christian in gaining possession of his heavenly inheritance, it ministers the most abundant encouragement to those who, in sincerity and faith throw themselves upon the superintending care of that Being who 'keepeth covenant and mercy for ever.'" The narrative embraces a period of about twenty-six or twenty-seven years.

2 [d]Moses my servant is dead; now therefore [e]arise, go over this Jordan,[2] thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

CHAPTER II.

Rahab receiveth and concealeth the two spies sent from Shittim, 1—7. The covenant between her and them, 8—22. Their return and report, 23, 24.

AND Joshua the son of Nun sent[4] out of [a]Shittim two men [b]to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even[c] Jericho. And they went, and came into an [d]harlot's[5] house, named Rahab, and lodged[6] there.

2 And it was [e]told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to-night of the children of Israel to search out the country.

3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, [f]Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come [g]to search[7] out all the country.

4 And the woman [h]took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I wist not whence they were:

5 And it came to pass, about the time [i]of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that [k]the men went out; whither the men went,[1] I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But she had brought them up [l]to the roof[2] of the house, and [m]hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof.

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan[3] unto the [n]fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, [o]they shut the gate.

8 ¶ And, before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof;

9 And she said unto the men, [p]I know[4] [q]that the LORD hath given you the land, and that [r]your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land faint[5] because of you.

10 For [s]we have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and [t]what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed.

11 And as soon as we had heard these things, [u]our hearts did melt, neither did[6] there remain any more courage in any man, because of you; [v]for the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, [w]swear unto me by the LORD, since I have shewed you kindness, [x]that ye will also shew kindness unto [y]my father's house, and [z]give me a true token;

13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

14 And the men answered her, Our life for yours,[7] if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, [a]when the LORD hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then [b]she let them down by a cord through the window; [c]for her house was upon the town-wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

3 The people receive and acknowledge Joshua as a divinely appointed leader. They had often rebelled against Moses. With this their lawgiver charges them, De. 9. 24. Nevertheless they fully acknowledged his divine authority, & here they do the same with respect to Joshua. Such must be the fixed determination of every true follower of Jesus, the Captain of Salvation.

5 Though zonah generally denotes a prostitute, yet many are of opinion that it should be here rendered an inn-keeper or hostess, from zoon, to furnish or provide food. Thus the Targumist renders it 'a woman a tavern keeper.' Among the ancients, women generally kept houses of entertainment. Herodotus says, 'among the Egyptians the women carry on all commercial concerns, and keep taverns, while the men continue at home and weave.' There is little doubt, however, that she had been a harlot, as the name porne ascribed to her, He. 11. 31; Ja. 2. 25; signifies nothing else. Indeed we have no reason for supposing, that there were any such houses of entertainment, as we designate by the term taverns or inns.

1 Although Rahab's faith, which was most illustrious, is commended in the Epistle to the Hebrews, her false statement cannot but be condemned. But though not excused, it may be well accounted for by her circumstances, dwelling as she had done in a heathen nation, where vice prevailed, and where the distinctions of morality must have been most imperfectly known.

3 This river, so frequently mentioned in this and other portions of the sacred narrative, called by the Arabs El Sharia, takes its rise in Anti-Libanus, about twelve miles north of Cæsarea Philippi, now Banias. Running twelve miles southward, it receives a considerable stream called Maiet Hasbeia. About fifteen miles farther, it forms the waters of Merom or Semachon, now Houle; from thence twenty-eight miles, it passes through the Lake of Gennesareth, and thence runs southward till it loses itself in the Dead Sea. 3 The case of this woman is very remarkable. Some of her expressions, especially those in the eleventh verse, indicate a distinct acknowledgment of Jehovah. Whatever may have been the means by which her knowledge had been acquired, surely she had been made the subject of the influence of God's own Spirit. Her meagre opportunities must have been well improved, and she had been blessed of Him who declares that 'to him that hath shall begiven.' When we contrast her faith with that exhibited, on many occasions, even by the chosen people who had witnessed the wonders of Jehovah's outstretched arm, we are reminded of our Saviour's expressions with reference to the centurion, 'verily, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.'

5 The people travelled from Shittim (supposed to be the valley of Kedron) to the banks of the Jordan, a distance of about eight miles. There they lodged for the night, prepared to cross in in the morning, as being the time most convenient for them, and best fitted for rendering conspicuous the glorious miracle about to be performed. It was an instance of great faith in the people that thus they marched forward, without any intimation of the manner in which they were to cross the raging flood. When duty calls, the believer must advance, although his path is not yet clear before him. If he walk by faith, difficulties will vanish.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests [y]bearing the ark of the covenant before the people;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and [z]the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan[a] overfloweth[1] all his banks [b]all the time of harvest,)

17 And [f]the priests, that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, [g]stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and [h]all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

CHAPTER IV.

Twelve men are appointed to take twelve stones for a memorial out of Jordan, 1—8. Twelve other stones are set up in the midst of Jordan, 9. The people pass over, 10—13. God magnifieth Joshua, 14—19. The twelve stones are pitched in Gilgal, 20—24.

AND it came to pass, when all the people [a]were clean passed over Jordan, that the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Take you [b]twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man;

3 And command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where [c]the priests' feet stood firm, [d]twelve stones; and ye shall carry them over with you, and [e]leave them in the lodging-place where ye shall lodge this night.

4 Then Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had [f]prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man:

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

6 That this may be [g]a sign among you, that [h]when your children ask their fathers in time to come,[1] saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That [i]the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for a [k]memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

8 And the children of Israel [l]did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 ¶ And Joshua [m]set up twelve stones in the midst[2] of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and [n]they are there unto this day.[3]

10 ¶ For the priests which bare the ark [o]stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that [p]Moses[4] commanded Joshua: and the people [q]hasted[5] and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, [r]that the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

12 And [s]the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them.

13 About forty thousand,[6] prepared[7] for war, passed over before the LORD unto battle, [t]to the plains of Jericho.

14 ¶ On that day the LORD [u]magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and [v]they feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command [w]the priests that bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, [x]Come ye up out of Jordan.

1 In the time of the barley harvest, answering to our March or April, the Jordan began to overflow. The cause of this inundation was the melting of the snows, with which, during the winter months, Lebanon was covered. It seems probable, that the overflowing had just commenced at the time when Israel were to cross, for the spies, it would appear, had crossed at the fords, and the men of Jericho seem to have been aware, that there the river was still fordable. (ch.2.7.) All this, doubtless, was so arranged, to render the miracle more illustrious.

2 As though an impassable barrier had been presented, the waters from above checked in their impetuous course, stood still, and accumulating, began to flow backwards towards their source, while the waters below the point where the priests stood with the ark of God, ran off towards the Salt or Dead sea, leaving the channel dry for many miles. 'The passage of this deep and rapid, though not wide river, was more manifestly miraculous, if possible, than that of the Red sea, because there was here no natural agency whatever employed; no mighty wind to sweep a passage as in the former case, no reflux of the tide, on which minute philosophers might fasten to depreciate the miracle. It seems, therefore, to have been providentially designed to silence cavils respecting the former: it was done in the noon-day, in the face of the sun, and in the presence, we may be sure, of the neighbouring inhabitants; and it struck terror into the kings of the Amorites and Canaanites westward of the river, "whose hearts melted, neither was there any spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel."'—Hales.

2 Other twelve, perhaps 'set upon a base of strong stone-work,' so as to be seen from either side, above the waters. Some suppose these to be not twelve other stones, but the same which were set up in Gilgal, & instead of 'twelve stones in the midst of Jordan,' would read 'twelve stones from the midst of Jordan.' The common reading, however, seems to be the true one.

6 Of these two tribes and a half, all the men capable of bearing arms did not accompany their brethren across the Jordan. It appears from the census recorded in Nu.xxvi. that the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, amounted to about 110,580. It is probable, that the remaining 70,580 were left behind for the defence of the women and children &c. They were considered, however, as fulfilling their stipulations, by sending these 40,000 to aid the other tribes. The whole body of the people of Israel were never expected to take the field, except upon extraordinary occasions. All were liable to be called out, but it was seldom that all were required.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and [y] the soles of the priests' feet[1] were lifted[2] up unto the dry land, [z] that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, [a] and flowed[3] over all his banks, as they did before.

19 ¶ And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth[4] day of the [b] first month, and encamped in [c] Gilgal, in the east border of Jericho.

20 ¶ And [d] those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.[5]

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, [e] When your children[6] shall ask their fathers in time[7] to come, saying, What mean these stones?

22 Then ye shall let your children know, [f] saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red sea, [g] which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over;

24 That [h] all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, that [i] it is mighty; that [k] ye might fear the LORD your God for ever.[8]

CHAPTER V.

The Canaanites are afraid, 1. Joshua reneweth circumcision, 2—9. The passover is kept at Gilgal, 10, 11. Manna ceaseth, 12. An angel appeareth to Joshua, 13—15.

AND it came to pass, when [a] all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the [b] Canaanites, [c] which were by the sea,[9] [d] heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted; [e] neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 ¶ At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee sharp knives,[10] and circumcise [f] again the children of Israel the second time.

3 And Joshua [g] made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at the hill of the foreskins.[11]

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: [h] All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised; but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them [i] they had not circumcised.

6 For the children of Israel [k] walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD [l] sware that he would not shew them the land which the LORD sware unto their fathers that he would give us, [m] a land that floweth with milk and honey.

7 And [n] their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.[1]

8 And it came to pass, when[2] they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp [o] till they were whole.[3]

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I [p] rolled away the reproach[4] of Egypt from off you: wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal[5] unto this day.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal,[6] and [q] kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month at even, in the plains of Jericho.

11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, [r] unleavened cakes and parched corn in the self-same day.

12 ¶ And [s] the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more; [t] but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that [u] he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood [v] a man over against him, with [w] his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said

1 So soon as the feet of these priests had touched the waters, the course of the stream was arrested; and now so soon as they reach the dry land, the flood returns. This is specially noticed by the sacred historian, and was intended, doubtless, to render it the more conspicuous that the marvellous occurrence was the immediate effect of the power of Him, of whose presence the ark of the testimony was the acknowledged symbol.

1 Various conjectural reasons might be assigned for the omission, as e. g. that it was not necessary to distinguish them in the wilderness, when separated from all others; that God mercifully dispensed with it in their unsettled condition; or that the suspension was designed to be a token of God's displeasure. Perhaps this may be pointed at in Nu. 14. 33, 'your children shall bear your whoredoms.'

4 It was a reproach to them that they were uncircumcised like the Egyptians. Besides, God's renewing of the rite was an assurance of their speedy possession of that land which the uncircumcised were not to inherit, and declared that now those wanderings were about to cease, with which, it is supposed, the Egyptians, exulting in their temporary exclusion from the land of promise, were wont to reproach them.

It became afterwards a place of considerable importance in sacred history, and is frequently mentioned. 'Nothing of this city now remains; but travellers are shown a pile of stones denominated, Galgald, which, though at a considerable distance from the site of the ancient Gilgal, is supposed by some to be the monument erected by Joshua.'

15 And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, [c]Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

CHAPTER VI.

Jericho is shut up, 1. God instructeth Joshua how to besiege it, 2—11. The city is compassed, 12—16. It is accursed, 17—19. The walls fall down, 20, 21. Rahab is saved, 22—25. The man that buildeth Jericho again is laid under a curse, 26, 27.

NOW[3] Jericho was straitly shut up[4] [a]because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.

2 ¶ And [b]the LORD said unto Joshua, See, [c]I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour.

3 And [d]ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven [e]trumpets of rams' horns;[5] and the seventh day ye shall compass the city [f]seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they [g]make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all [h]the people shall shout with a great shout;[6] and [i]the wall of the city shall fall down flat,[7] and the people shall ascend up, every man straight[8] before him.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take[k] up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that[l] is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests, bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns, passed on [m]before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets; and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 ¶ And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, [n]and the rere-ward[1] came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise[2] with your voice, neither shall any word[3] proceed out of your mouth, [o]until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout.

11 So the ark of the LORD compassed[4] the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 ¶ And [p]Joshua rose early in the morning, and [q]the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And seven priests, bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD, [r]went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rere-ward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

14 And [s]the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh[5] day, that they rose early, [t]about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: [u]only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, [v]Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.

17 ¶ And the city shall be [6]accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: [w]only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, [x]because she hid the messengers that we sent.

18 And ye, [y]in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, [z]lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and [a]make the camp of Israel a curse, [b]and trouble it.

22 ¶ But [g]Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, [h]as ye sware unto her.

23 And the young men that were spies went in, and brought [i]out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her kindred,[5] and left[k] them without the camp of Israel.

24 And they [l]burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: [m]only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua [n]saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and [o]she dwelleth in Israel even [p]unto this day; because she hid the messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

26 ¶ And Joshua [q]adjured[6] them at that time, saying, [r]Cursed be the man before the LORD that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his first-born, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it.

27 So [s]the LORD was with Joshua; and [t]his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAPTER VII.

Achan's trespass, 1. The Israelites are smitten at Ai, 2—5. Joshua's complaint, 6—9. God instructeth him what to do, 10—15. Achan is taken by the lot, 16—18. His confession, 19—23. He and all he had are destroyed in the valley of Achar, 24—26.

BUT the children of Israel [a]committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for [b][c]Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, [d]took of the accursed thing: and [e]the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.

2 ¶ And Joshua sent men from Jericho to [f]Ai,[1] which is beside [g][2]Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake unto them, saying, [h]Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about[3] two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai, and make not all the people to [i]labour thither; for they are but few.

4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men; and [k]they fled before the men of Ai.

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim,[4] and smote them in the going down;[5] [l]wherefore the hearts of the people melted,[6] and became as water.

6 ¶ And Joshua [m]rent his clothes, and [n]fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD [o]until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and [p]put dust upon their heads.

7 And Joshua said, Alas! O Lord GOD, [q]wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, [r]to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites to destroy us? [s]Would to God we had been content, [t]and dwelt on the other side Jordan!

8 O Lord, [u]what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs[7] before their enemies?

9 For the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the land, [v]shall hear of it, and shall [w]environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and [x]what wilt thou do unto thy great name?

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up; [y]wherefore liest[8] thou thus upon thy face?

11 [z]Israel hath sinned, and they have also [a]transgressed my covenant[9] which I commanded them: for they have even taken of [b]the accursed thing, and have also [c]stolen, and [d]dissembled also, and they have put it even [e]among their own stuff.

4 The Canaanites were ripe for destruction, and God was pleased, instead of destroying them by a pestilence, a famine, an earthquake, a deluge, or fire from heaven, to employ the Israelites as the executioners of his vengeance, both for their warning & instruction, and for that of all who read these records.—Scott. It is in this light that we must view this transaction. The Israelites were simply the instruments of God, and whatever objections might be urged against the severity of the overthrow, including as it did infants, &c.; would apply with equal force to the destruction of the cities of the plain, or to any other manifestation of vengeance, in which the elements of nature were made the instruments. The truth is, that tho' to the Canaanites themselves, there was severity in the order for their extermination, to the world at large there was great goodness in it; for it has shown the danger of unbelief and impenitence in such awful colours, that the proudest and most obdurate must tremble.

12 Therefore [f]the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because [g]they were accursed;[1] neither[h] will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you.

13 Up, [i]sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow; for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is [k]an accursed[2] thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take[l] away the accursed thing from among you.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that [m]the tribe which the LORD taketh[3] shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man.

15 And it shall be, that [n]he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all[4] that he hath: because [o]he hath transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he hath [p]wrought folly[5] in Israel.

16 ¶ So Joshua [q]rose up early in the morning, [r]and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken:

17 And he brought the [s]family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarhites: and he brought the family of the Zarhites man by man;[6] and Zabdi was taken:

18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, [t]was taken.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My[u] son,[7] [v]give, I pray thee, glory[8] to the LORD God of Israel, and [w]make confession unto him; and [x]tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, [y]Indeed I have sinned[9] against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done:

21 When [z]I saw among the spoils a goodly [a]Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge[1] of gold of fifty shekels weight, then [b]I coveted them, and [c]took them; and, behold, [d]they are hid[2] in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it.

22 ¶ So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it.

23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and laid[3] them out before the LORD.

24 And Joshua, and all Israel with him, [e]took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and [f]his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had; and they brought them unto [g]the valley of Achor.

25 And Joshua said, [h]Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And [i]all Israel stoned him[4] with stones, and [k]burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones.

26 And they [l]raised over him a great heap of stones unto this day. [m]So the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger: wherefore the name of that place was called, The valley of[5] Achor, unto this day.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, [a]Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: [b]see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land

2 And thou shalt [c]do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto Jericho and her king: [d]only the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: [e]lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

3 ¶ So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand

3 In what precise manner the discovery was to be made we are not informed. The Jews had various strange traditions upon the subject, and among others, that the tribes, families, &c. were made to pass before the high priest, and that the stone on his breast-plate gave the intimation by suddenly changing its colour, or losing its lustre. It is most probable, however, that the discovery was made by means of lots.

4 Jewish commentators suppose that Achan's family must have been parties to his crime, and must have known his concealment of the accursed thing in his tent, and were therefore involved in his punishment, as having been sharers of his wickedness. But of this, however probable, there is no evidence. There are many, however, who think that the expressions employed do not imply that his sons & daughters were punished along with him; and, in confirmation of their view, they cite the terms of the law, De. 24.16, which expressly provides that fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor children for the fathers: but that every man shall be put to death for his own sins. The Vulgate renders the verse, 'all Israel stoned him: and all that he had was consumed with fire.' The Syriac version is, 'They stoned him with stones, and burned what pertained to him with fire.' The Anglo-Saxon says, 'They burned him & his goods.' Boothroyd renders it, 'They burned himself & all that belonged to him.'

mighty[1] men of valour, and sent them away [f]by night.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall [g]lie[2] in wait against the city, even behind the city; [h]go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city; and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that[3] we will flee before them,

6 (For they will come out after us,) till we have drawn[3] them from the city; for they will say, [k]They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them.

7 Then[4] ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: [l]for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

8 And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall [m]set the city on fire:[5] according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. [n]See, I have commanded you.

9 ¶ Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode [o]between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua [p]lodged that night among the people.[6]

10 And Joshua [q]rose up early in the morning, and numbered[7] the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai.

11 And [r]all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai.

12 And he took about [s]five thousand men, and sent them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of the city.[8]

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and their liers[9] in wait [t]on the west of the city, Joshua went that night[10] into the midst of the valley.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the king of [u]Ai saw it, that they hasted, and rose up early; and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain: but [v]he [1]wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled [w]by the way of the wilderness.

16 And all the people that were in Ai were [x]called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were [y]drawn away from the city.

17 And there was not [z]a man left in Ai or Beth-el[2] that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, [a]Stretch[3] out the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city.

19 And [b]the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hasted and set the city on fire.

20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, [c]the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven; [d]and they had no power[4] to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers.

21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai.

22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they [e]let none of them remain or escape.

23 And [f]the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites [g]returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword.

1 It appears from this verse that the whole army was not employed on this occasion, but a portion chosen from the whole, viz. the 30,000 here mentioned, the men who lay in ambush, being 12,000, selected from among them.

2 This stratagem of war was not uncommon among the Hebrews. In this instance, as Scott remarks, no treaties were violated, no oaths broken, no falsehoods uttered; and it cannot be requisite to inform our enemies of our intentions and purposes, however they may be deceived by appearances. But perjuries, lies, and infractions of treaties, cannot, in any war, or in any case, be allowable or excusable.

1 From the conduct of the king of Ai, and from other circumstances, we may infer that the Canaanites were but imperfectly versant in the art of war. Moreover they were, for their wickedness, visited with the spirit of infatuation. It was not Joshua's skill and courage but Jehovah's guidance & aid which gave to the Israelites their conquests. From many circumstances, we have reason to conclude that, till the time of David, the Hebrews, notwithstanding their many victories, had little real military knowledge.

2 Bethel is not mentioned in the Greek version; & some, with Houbigant and Pilkington, think it was not originally in the Hebrew, because had the men of Bethel pursued as well as those of Ai, it would have been said they left the cities and not the city open. It is probable, however, that the strength of Bethel had been previously brought into Ai, as the strongest place to make a stand in; Bethel being but 3 miles from Ai, & probably not greatly fortified.

a ver. 7, 26; Ex. 8.5; 17. 11; Job 15. 25.

3 It is probable that this was the preconcerted signal, at the sight of which the men in ambush knew they were to arise. The Lord himself intimated to Joshua the proper time to make the movement. A flag might be attached to the top of the spear (as the Rabbins, with great probability, suppose) which would make it conspicuous at a considerable distance. Some have supposed, especially from the statement in the 26th verse, that this action of Joshua was figurative, and that, like the lifting up of Moses' hand in the battle with Amalek, it was a token of the divine presence and pledge of God's assistance, and they would, in the one case, as in the other, connect the victory with the action; but we should be cautious of searching for figurative meanings, when not led to them by the word of God itself. The indulging of this spirit has in many instances, opened the floodgates of error.

25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai.

26 For Joshua [h]drew not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

27 Only [i]the cattle, and the spoil of that city, Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he commanded Joshua.

28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it [k]an heap for ever,[1] even a desolation unto [l]this day.

29 And [m]the king of Ai he hanged[2] on a tree until even-tide: and [n]as soon as the sun[3] was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and raise thereon [o]a great heap of stones,[4] that remaineth unto this day.

30 ¶ Then Joshua [p]built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel [q]in mount Ebal;[5]

31 As Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded the children of Israel, [r]as it is written in the book of the law of Moses, an [s]altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron; [t]and they offered thereon burnt-offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace-offerings.

32 And he [u]wrote there, upon the stones, a copy[6] of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

33 And [v]all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark, and on that side, before [w]the priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well [x]the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; [y]as Moses, the servant of the LORD, had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward [z]he read all the words of the law, [a]the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law.

35 There [b]was not a word of all that Moses commanded which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, [c]with the women, and the little ones, and the strangers[1] that were conversant[2] among them.

2 The kings of Canaan lay under the same curse as their subjects, and probably were more deeply criminal. The reserving of the king of Ai for a solemn execution, would tend to strike terror into the other kings, contribute to the success of Israel, and give their proceedings the stamp of a judicial process, and of executing the vengeance of God upon his enemies—Scott. It is probable that this man was first put to death by some other mode, and his dead body afterwards, as a mark of detestation, hung upon a tree. Hanging alive was not a common mode of punishment at the time. The only modes of capital punishment sanctioned by the law of Moses, are stoning and slaying with the sword.

11 Wherefore our elders,[1] and all the inhabitants of our country, spake to us, saying, [v]Take victuals with[2] you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, [w]We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us.

12 This [x]our bread we took hot for our provisions out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy:

13 And these bottles of wine which we filled were new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

14 And the[3] men took of their victuals, and [y]asked not counsel at the mouth[4] of the LORD.

15 And Joshua [z]made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, [a]that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.

17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon,[5] and Chephirah, and Beeroth,[5] and[c] Kirjath-jearim.[6]

18 And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation [d]had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured[7] against the princes.

19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, [e]We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them.

20 This we will do to them; we will even let them live, [f]lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them.

21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but [g]let them be hewers of wood, and drawers of water, unto all the congregation; [h]as the princes had promised them.

22 ¶ And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, [i]Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, [k]We are very far from you; when ye dwell among us?

23 Now therefore ye are [l]cursed; and there shall none[2] of you be freed from being bond-men, and [m]hewers[3] of wood, and drawers of water, for the house of my God.

24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that [n]the LORD thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore [o]we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

25 And now, behold, [p]we are in thine hand: [q]as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.

26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not.

27 And Joshua [r]made them that day hewers of wood, and drawers of water, for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, [s]in the place which he should choose.

Had they cast themselves, without reserve, on the mercy of Israel's God, no doubt they would have been spared as Rahab and her family had been; 'for though the Lord would not allow his people to make exceptions to his general rule of destroying the Canaanites, for their own ease & emolument, by forming alliances with them while they continued idolators; yet in this and all other cases, he was ready to favour those who trusted in his mercy.'

l Gen. 9. 25, 26; Le. 27. 28, 29.

1 The expression reminds us of the curse pronounced on Ham; in what the curse consisted is explained in the succeeding clauses of the verse. It does not seem to have implied any thing more, nor to have entailed any thing like a spiritual curse. They were just to be bondmen and hewers of wood, &c.

2 Heb. not be cut off from you.

m ver. 21, 27.

3 In the 21st & 27th verses, they are spoken of as hewers of wood, &c. 'unto all the congregation.' There is no evidence, however, that they were made the servants of private persons. Their services seem rather to have been altogether limited to the sanctuary. Some of the Rabbins suppose that, until the land was divided, they hewed wood, &c. for the whole of the people, but of this there is no evidence. It was the duty of the congregation to furnish wood, &c. for the service of God, and it seems probable that, only of this servitude, they were to be relieved by the Gibeonites. They were far from being reduced to a condition of absolute slavery. They are supposed by many to be the persons afterwards called Nethinim, i. e., given or dedicated. See Ezr. 8. 20. Although not incorporated with Israel, many of them, we believe, became true believers, the spiritual children of faithful Abraham.

made peace with Joshua, and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five [l]kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua [m]to the camp to Gilgal, saying, [n]Slack not thy hand [o]from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites, that dwell in the mountains,[p] are gathered together against us.

7 So [q]Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear[r] them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal [s]all night.

10 And [t]the LORD discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter [u]at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Beth-horon,[v] and smote them to [w]Azekah, and unto [x]Makkedah.

11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, that [y]the LORD cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hail-stones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

12¶ Then spake Joshua to the LORD, in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, [z]Sun, stand thou still[1] upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of [a]Ajalon.

13 And the sun stood[2] still, and the moon stayed, [b]until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. Is not this written in the book of [3]Jasher?[4] So [c]the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

14 And [d]there was no day like that before it, or after it, that [e]the LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: [f]for the LORD fought[1] for Israel.

15 ¶ And [g]Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 But these five kings fled, [h]and hid themselves [i]in a cave at Makkedah.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, [k]Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them;

19 And [l]stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and smite[2] the hindmost of them; [m]suffer them not to enter into their cities: for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand.

20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel [n]had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities.

21 And all the people returned [o]to the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: [p]none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

22 ¶ Then said Joshua, [q]Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, [r]the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, [s]put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the [3]necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, [t]Fear not, nor be dismayed; be strong and of good courage: for [u]thus shall

2 Many strange and fanciful theories have been entertained respecting this celebrated event, and attempts have been made to explain away its miraculous character. The observations of Bishop Watson are judicious, who says, 'I think it idle to explain how the miracle was performed; but one who is not able to explain the mode of doing a thing argues ill if he thence infers that the thing was not done. The machine of the universe is in the hand of God; he can stop the motion of any part, or of the whole, with less trouble, and less danger of injuring it, than any of us can stop a watch.' Two opinions only respecting the mode in which the miracle may have been produced, seem worthy of being stated. The one is, that the rotatory motion of the earth was for the time, suspended; and, according to this view, the exercise of Jehovah's power must have prevented the otherwise inevitable and most disasterous consequences which would have resulted, both to the earth itself, & to the whole connected system. The other is, that, by some operation of the laws which regulate the refraction and reflection of light, the sun's disk may have been rendered visible, long after, in ordinary circumstances, it would have disappeared. In both cases the visible effect would have been the same.

1 By the means already referred to, especially by the great stones cast down from heaven (ver. 11.) Some have supposed this to have been a shower of meteoric stones. The passage, however, seems to determine that the shower was of hail-stones. Hail-stones fell of an extraordinary size, miraculously directed against the confederated army. Of this nature was the plague of hail in Egypt. Ex. 9. 18; and showers of this kind have been frequently witnessed. Porter, in his letters from Constantinople, describing a shower of this kind with which he was overtaken, says, 'one man of the three oar's-men had his hand literally smashed: another much injured in the shoulder. . . . Balls of ice, as large as my two fists, fell into the boat; one of them struck the blade of an oar and split it. . . . The scene was awful beyond description. . . Two boatmen were killed in the upper part of the village, and I have heard of bones broken in abundance.

3 This act was probably symbolical, in token, as Joshua, in the next verse, explains it, of their future triumph over all their foes; but it is well known that, in the East, this is a common way of triumphing over a discomfited enemy. 'One very striking instance appears at Besiton, in the ancient Media, where the sculptural face of a rock represents a conquering monarch standing with one foot upon the body of a conquered king, whose hands are uplifted in supplication. The conqueror, in this attitude, is in the act of addressing, in apparent rebuke and reproach, other captives, who stand before him connected together by a rope around their necks, and with their hands bound behind them.'—*Pict. 4 Libnah was situated in the district of Eleutheropolis, and about twelve or sixteen miles west or south-west of Jerusalem. It afterwards became a Levitical city. It sustained a terrible siege from Sennacherib, (Is.37.8.) About 300 years after Christ, it still existed as a village, and was called Labinah.

6 Lachish, a city of Judah, twenty miles south-west of Jerusalem, and seven south-east of Eleutheropolis, — Eusebius, Jerome. It appears to have been a very strong place; for though the people were panic-struck, and the Israelites flushed with success, yet Joshua could not reduce it till the second day. Sennacherib afterwards besieged it, but did not succeed in taking it, (Is.37. 8.) Lachish was the first city belonging to Judah, which after the revolt of the ten tribes, practised and propagated the rites of idolatry. The king of Lachish is not here mentioned, he being one of the five kings previously slain.

1 The king of Hebron was one of the five who had been put to death, and hanged on five trees, (ver. 23, 26.) We must suppose, that, by this time, a successor had been appointed, a circumstance not improbable, both from the importance of Hebron, and from the pressing nature of their affairs.
2 It seems, however, that both Hebron and some other of these cities had again fallen into the hands of the Canaanites, for we read of a second conquest of them, as e. g. Ju. 1. 10, &c. Calmet accounts for the circumstance by supposing that Joshua in his rapid conquests, contented himself with taking, demolishing, and burning those cities, but did not garrison any of them, and that the scattered Canaanites, taking advantage of this, returned, repeopled, and put in a state of defence, the cities from which they had been expelled. Hence the Israelites were obliged to conquer them a second time.

5 And when [m]all these kings were met[3] together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom,[4] to fight against Israel.

6 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Be[n] not afraid[5] because of them; for to-morrow,[o] about this time, will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt [p]hough their [q]horses, and burn their chariots with fire.

7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom [r]suddenly, and they fell upon them.

8 And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto great Zidon,[6] and unto Misrephoth-maim,[7] and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining.

9 And Joshua did unto them as the LORD bade him: [s]he houghed[8] their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire.

10 ¶ And Joshua at that time turned back, and took [t]Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them; there was not any[9] left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.

12 And [u]all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword; and he utterly destroyed them, [v]as Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded.

13 But as for the cities that stood still in their strength,[1] Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn.

14 And all [w]the spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, [x]neither left they any to breathe.

15 As [y]the LORD commanded[2] Moses his servant, [z]so did Moses command Joshua, [a]and so did Joshua: [b]he left[3] nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

16 So Joshua took [c]all that land, the [d]hills, and all the south country, and all [e]the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the [f]mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same;

17 Even from the mount [5]Halak, [g]that goeth up to [h]Seir, even unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon: and [i]all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

18 Joshua made war [k]a long time with all those kings.

19 There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, save [l]the Hivites, the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle.

20 For [m]it was of the LORD to harden their hearts, that they should come against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, [n]as the LORD commanded Moses.

21 ¶ And at that time came Joshua, and cut off [o]the Anakims[6] from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: [p]Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.

22 There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: [q]only in Gaza, in Gath, and in Ashdod, there remained.

23 ¶ So Joshua took the whole land, [r]according to all that the LORD said unto Moses, and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel, [s]according to their divisions by their tribes. [t]And the land rested from war.

2 Till now we have not met with the horse anywhere except in connection with Egypt. See a very interesting note upon this subject in the Pict. Bible. 'The most striking point,' it is remarked in that note, 'is the silence concerning horses as used by the people of Arabia, which naturalists have been disposed to consider as the native country of that animal. We cannot resist the conviction that there were no horses then in that region . . . With this all ancient history accords . . . Even Strabo, who lived so late as the time of Christ, expressly describes Arabia as destitute of these animals.'

1 Heb. on their heap, Je. 30. 18. 'Stood still in their strength.' The meaning of this expression it is most difficult to ascertain. Some would render it, 'stood on the hills', and this gives a very intelligible meaning. Such cities would be most easily defended, and in these, Joshua might put garrisons, while he destroyed those in the plains, to prevent the Canaanites from resuming the occupation of them. This is the rendering of the Sam. and Vulg. Some, however, object to this rendering of the term, which properly signifies 'an heap.' Bush says, 'Heaps of lifeless bodies and of gathered spoil, would be accumulated in the streets, and wherever such a complete conquest and pillage could be easily effected without demolishing the walls, &c., these cities might be said to continue to stand upon, over, or by their ruinous heaps, i. e. heaps of the slain, and heaps of spoil.'

CHAPTER XII.

The two kings whose countries Moses took and disposed of, 1—6. The one and thirty kings on the west side of Jordan which Joshua smote, 7—24.

NOW these are the kings of the land, which the children of Israel smote, and possessed[1] their land [a]on the other side Jordan, toward the rising of the sun, [b]from the river Arnon[2] [c]unto mount Hermon, and all the plain on the east:

2 [d]Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and from the middle of the river, and from half Gilead, even unto the river [e]Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon:

3 And from the plain to the [f]sea of Chinneroth on the east, and unto [g]the sea of the plain, even the salt sea on the east, the way to [h]Beth-jeshimoth; and from the[3] south, under Ashdoth-pisgah:[4]

4 And [i]the coast of Og king of Bashan, which was of [k]the remnant of the giants, that [l]dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei,

5 And reigned in [m]mount Hermon, and in [n]Salcah, and in all Bashan, unto[o] the border of the Geshurites, and the Maachathites, and half Gilead, the border of Sihon king of Heshbon:

6 Them [p]did Moses, the servant of the LORD, and the children of Israel, smite: and Moses, the servant of the LORD, [q]gave it for a possession unto the Reubenites, and Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

7 ¶ And these are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote [r]on this side Jordan on the west, [s]from Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon, even unto the mount Halak, that goeth up to [t]Seir; which Joshua[u] gave unto the tribes of Israel for a possession,[5] according to their divisions:

8 In [v]the mountains, and in the valleys, and in the plains, and in the springs, and in the wilderness, and in the south country; [w]the Hittites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites:

9 The king of [x]Jericho, one; the king of [y]Ai, which is beside Beth-el, one;

17 The king of [o]Tappuah, one; the king of [p]Hepher,[5] one;

18 The king of [q]Aphek, one; the king of Lasharon,[6] one;

19 The king of [r]Madon, one; the king of [s]Hazor, one;

20 The king of [t]Shimron-meron, one; the king of [u]Achshaph, one;

21 The king of [v]Taanach, one; the king of [w]Megiddo, one;

22 The king of [x]Kedesh, one; the king of [y]Jokneam of [z]Carmel, one;

23 The king of [a]Dor, in the coast of Dor, one; the king of [b]the nations of [c]Gilgal, one;

24 The king of [d]Tirzah, one: all the kings thirty and one.

1 Before proceeding to describe the division of the land among the tribes of Israel, Joshua in this chapter presents us with a succinct account of the various steps by which the possession of the land had been gained, enumerating first the victories under Moses on the east of Jordan, (ver. 1-6,) and next those gained by himself, the record of which he had given in the preceding chapters.

5 In the 23rd verse of the preceding chapter, Joshua is said to have taken the whole land, & to have divided it, as is here stated. The statement refers to the whole of the land previously described, for there were still portions of Canaan not subdued. Prodigious multitudes of the inhabitants were by this time slain; but besides these, there were numbers who took refuge in the confines of the land; mention of whom occurs long afterwards: and great numbers are supposed to have fled to other countries, founding colonies in Africa, in Asia Minor, Greece, &c. According to Procopius, the Phœnicians fled before the Hebrews into Africa, spreading themselves abroad as far as the pillars of Hercules. He says that in Numidia, they erected two columns, bearing the following inscription; 'We are the persons who fled from the face of Jesus (Joshua) the plunderer, the son of Nave (Nun).'

8 This is by some supposed to be the Nile; and there is no doubt that Sihor is the name by which the prophets designate that great river, as when Jeremiah says, 'what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor?' It is not, however, the Nile which is so called in this verse, and which is elsewhere, as in the promise made to Abraham, called 'the river of Egypt.' The territory of the Philistines extended to the vicinity of El Arish; & it seems highly probable, that the Rinocohira, which there falls into the Mediterranean, is the Sihor here mentioned.

beside the Sidonians, unto [k]Aphek, to the borders of [l]the Amorites:

5 And the land of the [m]Giblites, and all [n]Lebanon toward the sun-rising, from [o]Baal-gad [p]under mount Hermon, unto[q] the entering into Hamath.

6 All the inhabitants of the hill-country, from Lebanon unto [r]Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, them[s] will I drive[1] out from before the children of Israel; [t]only divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I have commanded thee.

7 Now therefore divide[2] [u]this land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half-tribe[3] of Manasseh;

8 With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, which [v]Moses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, even as Moses, the servant of the LORD, gave them;

9 From [w]Aroer, that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all[x] the plain of Medeba unto Dibon;

12 All the kingdom of [a]Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of the remnant of the giants: for [b]these did Moses smite, and cast them out.

13 Nevertheless the children of Israel [c]expelled not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites; but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day.

14 Only [d]unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance;[5] the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them.

15 ¶ And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families.[6]

16 And their coast was [e]from Aroer, that is on the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain by Medeba;[7]

22 ¶ [m]Balaam also the son of Beor the soothsayer,[8] did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them that were slain by them.

23 ¶ And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

24 ¶ And Moses gave inheritance [n]unto the tribe of Gad, even unto the children of Gad, according to their families:

Og king of Bashan, and all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities;

31 And half Gilead, and [z]Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir, the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the children of Machir by their families.

32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan, by Jericho, eastward.

33 But unto [y]the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance;[1] the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, as he said unto them.

CHAPTER XIV.

The nine tribes and a half are to have their inheritance by lot, 1—5. Caleb by privilege obtaineth Hebron, 6—15.

AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, [a]which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads[2] of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, distributed for inheritance to them.

2 By [b]lot[3] was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half-tribe.

3 For Moses [c]had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half-tribe on the other side Jordan; [d]but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For [e]the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim; therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, [f]save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance.

5 As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

6 ¶ Then the children[4] of Judah came unto Joshua in [g]Gilgal: and Caleb[h] the son of Jephunneh [i]the Kenezite said unto him, [k]Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses, [l]the man of God, concerning me and thee, in [m]Kadesh-barnea.

7 Forty years old was I when Moses, the servant of the LORD, [n]sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land; and [o]I brought him word again as it was in mine heart.[1]

8 Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I [p]wholly followed[2] the LORD my God.

9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, [q]Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God.

10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive,[3] as he said, these [r]forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel wandered[4] in the wilderness; and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old.

11 As [s]yet I am as strong[5] this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out, and to come in.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day: (for thou heardest in that day how [t]the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced;) [u]if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive[6] them out, as the LORD said.

13 And Joshua [v]blessed him, and [w]gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron[7] for an inheritance.

14 Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day, [x]because that he wholly followed the LORD God of Israel.

15 And [y]the name of Hebron before was Kirjath-arba; which Arba was a great man among the Anakims. [z]And the land had rest from war.

CHAPTER XV.

The borders of the lot of Judah, 1—12. Caleb's portion and conquest, 13—15. Othniel for his valour, hath Achsah, Caleb's daughter, to wife, 16, 17. She obtaineth a blessing of her father, 18—20. The cities of Judah, 21—62. The Jebusites not conquered, 63.

THIS then was [a]the lot[8] of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; [b]even to the border of Edom, the wilderness of Zin, southward, was the uttermost part of the south coast.

1 As Moses was himself of the tribe of Levi, he gave a special proof that he acted by divine authority, in thus overlooking his own family and his own tribe; for, though the Levites were well provided for, yet the security of that provision was so interwoven with Israel's adherence to the worship of God, that, had they universally apostatized, the Levites would have been left destitute, whilst all the other tribes would have had possession of their estates; that is, without some immediate divine interposition. . . . This, however, implied, that they had as good a title to their tithes and perquisites, as their brethren had to their estates.—Scott.

3 This method of apportioning the land was wisely ordered, both to prevent all dispute, and to show that each received his inheritance directly from the Lord. Masius well remarks, that the portion fell to each tribe just as Jacob had declared two hundred and fifty years before, in the last moments of his life, and Moses, immediately before his death; for to the tribe of Judah fell a country abounding in vineyards & pastures; to Zebulun & Issachar, sea-coasts; in that of Asher was plenty of oil, wheat, and metals, &c. Since therefore the lot so well corresponded to these predictions, would it not be insolence and stupidity in the highest degree, not to acknowledge the inspiration of God in the word of Jacob and Moses, the direction of his hand in the lot, and his providence in the event?

It was here that the children of Israel sacrificed their children to Moloch, making them pass through the fire. On this account it was held in execration. Josiah defiled it; (2 Ki. 23. 10.) And after the captivity it was ever held in abhorrence, the Jews making it the common receptacle of all the filth of the city, and throwing into it the carcases to which they refused burial. Constant fires were kept up in the valley to consume the filth thrown into it, and hence it became an emblem of the place of torment.

12 And the west border was to [y]the great sea,[1] and the coast thereof. This is the coast of the children of [2]Judah round about, according to their families.

13 ¶ And unto [z]Caleb the son of Jephunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even the city of Arba,[3] the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

14 And Caleb drove thence [a]the three sons of Anak, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai, the children of Anak.

15 And he went [b]up thence to the inhabitants of Debir:[4] and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.

16 ¶ And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to[5] wife.

17 And [c]Othniel the son of [d]Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him [e]Achsah his daughter to wife.

18 And it came to pass, as she[6] came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and [f]she lighted off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

19 Who answered, [g]Give me a [h]blessing: for thou hast given me a south[7] land; give me also springs of water. And he gave her the [8]upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is [i]the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families.

5 Jerusalem, & especially the stronghold of Zion, was not finally reduced till the time of David. 'There is an apparent difficulty in this verse, arising from our finding Jerusalem here placed in the tribe of Judah, when in ch. 18. 28, it is assigned to Benjamin. The fact seems to be, that the boundary line between the two tribes was drawn through the valley which separated mount Sion, on which stood the fortress of the Jebusites, from mount Acra, on which the lower city stood, & from mount Moriah, on which the temple of Solomon was in after-times erected. This boundary line would give mount Sion to the tribe of Judah, and mounts Acra and Moriah to Benjamin.'—Pict. Bible.

AND the lot of the children[6] of Joseph fell[7] from Jordan by Jericho, unto [a]the water[8] of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness[9] that goeth up from Jericho, throughout mount Beth-el,
2 And goeth out from [b]Beth-el to Luz, and passeth along unto the borders of [c]Archi to Ataroth,

6 And the border went out toward the sea to [h]Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto [i]Taanath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah;

THERE was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh, (for he was [a]the first-born[2] of Joseph,) to wit, for [b]Machir,[3] the first-born of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because he was a man of war, therefore he had Gilead [c]and Bashan.

3 ¶ But [g]Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

4 And they came near before [h]Eleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, [i]The LORD commanded[6] Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren: therefore, according to the commandment of the LORD, he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

5 And there fell [k]ten[7] portions to Manasseh, [l]besides the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan;

6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest[1] of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

7 ¶ And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to [m]Michmethah, that lieth before [n]Shechem, and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.

8 Now Manasseh had the land of [o]Tappuah: but Tappuah, on the border of Manasseh, belonged to the children of Ephraim;

2 En-shemesh, 'the fountain of the sun:' whether this was a town or simply a fountain is uncertain. The frequent occurrence of similar appellations may be regarded as an indication of the idolatry of the ancient inhabitants of the land. There can be little doubt that they were addicted to the worship of the sun, & of the heavenly hosts; & the places thus named seem to have been dedicated to their false gods.

8 This, which was the end of the eastern border, must have been near the lake of Gennesaret or sea of Galilee, to which Josephus affirms the inheritance of this tribe extended. It is impossible now to fix, with accuracy, the boundaries as here described; but the common opinion seems to be correct, that the lot of Zebulun was washed by the Mediterranean on the west, and the sea of Galilee on the east, thus fulfilling the ancient prediction of Jacob, Ge. 49. 13, that Zebulun should be a 'haven of ships.'

10 It is probable that the cities here enumerated were only those which, with the districts and villages attached to them, completed the boundary line of the tribe. There must have been others in the interior of the inheritance; for, besides that the tribe was a very numerous one, we find elsewhere mention made of cities as belonging to them, the names of which do not occur here.

2 And they had in their inheritance [c]Beer-sheba, and Sheba,[1] and Moladah,

3 And [d]Hazar-shual, and Balah, and Azem,

4 And [e]Eltolad, and Bethul, and [f]Hormah,

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was [p]too much for them; therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the [q]third[2] lot came up for the children of [r]Zebulun, according to their families; and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid.

11 And their border went up toward the sea,[3] and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached to the [4]river that is before [s]Jockneam;

1 This city which has already been mentioned as belonging to the half tribe of Manasseh, though forming part of the boundary of Issachar, was a city of considerable importance, having at length become a seat of the kings of Israel. By the Greeks it was called Esdraela, and gave name to the extensive vale between the mountains of Hermon and Gilboa, which is still known as the plain of Esdraelon.

It was long the metropolis of Phœnicia, and acquired great eminence by its commerce and manufactures, which are frequently celebrated both in scripture, and by the profane authors of antiquity. Its history is intimately connected with that of Tyre, called 'the daughter of Sidon,' from the circumstance of its having been founded by a colony of Sidonians.

1 The meaning of this statement is by no means clear, for it is certain, that Naphtali did not border upon Judah on the east, nor in any other direction, the inheritance of several tribes lying between them. The Sept. omits Judah, which removes the difficulty; but it may be questioned if there be any good authority for the omission. If we retain the statement as it here occurs, the only interpretation seems to be, that since both tribes were bounded on the east by Jordan, they might be considered as in some measure conjoined by the ready communication with each other, which that river afforded. Several commentators adopt this view, and consider the statement as illustrating the prediction of Moses, (De. 33. 23.) 'Possess thou the west & the south,' which is not to be understood of their possessing any land in the south, but as indicating the advantages which Naphtali was to have of traffic, even with the distant section of the south

51 [m]These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot [n]in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle[1] of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

CHAPTER XX.

God commandeth, 1—6; and the children of Israel appoint the six cities of refuge, 7—9.

THE LORD also [a]spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, [b]Appoint out for you cities[2] of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses;

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares, and unwittingly, may flee thither: and they shall be your[c] refuge from the avenger of blood.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities[3] shall stand [d]at the entering of the gate[4] of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall [e]take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them.

5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not before-time.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, until[f] he stand before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

7 ¶ And they appointed[5] [g]Kadesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and Shechem[h] in mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba,[i] (which is Hebron) in the [k]mountain of Judah.

8 And on the other side Jordan, by Jericho eastward, they assigned [l]Bezer in the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and [m]Ramoth[6] in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and [n]Golan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh.

9 These were [o]the cities[1] appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, [p]until he stood before the congregation.

CHAPTER XXI.

Eight and forty cities given by lot, out of the other tribes, unto the Levites, 1—42. God gave the land, and rest unto the Israelites, according to his promise, 43—45.

THEN came near [a]the heads[2] of the fathers of the Levites unto [b]Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel;

2 And they spake unto them at [c]Shiloh, in the land of Canaan, saying, [d]The LORD commanded, by the hand of Moses, to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle.

3 And the children of Israel gave [e]unto the Levites, out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs.

4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and [f]the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had by lot, out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.

5 And [g]the rest of the children of Kohath had by lot, out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

6 And the children of [h]Gershon had by lot, out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 The children of [i]Merari, by their families, had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 And the children of Israel gave [k]by lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, [l]as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

2 The establishment of these sanctuaries was absolutely necessary under a system which recognized the patriarchal law respecting the avenging of blood by the person nearest of kin to the man that had been slain; and the regulations under which these cities of refuge were placed, were admirably fitted to prevent those abuses, to which the right of sanctuary has very generally been exposed. They afforded protection only to him who had slain another 'unawares and unwittingly,' & who, though thus innocent of blood, might have fallen a victim to private revenge. But the refugee was afterwards subjected to trial, and, if found guilty, was delivered up. No protection was given to the wilful murderer. Such an one might be taken even from the horns of the altar, Ex. 21. 14. It may be mentioned that sanctuary (borrowed probably from the Jews) was common among the Greeks and Romans, &c.; but, with them, the system was much abused.
c Nu. 35. 15-24.
3 The cities of refuge were distributed through the land at proper distances from each other, that they might be convenient to every part of the land; and it is said they were situated on eminences that they might be easily seen at a distance, and the roads leading to them were always kept in good repair. Kedesh and Hebron were at the two extremities of the land—the former being in Galilee, and the latter in Judah; while Shechem was situated in the central district of Canaan.

1 We seem to be warranted in considering the institution of these cities of refuge as typical of our blessed Lord, our refuge and protection. Some have considered the names of the cities as descriptive of the character and offices of Christ. Their names signify: Kedesh, holiness, Shechem, shoulder, Hebron, fellowship, Bezer, fortress, Ramoth, elevation, Golan, manifestation or joy. We may remark that they were all Levitical cities, as the Lord had previously commanded, so that the unfortunate persons who should find it necessary to flee thither, would have the full benefit of the services of those whose duty it was to instruct the ignorant and comfort the disconsolate. These advantages were equally open to the stranger and to the Israelite.

3 These tribes furnished more habitations to the Levites in proportion than any of the other tribes, because they possessed a more extensive inheritance, agreeably to what Moses had commanded, Nu. 35.8. It is worthy of remark, that the principal part of this tribe, whose business was to minister at the sanctuary, which sanctuary was afterwards established at Jerusalem, had their appointment nearest to that city; so that they were always within reach of the sacred work which God had appointed them. There seems to have been, moreover, a prospective reference to the division which at length took place, when Judah and Benjamin became an independent state. Dr Hales observes, 'by this arrangement all the sacerdotal cities (except one) lay in the faithful tribes of Judah and Benjamin, to maintain the national worship in them, in opposition to the apostacy of the other tribes.'

9 ¶ And they gave, out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, these[m] cities which are here mentioned[1] by name,

10 Which [n]the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for theirs was the first lot.

11 And they gave them the[2] city of Arba, the father of Anak, (which city is Hebron,) in the hill-country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

12 But [p]the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession.

13 ¶ Thus they gave to the children of Aaron the priest, Hebron with her suburbs, to be [q]a city of refuge for the slayer, and [r]Libnah with her suburbs,

14 And [s]Jattir[3] with her suburbs, and [t]Eshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And [u]Holon with her suburbs, and [v]Debir with her suburbs,

16 And [w]Ain with her suburbs, and Juttah[x4] with her suburbs, and [y]Beth-shemesh[5] with her suburbs: nine cities out of those two tribes.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon[z] with her suburbs, [a]Geba with her suburbs, 18 [b]Anathoth[6] with her suburbs, and Almon[c] with her suburbs: four[7] cities.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ And [d]the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

21 For they gave them [e]Shechem with her suburbs, in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and [f]Gezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim[8] with her suburbs, and [g]Beth-horon with her suburbs: four cities.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, [h]Elteke with her suburbs, Gibbethon[9] with her suburbs, 24 [i]Aijalon[10] with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs: four cities.

25 And out of the half-tribe of Manasseh, [k]Taanach[1] with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs: two cities.

26 All the cities were ten, with their suburbs, for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half-tribe of Manasseh, they gave [l]Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beeshterah with her suburbs: two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon[2] with her suburbs, [m]Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 [n]Jarmuth with her suburbs, Engannim with her suburbs: four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, [o]Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob[3] with her suburbs: four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, [p]Kedesh[4] in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and [q]Hammoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs:[5] three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites, according to their families, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, [r]Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah[6] with her suburbs, Nahalal[7] with her suburbs: four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, [s]Bezer with her suburbs, and [t]Jahazah with her suburbs, 37 Kedemoth[8] with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs: four cities.

38 And out of the tribe of Gad, [u]Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and [v]Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 [w]Heshbon with her suburbs, [x]Jazer with her suburbs: four cities in all.

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari, by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were, by their lot, twelve cities.

k ch. 17. 11; Ju.5.19. 1 Aner and Bileam are mentioned in Chronicles, instead of Taanach and Gath-rimmon. Either the cities had at this time different names, or afterwards their names were changed; or the Levites being by some means dispossessed of the cities first assigned them, received others from their brethren. 41 All the cities of the Levites, within[y] the possession of the children of Israel, were forty and eight[1] cities with their suburbs.[2]

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them: thus were all these cities.

43 ¶ And the LORD [z]gave unto Israel all the land which he sware to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

44 And [a]the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he sware unto their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

45 There [b]failed not ought of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

CHAPTER XXII.

The two tribes and half with a blessing are sent home, 1—9. They build the altar of testimony in their journey, 10. The Israelites are offended thereat, 11—20. They give them good satisfaction, 21—34.

THEN [a]Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, [b]Ye have kept all that Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded you, and have obeyed[c] my voice in all that I commanded you:

3 Ye [d]have not left your brethren these many days[3] unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

4 And now the LORD your God hath given[e] rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and [f]get you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, gave you on the other side Jordan.

5 But [g]take diligent heed to do the commandment, and the law, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, charged you, [h]to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to [i]cleave unto him, and to [k]serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul.

6 So Joshua [l]blessed them, and sent them away: and they went unto their tents.

1 Considering the numbers of this tribe, according to the last recorded census, the number of cities appropriated to them seems to be disproportionatelygrent. It is to be remembered, however, that all the citiesgiven to them are enumerated,which, as we have had occasion already to remark, is not the case with respect to the others. Moreover, they had but a very limited portion of the countryaround their cities; and still further, the rest of the tribes, if their numbers increased, so as to require it, might, by conquest, extend their boundaries; but not so the Levites. Their provision,nodoubt, was ample, for, in addition to these cities and suburbs, they had the tithes and first-fruits,&c. but still it was not so exceedingly great as, at first sight, would seem.

2 In Num. 35. 4, the suburbs are spoken of as reaching from the wall a thousand cubits, while in ver. 5, the suburbs are described as extending two thousand cubits. The explanation given by Maimonides is, 'that the thousand cubits were for suburbs, properly so called, for outhouses, barns, stables, &c.; and that the two thousand extended beyond this, and were intended as pastures for the cattle of the Levites; being in fact what are called in Le. 25. 34, "the fields of the suburbs."'

It is evident that they did not build it west of Jordan, for that was not in their territories, and the next verse expressly says, that it was 'built over against the land of Canaan.'

4 Though shaped as the altars were which were employed for the sacrifices offered unto God, this was probably a great tumulus, such as were wont to be erected in ancient times as memorials of interesting events, or of great exploits in war. From its form, however, it was designated an altar, although not intended for the offering of sacrifices, and this appears to have awakened the suspicions of the other tribes.

5 Supposing they had built this altar for sacrifice, in opposition to the command of God, they considered them as rebels against God and the Israelitish constitution. An express command had been given, that on one altar should all their sacrifices be offered up, De. 12. 5. The conduct of the western tribes, on this occasion, indicated great zeal for the glory of Jehovah. They were ready, in vindication of his honour, and to enforce obedience to his commands, to go to war with their own brethren, who had so lately been their companions in arms, and who had been their faithful allies in the war.

7 ¶ Now [m]to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh, Moses had given possession in Bashan; but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them;

8 And he spake unto them, saying, [n]Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle,[1] with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment: [o]divide[2] the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

9 And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go unto [p]the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

16 Thus saith [x]the whole congregation of the LORD, What [y]trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, [z]to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel[a] this day against the LORD?

17 [b]Is the iniquity of Peor[1] too little for us, [c]from which we are not cleansed until this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD,

18 But that ye must turn away this day from [d]following the LORD? And it will be, seeing ye rebel to-day against the LORD, that to-morrow [e]he will be wroth with the whole[2] congregation of Israel.

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be [f]unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, [g]wherein the LORD's tabernacle[3] dwelleth, and take possession among us; but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar, besides the altar of the LORD our God.

20 Did not [h]Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone[4] in his iniquity.

21 ¶ Then the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, [i]answered and said unto the [k]heads of the thousands of Israel,

22 The [l]LORD God of gods, the LORD God of gods, [m]he knoweth, and Israel[n] he shall know, [o]if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day,)

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt-offering, or meat-offering, or if to offer peace-offerings thereon, [p]let the LORD himself require it;

24 And if we have not rather done it [q]for fear of this thing, saying, In[5] time to come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What[6] have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel?

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben, and children of Gad; [r]ye have no part in the LORD: so shall your children [s]make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt-offering, nor for sacrifice:

27 But that it may be [t]a witness[1] between us and you, and our generations after us, [u]that we might do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt-offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace-offerings; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD.

28 Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us, or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, [v]Behold the [2]pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt-offerings, nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between us and you.

29 [w]God forbid[3] that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, [x]to build an altar for burnt-offerings, for meat-offerings, or for sacrifices, besides the altar of the LORD our God that is before his tabernacle.

30 ¶ And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation, and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the children of Manasseh spake, [y]it pleased[4] them.

31 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the children of Manasseh, This day[5] we perceive that [z]the LORD is among us, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD: now[6] ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD.

32 ¶ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, [a]and brought them word again.

The western tribes were willing, if this were their brethren's view, to accommodate them on the other side of Jordan, sharing with them that land in which the Lord's tabernacle dwelt. They would rather be straitened in their possessions, than have their brethren exposed to the danger of apostasy.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Joshua's exhortation before his death, 1, 2; by former benefits, 3, 4; by promises, 5—11; and by threatenings in case of disobedience, 12—16.

AND it came to pass, a long time after that [a]the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua [b]waxed old and stricken[3] in age.

2 And Joshua called for [c]all Israel,[4] and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age:

3 And [d]ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for [e]the LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.

4 Behold, [f]I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea westward.[5]

5 And the LORD your God, [g]he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, [h]as the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

6 Be ye therefore [i]very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, [k]that ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left;

7 That [l]ye come not among these nations, these that remain among you, neither[m] make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause [n]to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them:

8 But[6] [o]cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

9 For[7] the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations[8] and strong: but as for you, [p]no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 [q]One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the [r]LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

11 [s]Take good heed[1] therefore unto yourselves,[2] that ye [t]love the LORD your God.

12 ¶ Else, if ye do in any wise [u]go back, and [v]cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and [w]shall make marriages[3] with them, and go in unto them, and they to you:

13 Know for a certainty,[4] that the LORD your God [x]will no more drive out any of these nations from before you; but they shall be [y]snares[5] and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, [z]until ye perish from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

14 And, behold, this day[6] [a]I am going the way of all the earth: and ye know in all your hearts, and in all your souls, that [b]not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the LORD your God promised you; [c]so shall the LORD bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and [d]ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.

4 We are not to suppose that the whole nation were called, for it would have been impossible for such a multitude to have heard the address of their aged chief. He called for their representatives, for all Israel, even for their elders, &c. Those of the elders, judges, officers, &c. who dwelt in the same neighbourhood, formed the senate or legislative assembly of that vicinity. When all of these that belonged to any particular tribe were convened, they formed the legislative assembly of the tribe; and when they were convened from all the tribes, they formed the legislative assembly of the nation, and were the representatives of all the people. It seems to have been to such a convention as this that Joshua addressed himself; and, by such an arrangement, his words could be speedily reported to the whole body of the people.

for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they [c]presented themselves before God.

2 ¶ And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, [d]your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood[1] in old time, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and [e]they served other gods.[2]

3 And [f]I took[3] your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and gave[g] him Isaac.

4 And [h]I gave unto Isaac Jacob and Esau: and [i]I gave unto Esau mount Seir, to possess it; but [k]Jacob and his children went down into Egypt.

5 I [l]sent Moses also and Aaron, and [m]I plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them; and afterward I brought you out.

6 And I [n]brought your fathers out of Egypt: and ye came unto the sea; and [o]the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red sea.

7 And when they cried unto the LORD, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and your[p4] eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and [q]ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season.

8 And [r]I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan; and they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you.

9 Then [s]Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred[5] against Israel, and sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you:

10 But [t]I would not hearken[6] unto Balaam; therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand.

11 And [u]ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and [v]the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand.

12 And [w]I sent the hornet[1] before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites; but [x]not with thy sword, nor with thy bow.

13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and [y]cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and olive-yards which ye planted not do ye eat.

14 ¶ Now therefore [z]fear the LORD, and [a]serve him in sincerity and in truth: and [b]put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and [c]in Egypt;[2] and serve ye the LORD.

15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, [d]choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served, that were on the other side of the flood, or [e]the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but [f]as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered and said, [g]God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods;

17 For the LORD our God, [h]he it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed:

18 And the LORD drave out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land; therefore [i]will we also serve the LORD, for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, [k]Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an [l]holy God; he is [m]a jealous God; [n]he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, then [o]he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, [p]Nay; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, [q]Ye are witnesses against yourselves w Ex. 23. 28; De. 7. 20.

1 Some commentators consider this as a figurative expression, denoting evils of many kinds; but this seems unwarrantable. It had been promised, as in Ex. 23. 28, that hornets should be sent to drive out the Canaanites, and although the fulfilment of the promise is not mentioned previously, that surely is no good reason for denying the literality of the statement here. The hornet is supposed to be the zimb or dog-fly of Abyssinia, an insect little larger than the bee, but of the most formidable kind. Bruce says, that, 'as soon as this plague appears, and their buzzing is heard, all the cattle forsake their food, and run wildly about the plain till they die, worn out with fatigue, fright and hunger. All the inhabitants of the sea-coast of Melinda, down to cape Gardefan, to Zaba, and to the south coast of the Red sea, are obliged to put themselves in motion, and remove to the next sand in the beginning of the rainy season, to prevent all their stock of cattle from being destroyed.'

1 A Jewish commentator remarks upon this passage, that Joshua says this to them in order that if their hearts had been enticed by any of the idolatries of the people of the land, they should put away the pernicious thoughts that were in them; and Augustine seems to take the same view of the meaning of the passage. It must be admitted, however, that there does seem to be a reference to idols actually retained among them; and these, in conformity with the resolution previously expressed by them, they are commanded to put away.

Though idolatry was secretly practised here and there by individuals, it did not break out openly, and the nation remained faithful to Jehovah their king. To prevent future degeneracy, Joshua, in the latter part of his life, convened two assemblies, and earnestly inculcated on the rulers fidelity to Jehovah. At the last assembly he caused a new election to be made for Jehovah for their king, and to be solemnly acknowledged by the people. He erected a permanent memorial of this renewal of their homage, and recorded the whole transaction in the book of the law.'

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

THE leading design of this book is to present us with a demonstration of the faithfulness of the covenant-keeping God. To Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph, and also more lately to Moses, it had been promised, that the children of Israel should obtain possession of the land of Canaan; and of the wondrous fulfilment of these promises, this book contains the record. It exhibits, at the same time, the power of his wrath as a sin-avenging God. For many generations he had borne with the wickedness of the people of the land, giving them opportunity to repent, and waiting till the cup of their iniquities should be full, (Gen. xv. 16.) But now that the set time was come, these nations having 'despised the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering,' the vials of his wrath were poured out upon them to the uttermost. We must view the Israelites as the executioners of his vengeance. The Canaanites were destroyed, not merely to make room for the people of Israel, but because, by their aggravated sins, they had merited their fearful doom; and the Israelites were as really his instruments in this dreadful work, as were the elements of nature in the overthrow of the cities of the plain. Let it be our prayer and our endeavour, that both the one exhibition and the other may have their due effect upon our hearts. Let us behold both 'the goodness and the severity' of God. Let us fear his wrath. Let us rest in his faithfulness. These are lessons which it becomes us all to learn,—habits of mind most becoming for us to cherish. We are prone to neglect them. On the one hand, there are those, who contemplating but one aspect of Jehovah's character, forget that he possesses any moral attribute but that of benevolence and compassion, and are willing to rest their eternal well-being on his general uncovenanted mercy. These overlook the justice and holiness of his nature. They forget that he 'will, by no means, clear the guilty,' and that he 'cannot look on sin.' On the other hand, there are those who being prone to contemplate chiefly these latter attributes, are ready to write bitter things against themselves, as though his mercy were clean gone, and he would be favourable no more. Let such know that Jehovah, the just and holy One, is a God of Love. Let all look to the cross of Christ, where mercy and truth have met together.

The literal Canaan we are taught to consider as a type of that better world which is to form the eternal inheritance of the ransomed of the Lord; and although it is no where expressly asserted in scripture, that Joshua was a type of the great Deliverer, whose name he bore, assuredly we cannot contemplate his history and deeds, without having our thoughts directed to the Captain of salvation, who, as the Leader and Commander of the people, subdues their enemies under them, and leads them to the possession of the heavenly Canaan. Let this narrative, then, remind us of our Christian warfare, and encourage us to fight the good fight of faith: let it direct our hearts to Him who has spoiled the principalities and powers of darkness, and promises shortly to bruise Satan under his people's feet: let it elevate our aspirations to that glorious world of peace, and purity, and holiness—the inheritance of the saints in light.

The valedictory speeches of Joshua, it has been well remarked, give us an idea of a truly great man, and of a wise and religious governor, the only aim of whose power is the glory of God, and the lasting happiness of the community over which he presides. Oh how happy were it for the church and for the world, were such an example to be imitated by all the princes of the earth! How happy, were all professing Christians, whom Providence has placed in the responsible position of heads of families, to adopt that noble resolution, expressed in ch. xxiv. 15, 'as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!'

OF

J U D G E S.

THIS book is so called from its containing the history of the Israelites under the administration of the Judges. These were rulers raised up by God himself, though sometimes chosen by the people, who governed the Hebrew nation from the time of Joshua till the appointment of the first king. They were not simply administrators of justice, but rather avenging deliverers, who, having been made instrumental in rescuing the people from the oppressions of their enemies, afterwards exercised the office of chief ruler and judge. It does not appear that the jurisdiction of each extended over the whole nation. Several exercised authority only over a particular district. Some appear to have ruled simultaneously over different tribes, and hence one of the difficulties connected with the chronology of the period.

By whom the book was written cannot be indubitably ascertained. The most probable and most generally received opinion is, that Samuel was the author; and internal evidence assigns to the book a date coincident with his time. That the monarchy had been established before the book was written—that there was a king at the time when the author wrote, is evident from a remark which he frequently makes, in connection with the events which he records, viz. that then 'there was no king in Israel.' And that it was written very soon after the establishment of the monarchy, is obvious, as from other circumstances so from this, that the Jebusites were in Jerusalem in the time of the author, ch. i. 21; whereas we know that that people were expelled early in David's reign, 2 Sa. v. 6.

Considering the first and second chapters as introductory, the remainder of the book comprises two sections, the former extending from the third to the end of the sixteenth chapter, and embracing the history of the Judges from Othniel to Eli; while the latter, which occupies the rest of the book, narrates certain memorable transactions which seem to have occurred not long after the death of Joshua. It appears to have been so placed, as a sort of appendix, that it might not interrupt the thread of the narrative.

This book is frequently referred to in the Old Testament, and both in the Acts of the Apostles and in the Epistle to the Hebrews, in the New. It contains the record of God's long-suffering towards the Israelites, strikingly displaying his justice and his mercy—his justice in punishing their apostacies; his mercy in delivering them when they turned from the error of their ways. It comprehends a period of somewhat more than 300 years.

CHAPTER I.

The acts of Judah and Simeon, 1—3. Adoni-bezek justly requited, 4—7. Jerusalem taken, 8, 9. Hebron taken, 10. Othniel hath Achsah to wife for taking of Debir, 11—15. The Kenites dwell in Judah, 16. Hormah, Gaza, Askelon, and Ekron taken, 17—20. The acts of Benjamin, 21. Of the house of Joseph, who take Beth-el, 22—29. Of Zebulun, 30. Of Asher, 31, 32. Of Naphtali, 33. Of Dan, 34—36.

NOW, [a]after the death of Joshua, it came to pass, that the children of Israel [b]asked[1] the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first, to fight against them?

2 And the LORD said, [c]Judah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land[2] into his hand.

3 And Judah said unto [d]Simeon his brother,[3] Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and [e]I likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

4 And Judah went up; and the LORD [f]delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand: and they slew of them in [g]Bezek ten thousand men.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek[4] in Bezek; and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites.

6 But Adoni-bezek fled: and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings, having their thumbs[1] and their great toes cut off, [2]gathered their meat under my table: [h]as I have done, [i]so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

8 ¶ Now [k]the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken[3] it, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.

9 And [l]afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, that dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the valley.[4]

10 ¶ And Judah[5] went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron: (now the name of Hebron before was [m]Kirjath-arba:) and they slew [n]Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.

11 And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir: (and the name of [o]Debir before was Kirjath-sepher:)

12 And [p]Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

This may have induced the desire to prosecute the further subjugation of the land. They would not, however, engage in the undertaking without God's approbation & direction. They had the general promise of the land, but they piouslyacknowledge the Lord, & seek his counsel. It became also, in ancient times, a common punishment inflicted for flagrant crimes. This man's confession was a striking acknowledgement of the retributive justice of God.

3 Some suppose that Jerusalem had been twice taken—once in Joshua's time—and that having been recovered by the Canaanites, it was now retaken by Judah. Even after this sacking it seems to have been rebuilt and repossessed by the Canaanites. The hill of Zion was in possession of the Jebusites till the time of David.

13 And [q]Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

14 And it came to pass, when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted from off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wilt thou?

15 And she said unto him, Give me a blessing: [r] for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs and the nether springs.

16 ¶ And the children of [s]the Kenite,[1] [t]Moses' father-in-law, went up out of the [u]city of palm-trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, [v]which lieth in the south of Arad: and [w]they went and dwelt among the people.

17 And [x]Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited [y]Zephath, and utterly destroyed it: (and the name of the city was called [z]Hormah:)

18 Also Judah took [a]Gaza[2] with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof.

19 And [b]the LORD was with Judah; and he[3] drave out the inhabitants of the mountain, but [c]could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had [d]chariots of iron.[4]

20 And [e]they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moses said: and he expelled thence [f]the three sons of Anak.

21 ¶ And the children of [g]Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day.

22 ¶ And [h]the house of Joseph, they also went up against Beth-el; and [i]the LORD was with them.

23 And the house of Joseph [k]sent to descry Beth-el: (now the name of the city before was [l]Luz.)

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and [m]we will shew thee mercy.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance[1] into the city, [n]they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go the man and all his family.

26 And the man went into [o]the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

27 ¶ Neither did [p]Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of [q]Beth-shean and her towns, nor [r]Taanach and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns: but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

28 And it came to pass, [s]when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute,[2] and did not utterly drive them out.

29 ¶ Neither did [t]Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.

30 ¶ Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron,[3] nor the inhabitants of [u]Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

31 ¶ Neither did [v]Asher drive out the inhabitants of Accho,[4] nor the inhabitants of Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob:

32 But the Asherites dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land; for they did not drive them out.

33 ¶ Neither did [w]Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath; but [x]he dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath [y]became tributaries unto them.

34 And [z]the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the [5]mountain: for they would not suffer them to come down to the valley:[6]

35 But the Amorites would dwell in mount[7] Heres in [a]Aijalon, and in [b]Shaalbim; yet the hand of the house of Joseph prevailed,[8] so that they became tributaries.

36 And the coast of the Amorites was [c]from the[9] going up to Akrabbim, from the rock, and upward.

1 Whether Jethro himself accepted the invitation of Moses, (Nu. 10. 32), or not, his descendants we know did so. They remained with the Israelites, says Calmet, while they were in the wilderness, and accompanied them to Canaan. They received a lot with the tribe of Judah, and remained in the city of palm-trees; but after the death of Joshua, they united with the tribe of Judah, and went with them to attack Arad. After the conquest of that country, the Kenites established themselves there, and remained in it till the days of Saul, mingled with the Amalekites. When this king received a commandment from God to destroy the Amalekites, he sent a message to the Kenites to depart from among them, as God would not destroy them with the Amalekites. From them came Hemath, who was the father of the house of Rechab, (1 Ch. 2. 55,) and the Rechabites, of whom we have a remarkable account, Je. 35. 1, &c.

1 The assailants having seized this man, found out by his means some unguarded place or private entrance, by which they took the city. He seems to have acted not from faith, but out of fear, and therefore, when set at liberty, he did not unite interests with the worshippers of Jehovah, as Rahab had done, but retiring to his countrymen, who had sought shelter in some adjacent regions, he built a city, which he called after his own city; not Bethel, or the house of God, but according to its old name, Luz.—Scott.

It was probably from motives of avarice, more than of humanity, that they put them to tribute. Having neglected their duty, 'when they were strong,' they afterwards found themselves unable to expel them. Sin prepares its own punishment.

CHAPTER II.

An angel rebuketh the people at Bochim, 1—5. The wickedness of the new generation after Joshua, 6—13. God's anger and pity towards them, 14—19. The Canaanites are therefore left to prove Israel, 20—23.

AND [a]an angel[1] of the LORD came up from Gilgal to [b]Bochim, and said, [c]I made you to go up out of Egypt, and [d]have brought you unto the land which I sware unto your fathers; and I said, [e]I will never break my covenant with you.

2 And [f]ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land; ye shall throw down their altars: [g]but ye have not obeyed my voice; [h]why have ye done this?

3 Wherefore [i]I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and [k]their gods shall be a snare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that the[l] people lifted up their voice, and wept.

5 And they called the name of that place Bochim:[2] and [m]they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And when [n]Joshua had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 And [o]the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived[3] Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD that he did for Israel.

8 And [p]Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in [q]Timnath-heres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash.

10 And also all that generation[4] were gathered[r] unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which [s]knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel [t]did evil in the sight of the LORD, [u]and served Baalim:

12 And they [v]forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed [w]other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and [x]bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, and [y]served Baal and Ashtaroth.[1]

14 ¶ And [z]the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and [a]he delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and he [b]sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they [c]could not any longer stand before their enemies.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was [d]against them for evil, [e]as the LORD had said, and as the LORD had [f]sworn unto them: and they were [g]greatly distressed.

16 ¶ Nevertheless [h]the LORD raised up judges,[2] which delivered[3] them out of the hand of those that spoiled them.

17 And yet [i]they would not hearken unto their judges, but they went a [k]whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned [l]quickly out of the way [m]which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then [n]the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: for it [o]repented the LORD because of [p]their groanings, by reason of them that oppressed them, and vexed them.

19 And it came to pass, [q]when the judge was dead, that they returned, and corrupted[4] themselves [r]more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they ceased not from their[5] own doings, nor from their [s]stubborn way.

20 ¶ And [t]the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath [u]transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice,

21 I also [v]will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

22 That [w]through them I may [x]prove

4 The generation that had grown up in the wilderness, which had witnessed so many wonders wrought for them by Jehovah; the same generation, which, a little before the death of Joshua, had solemnly renewed the covenant with the Lord. It has been remarked, that the chapter before us claims the most attentive consideration of those who would thoroughly understand the condition of the Israelites during the several centuries which elapsed from the death of Joshua to the establishment of a regal government. It is a masterly summary of the leading principles of conduct which the subsequent circumstances illustrate.

2 Shophetim were not judges in the usual sense of the term; but were heads or chiefs of the Israelites, raised up on extraordinary occasions, who directed and ruled the nation with sovereign power, administered justice, made peace or war, and led the armies over whom they presided. The Suffetes of the Carthaginians; the Archons of the Athenians; and the Dictators of the Romans, appear to have been officers of nearly the same character. The judges, however, always conducted themselves as the officers of God. They were not merely deliverers of the state from a foreign yoke, but destroyers of idolatry, & promoters of the knowledge and service of Jehovah.

Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD, to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

23 Therefore the LORD left[1] those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

CHAPTER III.

The nations which were left to prove Israel, 1—4. By communion with them they commit idolatry, 5—7. Othniel delivereth them from Chusan-rishathaim, 8—11. Ehud from Eglon, 12—30. Shamgar from the Philistines, 31.

NOW these are [a]the nations which the LORD left, to [b]prove Israel by them; (even as many of Israel [c]as had not known all the wars of Canaan;

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel [d]might know[2] to teach them war, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof;)

3 Namely, [e]five lords of the Philistines, and all the [f]Canaanites, and the Sidonians,[g] and the Hivites that dwelt in[h] mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath.

4 And they were [i]to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

5 ¶ And the children of Israel [k]dwelt among the [l]Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites:

6 And [m]they took their daughters to be their wives,[3] and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

7 And the children of Israel [n]did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgat[4] the LORD their God, and served Baalim and [o]the groves.[5]

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD was[p] hot against Israel, and [q]he sold[6] them into the hand of [r]Chusan-rishathaim king of Mesopotamia:[7] and the children of Israel served Chusan-rishathaim eight years.

9 And when the children of Israel cried[s] unto the LORD, the LORD [t]raised up a[8] deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even [u]Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.

10 And [v]the Spirit of the LORD came[9] upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chusan-rishathaim king of Mesopotamia[1] into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chusan-rishathaim.

11 And [w]the land had rest forty years: and [x]Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

12 ¶ And the children of Israel [y]did evil[2] again in the sight of the LORD: and [z]the LORD strengthened Eglon [a]the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD.

13 And he gathered unto him the children of [b]Ammon and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed [c]the city[3] of palm-trees.

14 So the children of Israel [d]served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel [e]cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, a[4] Benjamite, a man left-handed:[5] and by him the children of Israel [f]sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger which had [g]two edges, of a cubit length; and he did gird it under his raiment [h]upon his right[6] thigh.

17 And he brought the present unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was [i]a very fat man.

18 And when he had made an[7] end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present.

19 But he himself turned again from the quarries[8] that were by Gilgal, and said, I have [k]a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence. [l]And all that stood by him went out from him.

20 And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in a [9]summer-parlour, which he had for himself alone: and Ehud said, [m]I have a message from God unto thee. And [n]he arose out of his seat.

21 And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and [o]thrust it into his belly:

22 And the haft also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly; and the dirt came out.[10]

7 In the East presents are commonly given with great parade. That which they consist of, such as balm, honey, spices, myrrh, nuts, almonds, &c. are usually separated into distinct parcels, and committed to so many bearers. From the expression of the verse here, such seems to have been the case in those which Ehud made to Eglon.

8 Or, graven images, Jos.4.20. They may have been idols set up by Eglon, the sight of which, perhaps, might inspire Ehud with fresh ardour, by exciting his indignation at this dishonour done to the living God.

23 Then Ehud went forth through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he covereth[1] his feet in his summer-chamber.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed; and, behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour: therefore they took a key, and opened them: and, behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried, and passed beyond [p]the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath.

27 And it came to pass, when he was come, that [q]he blew a trumpet[2] in the mountain[r] of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mount, and he before them.

28 And he said unto them, [s]Follow after me; [t]for the LORD hath delivered[3] your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took [u]the fords[4] of Jordan towards Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over.

29 And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all lusty,[5] and all men of valour; and there escaped not a man.

30 So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And [v]the land had rest fourscore years.

31 ¶ And after him was [w]Shamgar[6] the son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines six hundred men with an[x] ox-goad: and [y]he also delivered Israel.

CHAPTER IV.

Deborah and Barak deliver Israel from Jabin and Sisera, 1—17. Jael killeth Sisera, 18—24.

AND the children of Israel again [a]did evil in the sight of the LORD, when Ehud was dead.

2 And the LORD [b]sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, that reigned in [c]Hazor; the captain of whose host was [d]Sisera, which dwelt in [e]Harosheth of the Gentiles.

3 And the children of Israel [f]cried[7] unto the LORD; for he had nine hundred [g]chariots of iron: and twenty years he [h]mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

4 ¶ And [i]Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged[1] Israel at that time.

5 And she dwelt under [k]the palm-tree of Deborah, [l]between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel [m]came up to her for judgment.

6 And she sent and called [n]Barak the son of Abinoam out of [o]Kadesh-naphtali, and said unto him, [p]Hath not the LORD God of Israel commanded, saying, Go and draw toward mount [q]Tabor,[2] and take with thee [r]ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali, and of the children of Zebulun?

7 And [s]I will draw[3] unto thee, to the river [t]Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's[4] army, with his chariots, and his multitude; and [u]I will deliver him into thine hand.

8 And Barak said unto her, [v]If thou wilt go[5] with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.

9 And she said, I will surely go with thee: [w]notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honour; for the LORD shall [x]sell Sisera [y]into the hand of a woman.[6] And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh.

10 ¶ And Barak called [z]Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men [a]at his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now [b]Heber[7] the Kenite, which was of the children of [c]Hobab, the father-in-law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of [d]Zaanaim, which is by [e]Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to [f]mount Tabor.

13 And Sisera gathered[8] together all his chariots, even [g]nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, [h]Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: [i]is not the LORD gone[1] out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

1 Or, doeth his easement, 1 Sa. 24. 3. 'He sleepeth.' In the East it is a usual thing to sleep for a little during the heat of the day. They drop their slippers and cover their feet with their long loose garments. Hence the colloquial expression in the text. The servants of Eglon supposed that, for this purpose, he had locked himself up in his summer parlour.

15 And [k]the LORD discomfited[2] Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak [l]pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles: and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not a[3] man left.

17 Howbeit Sisera [m]fled away on his feet to the tent[4] of [n]Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was [o]peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 ¶ And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a mantle.[5]

19 And he said unto her, [p]Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink;[6] for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent; and it shall be, when any man doth come and enquire of thee, and say, [q]Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.

21 Then Jael, Heber's wife, [r]took a nail[7] of the tent, and took[8] an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote[9] the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: (for he was fast asleep and weary:) so [s]he died.

22 And, behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, [t]and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So [u]God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel.

24 And the hand of the children of Israel prospered, [10]and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

1 The circumstance that Sisera had, according to God's promise, been drawn to the Kishon, was itself an indication of the fact that the Lord had gone out before Barak. Barak having taken up an advantageous position, where he was safe from the iron chariots, might have been inclined to wait his opportunity, but now he is assured that the Lord's time was come. Accordingly he at once foregoes the advantages of his situation, and descends to the level plain. Now his faith is strong.

It is only by this supposition that the mind can reconcile itself to the conduct of Jael; conduct so much at variance with the nature of her sex, and so opposed to those laws of hospitality which are to be found even among the most barbarous nations. Taken in any other light, history does not record a more base and cruel transaction.

CHAPTER V.

The song of Deborah and Barak.

THEN [a]sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam, on that day, saying,

2 Praise[1] ye the LORD [b]for the avenging of Israel, [c]when the people willingly offered themselves.

3 Hear, [d]O ye kings; give ear, O ye princes: [e]I, even I, will sing unto the LORD; I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

4 LORD, [f]when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, [g]the earth trembled, and the heavens [h]dropped, the clouds also dropped water.

5 The [i]mountains melted[2] from before the LORD, even [k]that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

6 In the days of [l]Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of [m]Jael, [n]the high-ways were unoccupied,[3] and the travellers[4] walked through by-ways.[5]

7 The inhabitants of [o]the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose [p]a mother in Israel.

8 They chose [q]new gods; then was war in the gates: [r]was there a [6]shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governors of Israel, that [s]offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the LORD.

10 Speak,[7] ye that [t]ride on [8]white asses, [u]ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.

11 They that are delivered from [v]the noise of archers [w]in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous[9] acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of his [x]villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD [y]go down to the gates.

12 Awake, [z]awake, Deborah; awake, awake; utter a song: arise, Barak, and [a]lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then [b]he made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have dominion over the mighty.

root[1] of them against [d]Amalek; [e]after thee, Benjamin, among thy people: out of [f]Machir came down governors, and out of Zebulun they that handle[2] the pen of the writer.

15 And [g]the princes of Issachar were with Deborah; even Issachar, and also [h]Barak: he was sent on foot[3] into the valley. For the[4] divisions of Reuben there were great thoughts[5] of heart.

16 Why abodest thou among the sheep-folds,[i] to hear the bleatings of the flocks? For the[6] divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.

17 [k]Gilead abode beyond Jordan: and why did Dan remain in ships? Asher[l] continued on the sea-shore,[7] and abode in his breaches.[8]

18 [m]Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that jeoparded[9] [n]their lives unto the death [o]in the high places of the field.

19 The [p]kings came and fought; then fought the kings of Canaan in Taanach[q] by the waters of Megiddo; they[r] took no gain of money.

20 They [s]fought from heaven; [t]the stars[10] in their courses[11] fought against Sisera.

21 The river of [u]Kishon[12] swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon. [v]O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.

22 Then were the [w]horse-hoofs broken[13] by the means of the prancings,[14] the prancings of their mighty ones.

23 [x]Curse ye Meroz,[15] (said [y]the angel of the LORD,) curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because [z]they came not to the help of the LORD, [a]to the help of the LORD against the mighty.

24 [b]Blessed above women shall Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite be; blessed[16] shall she be above women in the tent.

25 He [c]asked water, and she gave him milk; she brought forth butter[17] in a lordly dish.

26 She put her hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workman's hammer; and with the hammer[18] she smote Sisera: [d]she smote off[19] his head, when she had pierced and stricken through his temples.

9 Nothing could have suggested a more vivid idea of the people's sufferings than the statement in the text. They were obliged, for safety, to leave their villages, probably during the annual incursions of their invaders, and to retire to the fastnesses in the mountains. Shaw remarks that a great way on each side of Joppa, on the sea-coast, there is a range of mountains and precipices; and that in these high situations are generally found the dens, the holes, or caves, which are so frequently mentioned in scripture, and which were formerly the lonesome retreats of the distressed Israelites.

CHAPTER VI.

The Israelites for their sin are oppressed by Midian, 1—6. A prophet rebuketh them, 7—10. An angel sendeth Gideon for their deliverance, 11—16. Gideon's present is consumed with fire, 17—24. Gideon destroyeth Baal's altar, and offereth a sacrifice upon the altar Jehovah-shalom, 25—27. Joash defendeth his son, and calleth him Jerubbaal, 28—32. Gideon's army, 33—35. Gideon's signs, 36—40.

AND the children of Israel [a]did [7]evil in the sight of the LORD; and the LORD delivered them into the hand of Midian[b] seven years.

2 And [c]the hand of Midian prevailed[8] against Israel: and because of the Midianites the children of Israel made them the [d]dens[9] which are in the mountains, and caves, and strongholds.

3 And so it was, [e]when Israel had sown, that the Midianites came up, and the Amalekites, and [f]the children of the east, even they came up against them;

4 And they encamped against them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, till[g] thou come unto Gaza; and [h]left no sustenance for Israel, neither[10] sheep, nor ox, nor ass.

5 For they came up with their cattle and their [i]tents, and they came [k]as grasshoppers for multitude; for both they and [l]their camels were without number: and they entered into the land [m]to destroy it.

6 And Israel was greatly [n]impoverished because of the Midianites; and the children of Israel [o]cried unto the LORD.

7 ¶ And it came to pass, when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD because of the Midianites,

8 That the LORD sent a prophet[1] unto the children of Israel, which said unto them, [p]Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth out of the house of bondage;

9 And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppressed you, and drave[q] them out from before you, and gave you their land;

10 And I said unto you, [r]I am the LORD your God; [s]fear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but [t]ye have not obeyed my voice.

11 ¶ And there came [u]an angel of the LORD, and sat under an oak which was in Ophrah, that pertained unto Joash the [v]Abi-ezrite: and his son Gideon[w] thrashed[2] wheat by the wine-press, to hide[3] it from the Midianites.

12 And the angel[4] of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, the[x] LORD is with thee, thou mighty man of valour.

13 And Gideon said unto him, Oh, my Lord, [y]if the LORD be with us,[5] [z]why then is all this befallen us? and where be all his miracles which [a]our fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath [b]forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.

14 And [c]the LORD looked upon him, and said, [d]Go in this thy might,[6] and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: have not I sent thee?

15 And he said unto him, Oh, my Lord, [e]wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, [f]my family[7] is poor in Manasseh, and I am [g]the least in my father's house.

16 And the LORD said unto him, Surely[h] I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man.

17 And he said unto him, [i]If now I have found grace in thy sight, then shew[k] me a sign that thou[8] talkest with me.

18 Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and [l]bring forth my present,[1] and set it before thee. And he said, I will tarry until thou come again.

19 And Gideon went in, and [m]made ready[2] a kid, [n]and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour: the flesh he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it.

20 And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh and the unleavened cakes, and [o]lay[3] them upon this rock, and [p]pour out the broth. And he did so.

21 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and there [q]rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

22 And when Gideon [r]perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas,[4] O Lord GOD! for [s]because I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face.

23 And the LORD said [5]unto him, [t]Peace be unto thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

24 Then Gideon [u]built an [6]altar there unto the LORD, and called it Jehovah-shalom:[7] unto this day it is yet in [v]Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

25 ¶ And[8] it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, [w]Take thy father's young bullock, [9]even the second bullock of seven years old, and [x]throw down the altar of Baal that [y]thy father hath, and [z]cut down the grove that is by it;

26 And [a]build an altar unto the LORD thy God upon the top of this rock,[10] in the ordered place,[11] and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt-sacrifice with the wood[12] of the grove which thou shalt cut down.

27 Then Gideon took ten men of his servants,[13] [b]and did as the LORD had said unto him: and so it was, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, that he could not do it by day, that [c]he did it by [14]night.

28 ¶ And when the men of the city

But though he judged right, when he concluded that they could not have been so distressed, if the Almighty God, who had brought them out of Egypt, had not for the time forsaken them: yet he did not suitably advert to those crimes which had provoked him to anger.—Scott.

12 But for the express command of God, this also would have been unlawful as well as his building an altar and officiating as a priest. God had enjoined that things which had been put to idolatrous uses should be destroyed.

13 The large family of Gideon's father was, it would seem, grievously infected with this idolatry; which, as Scott remarks, the more magnifies the mercy of God in preserving him & in selecting him to be Israel's deliverer. But there were some even of his servants, who were ready and willing to help in this perilous attempt.

arose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the second[1] bullock was offered upon the altar that was built.

29 And they said one to another, Who hath done this thing? And when they enquired and asked, they said, Gideon the son of Joash hath done this thing.

30 Then the men of the city said unto Joash, [d]Bring out thy son, that he may die; because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that was by it.

31 And Joash[2] said unto all that stood against him, [e]Will ye plead for Baal? will ye save him? he that will plead for him, [f]let him be put to death whilst it is yet morning: [g]if he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar.

32 Therefore on that day he called him Jerubbaal,[3] saying, Let Baal plead against him, because he hath thrown down his altar.

33 ¶ Then [h]all the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and the [i]children of the east, were gathered[4] together, and went[k] over, and pitched in [l]the valley of Jezreel.

34 But [m]the Spirit of the LORD came[5] upon Gideon, and he [n]blew a trumpet; and [o]Abi-ezer[6] was gathered after him.[7]

35 And he sent [p]messengers throughout all Manasseh; who also was gathered after him: and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.

36 ¶ And Gideon said unto God, If[7][8] thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said, 37 [r]Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor; and if the dew be on the fleece [s]only, and it be dry upon all the earth beside, then shall I know that thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said.

38 And it was so: for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew[9] out of the fleece, a bowl-full of water.

1 Many suppose that two bullocks were sacrificed by Gideon, but this does not clearly appear from the narrative. It is difficult to ascertain why the animal is distinguished by the epithet, 'second.'

2 Joash, tho' himself guilty of idolatry, was unwilling to have his son punished; and probably by what had been done, he was convinced of the sin and folly of worshipping an idol, which could not defend itself, and which needed to be saved by its devotees, instead of saving them. Probably also Joash now recollected the law against idolaters. Some, however, think, that he spoke merely as a magistrate against any who should excite a tumult by these transactions.

1 It is exceedingly difficult to determine whether Gideon desired the working of this miracle for the confirmation of his own wavering faith, or mainly to strengthen the confidence of his followers. From the circumstances of his interview with the angel, from the success of his endeavours to destroy idolatry in his father's house, the readiness of the tribes to enlist under his banner, and more especially from his being 'clothed with the spirit of the Lord,' it would seem scarcely credible that he should have desired any stronger assurance himself. 4 Gideon was certainly not at mount Gilead, east of Jordan, at this time; but rather near mount Gilboa, west of Jordan. Calmet thinks there must either have been two Gileads, which does not appear from scripture to be the case, or that the Hebrew text is corrupt, and that for Gilead we should read Gilboa. This reading, however, is not confirmed by any MS. or version. Dr Hales endeavours to reconcile the whole, by the supposition that in Gideon's army there were many eastern Manassites from mount Gilead near the Midianites; & therefore proposes to read, 'Whosoever from mount Gilead is fearful or afraid, let him return home and depart early.'

40 And God did so that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

CHAPTER VII.

Gideon's army of two and thirty thousand is by God's direction reduced to three hundred, 1—8. He is encouraged by the dream and interpretation of the barley-cake, 9—15. His stratagem of trumpets and lamps in pitchers, 16—23. The Ephraimites take Oreb and Zeeb, 24, 25.

THEN [a]Jerubbaal, (who is Gideon,) and all the people that were with him, [b]rose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, by the hill of [c]Moreh, in the valley.

2 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are [d]too many[2] for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest [e]Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, [f]Mine own hand hath saved me.

3 Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, [g]Whosoever[3] is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead.[4] And there returned of the people [h]twenty and two thousand, and there remained ten thousand.

4 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and [i]I will try them for thee there: and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

5 So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

6 And the number of them that lapped,[5] putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

7 And the LORD said unto Gideon, By[k] the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

8 So the people took victuals in their hand, and their [l]trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men. And the host of Midian was beneath him [m]in the valley.

9 ¶ And it came to pass [n]the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Arise,[o] get[1] thee down unto the host; for [p]I have delivered it into thine hand.

10 But [q]if thou fear to go down, go thou with Phurah thy servant down to the host.

11 And [r]thou shalt hear what they say; and afterward shall [s]thine hands be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the outside of the armed men[2] that were in the host.

12 And [t]the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and all the children of the east, lay along in the valley like [u]grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the sea-side for multitude.

13 And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and, [v]lo, a cake of barley-bread[3] tumbled into the host of Midian, and came into a tent, and smote it, that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay along.

14 And [w]his fellow answered and said, This is nothing else, save the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel: for [x]into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all the host.

15 ¶ And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the interpretation[4] thereof, that he [y]worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and said, [z]Arise; for the LORD hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian.

16 And he divided[5] the three hundred men into three companies, and he put a trumpet in every man's hand,[6] with [a]empty pitchers, and lamps[1] within the pitchers.[2]

17 And he said unto them, [b]Look on me, and do likewise: and, behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, it shall be, that as I do, so shall ye do.

18 When I blow with a trumpet, I and all that are with me, then [c]blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say, [d]The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

19 ¶ So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp [e]in the beginning of the middle[3] watch; and they had but newly set the watch: and they blew the trumpets, and [f]brake the pitchers that were in their hands.

20 And the three companies [g][4]blew the trumpets, and [h]brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal: and they cried, The sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

21 And they [i]stood[5] every man in his place round about the camp: and [k]all the host ran, and cried, and fled.

22 And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and [l]the LORD set every man's sword against his fellow,[6] even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah in[7] Zererath, and to the border[8] of [m]Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

23 And [n]the men[9] of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites.

24 ¶ And Gideon [o]sent messengers throughout all mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and [p]take before them the waters[10] unto [q]Beth-barah and Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and took the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.

25 And they took [r]two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb: and they slew Oreb upon the [s]rock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the wine-press of Zeeb; and pursued Midian, and brought the heads[11] of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon [t]on the other side Jordan.

1 Get thee down with thy men and attack the host. This seems to be the import of the command; but, lest Gideon should have some misgivings on account of the paucity of his men, the alternative is proposed of his going down by night along with one servant, to spy the camp of the enemy, and he is assured that the result should be the strengthening of his hands to go down afterwards to attack them. Among the Hebrews, as among the Greeks, it was not unusual for the leader of the army to undertake the office of a spy.

CHAPTER VIII.

Gideon pacifieth the Ephraimites, 1—3. Succoth and Penuel refuse to relieve Gideon's army, 4—9. Zebah and Zalmunna are taken, 10—12. Succoth and Penuel are chastised, 13—17. Gideon revengeth his brethren's death on Zebah and Zalmunna, 18—21. He refuseth the government which the people offer him, 22, 23. His ephod the cause of idolatry, 24—27. Midian subdued, 28. Gideon's children, and death, 29—32. The Israelites' idolatry and ingratitude, 33—35.

AND [a]the men of Ephraim[1] said unto him, Why[2] hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they did chide with him sharply[3]

2 And he said unto them, [b]What have I done now in comparison of you? is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abi-ezer?[c]

3 [d]God hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison[4] of you? [e]Then their anger[5] was abated toward him when he had said that.

4 ¶ And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men that were with him, [f]faint, yet pursuing them.

5 And he said unto the men of Succoth,[g] Give, I pray you, [h]loaves of bread unto the people that follow me; for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.

6 ¶ And the princes of Succoth said, Are [i]the hands[6] of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thine army?

7 And Gideon said, Therefore, when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will tear your flesh with the thorns[7] of the wilderness, and with briers.

8 And he went up thence to [k]Penuel, and spake unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

9 And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When [l]I come again in peace, [m]I will break down this tower.

10 ¶ Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of all the host of [n]the children of the east: for there [o]fell an hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword.[1]

11 ¶ And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents on the east of [p]Nobah[2] and Jogbehah, and smote the host: for the host was [q]secure.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and [r]took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and discomfited[3] all the host.

13 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash returned from battle before the sun was up,[4]

14 And [s]caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and enquired of him: and he described[5] unto him the princes of Succoth, and the elders thereof, even threescore and seventeen men.

15 And he came unto the men of Succoth, and said, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom ye did [t]upbraid me, saying, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thy men that are weary?

16 And he took [u]the elders of the city, and [v]thorns of the wilderness, and briers, and with them he [6]taught the men of Succoth.

17 And [w]he beat down the tower of Penuel, and slew the men of the city.

18 ¶ Then said he unto Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of men were they whom ye slew at [x]Tabor? And they answered, [y]As thou art, so were they; each one resembled the children of a king.[7]

19 And he said, They were my brethren, even the sons of my [8]mother: as the LORD liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you.

20 And he said unto Jether his firstborn, [z]Up, and slay them: but the youth drew not his sword; for he feared, because he was yet a youth.

21 Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, [a]Rise[9] thou, and fall upon us: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gideon arose, and [b]slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the ornaments[10] that were on their camels' necks.

4 The modesty of Gideon is here very remarkable. Employing a fine metaphor, he represents his own victory, by the three hundred men, who were chiefly of Abiezer, as little in comparison of the Ephraimites taking the princes of Midian; though the former might be called the vintage, and the other the gleaning. 'This is an argument,' says Bishop Patrick, 'of the singular modesty and prudence of Gideon, and no less conspicuous in him than his courage; which is a mixture that rarely meets together, but is absolutely necessary to make a truly great man; who never appears so great as when he treats insolent men with humility.' There is nowhere to be found a better illustration of Solomon's proverb, 'A soft answer turneth away wrath.'

6 The conduct of these men was exceeding base, in not merely denying refreshment to the soldiers who were spending their strength in the public service, but scornfully taunting them, as if they believed them incapable of subduing their enemies. They did not believe that God was with Gideon; & having been seven years under the power of the Midianites, they probably dreaded their vengeance, and therefore refused to aid those that were now pursuing them.

7 He threatened either to scourge them with thorns and briars, or, as some think, covering their naked bodies with briars, to bring the cart-wheel over them, and crush them to death. This was a kind of punishment well known in ancient times.

4 The expression, 'before the sun was up,' may be rendered, 'by the heights of Hares.' Almost all the versions render it so. Boothroyd remarks, that the route of Gideon from Penuel seems to have been across the mountains of Gilead, to the north-east of the Jabok, thro' a tract of country inhabited by the Scenites or Bedouins; hence he came unexpectedly upon the camp of the Midianites, who looked for no attack from that quarter. He appears to have returned to Succoth by another short way; namely, by the heights of Hares, or sun-hills; probably so called, because, over them, the rising sun was first seen by the inhabitants of the low country about Jordan.

24 And Gideon said unto them, I would desire a request of you, that ye would [f]give me every man the ear-rings of his prey: (for they had golden ear-rings, [g]because they were Ishmaelites.)[2]

25 And they answered, We will willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and did cast therein every man the ear-rings of his prey.

Some, as Scott observes, think that Gideon also made a 'breast-plate of judgment,' in order to enquire of God by it; nay, that other things requisite were added, sacrifices offered, and stated worship performed at Ophrah; else it is difficult to discover how so much treasure could have been expended. Gideon had been commanded, in an extraordinary manner, to offer a sacrifice in the place where the Lord appeared to him; and it is not improbable that he might be led to conclude that this authorized him to officiate as a priest occasionally at his own house, without going to the tabernacle. But whatever was his motive, his conduct proved a snare to him, the cause of his family's ruin, and an occasion of idolatry to Israel, after his death.

CHAPTER IX.

Abimelech by conspiracy with the Shechemites, and murder of his brethren, is made king, 1—6. Jotham by a parable rebuketh them, and foretelleth their ruin, 7—21. Gaal conspireth with the Shechemites against him, 22—29. Zebul revealeth it, 30—33. Abimelech overcometh them, and soweth the city with salt, 34—45. He burneth the hold of the god Berith, 46—49. At Thebez he is slain by a piece of a millstone, 50—55. Jotham's curse is fulfilled, 56, 57.

AND [a]Abimelech[2] the son of Jerubbaal went to [b]Shechem, unto his mother's brethren, and [c]communed with them, and with all the family of the house of his mother's father, saying,

2 Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem, Whether[3] is better for you, either that all[4] the sons of Jerubbaal, which are [d]threescore and ten persons, reign over you, or that one reign over you? remember also that I am [e]your bone and your flesh.

3 And his mother's brethren [f]spake of him in the ears of all the men of Shechem all these words: and their hearts inclined to follow[5] Abimelech; for they said, He is [g]our brother.[6]

4 And they gave him threescore and ten pieces of silver out of [h]the house of Baal-berith,[7] wherewith Abimelech hired [i]vain and light persons, which followed him.

5 And he went unto his father's house [k]at Ophrah, and [l]slew[8] his brethren, the sons of Jerubbaal, being threescore and ten persons, upon one stone: notwithstanding, yet Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal, was left; for he hid himself.

6 And all the men of Shechem gathered together, and all the [m]house[9] of Millo, and went and made Abimelech king, by the plain[10] of the pillar that was in Shechem.

7 ¶ And when they told it to Jotham, he went and stood in the top of [n]mount Gerizim, and lifted up his voice and cried, and said unto them, [o]Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, that God may hearken unto you.

1 Till this day the Orientals are much addicted to the use of the fable or apologue, for conveying instruction or reproof. The present is the most ancient on record, and very clearly disproves the claims of the Greeks to the invention of this interesting & effective method of communicating instruction. It is, in all respects, a beautiful specimen of the parable, elegantly turned, and, in its application, strikingly sarcastical.

2 Olive-oil was largely employed in the service of God. The priests were anointed with it; the lamps in the tabernacle were supplied with it, and it was used in meat-offerings. Hence God might be said to be honoured by it. The clause, however, may be read, 'by me they honour gods and man,' & this rendering is not at all improbable, if we suppose the parable to be accommodated to the idolatrous condition of the Shechemites. The same remark is applicable to the 13th verse where wine, it is said, 'cheereth God and man.'

The satire in the next verse is exceedingly pointed, representing the arrogance of the upstart in inviting his subjects to put their trust in his protection, under the figure of the vile bramble calling on the goodly cedars to trust in his shadow.

5 From this expression it would seem, that anointing was in use two centuries before the first kings of Israel.

28 And Gaal the son of Ebed said, [n]Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? Is not he the son of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer? Serve the men of [o]Hamor the father of Shechem; for why should we serve him?

29 And [p]would to God this people were under my hand! then would I remove Abimelech. And he said to Abimelech, [q]Increase thine army, and come out.

30 ¶ And when Zebul,[7] the ruler of the city, heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, his anger was kindled.[8]

31 And he sent messengers unto Abimelech privily,[9] saying, Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed, and his brethren, be come to Shechem; and, behold, they fortify the city against thee.

32 Now therefore up [r]by night, thou and the people that is with thee, and lie in wait in the field:

33 And it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, thou shalt rise early, and set upon the city; and, behold, when he and the people that is with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do to them as thou shalt find[1] occasion.

34 ¶ And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were with him, by night, and they laid wait against Shechem in four companies.

35 And Gaal the son of Ebed went out, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and Abimelech rose up, and [s]the people that were with him, from lying in wait.

36 And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul,[2] Behold, there come people down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said unto him, Thou [t]seest the shadow[3] of the mountains as if they were men.

37 And Gaal spake again, and said, See, there come people down by the middle[4] of the land, and another company come along by the plain of Meonenim.[5]

38 Then said Zebul unto him, Where[u] is now thy mouth,[6] wherewith thou saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? Is not this the people that thou hast despised? go out, I pray now, and fight with them.

39 And Gaal went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.

40 And Abimelech chased him, and he[v] fled before him: and many were overthrown and wounded, even unto the entering of the gate.

41 And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah:[7] and [w]Zebul thrust[8] out Gaal and his brethren, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field;[9] and they told Abimelech.

43 And he took the people, and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and, behold, the people were come forth out of the city; and he rose up against them, and smote them.

44 And Abimelech, and the company that was with him, [x]rushed forward, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and the two other companies ran upon all the people that were in the fields, and slew them.

45 And Abimelech fought against the city all that day; and he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and [y]beat down the city, and sowed it with salt.[1]

46 ¶ And when all the men of the tower[2] of Shechem heard that, they entered into [z]an hold of the house of the god Berith.

47 And it was told Abimelech, that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together.

48 And Abimelech gat him up to mount [a]Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an axe in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, [b]What ye have seen me do,[3] make haste, and do as I have done.

49 And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and [c]put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them: so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 ¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebez,[4] and encamped against Thebez, and took it.

51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men and women, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top of the tower.

52 And [d]Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and went hard unto the door of the tower to burn it with fire.

53 And a certain [e]woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all-to brake[5] his scull.

54 Then he called hastily unto the young man his armour-bearer, and said unto him, [f]Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died.

1 Heb as thine hand shall find, Le.25.26, marg; 1Sa.10.7;25.8; Ec.9.10. Zebul, it would appear, durst not openly declare himself for Abimelech. This the Shechemites would not have tolerated; & therefore he goes to work warily, informing Abimelech of his enemies' designs, and suggesting a method by which he might avenge himself.

2 The familiarity existing between these two persons shows very distinctly that Zebul had hitherto concealed his real sentiments and designs.

t Eze. 7. 7; Mar. 8. 24.

3 It being early in the morning Zebul endeavoured to convince him that he mistook the long shadows of the mountains for companies of men. Josephus represents Zebul as telling that he mistook the shadow of the rocks for men; & travellers inform us that in these places there are many detached rocks, scattered up and down, some growing out of the ground, and others fragments, broken off from precipices, which, at a distance, might be mistaken for detachments.

4 Heb. navel.

5 Or, the regarders of the times, De.18.14. This place is mentioned no where else. Some would render it 'by the oak of the augurers.' It may have been a tree or grove consecrated to superstitious auguries.

6 In proportion as Abimelech approached, Zebul begins to speak with more effrontery, and to throw off his disguise, though his words still had the air of merely exciting Gaal to go forth like a man and redeem the pledge he had before given. Gaal thus had proof that those who are rebels themselves must not expect fidelity in their associates.—Bush.

v 1 Ki. 20. 18-21, 30.

7 This place appears from the next verse to have been near Shechem: & is perhaps the same as Ruma, a village of Galilee, mentioned by Josephus, Bell. 1.3.c. 9. Hither Abimelech thought fit to retreat, watching an opportunity to be revenged on the Shechemites.

w ver. 28, 30.

8 Zebul had the stronger party on his side, otherwise he could not have expelled him; but Gaal had so many adherents that they durst not put him to death for his ill management, as no doubt they would represent it, in the late battle.

9 They went out to their ordinary agricultural employments, supposing that Abimelech had permanently withdrawn his forces.

1 Sowing a place with salt marked it out for perpetual desolation and barrenness. Sigonius observes that when Milan was taken A. D. 1162, the walls were razed, and it was sown with salt. Brantome informs us, that it was an ancient custom in France to sow the house of a man with salt, who had been declared a traitor to his king. Salt in small quantities renders land extremely fertile, but too much of it destroys vegetation. All the efforts of Abimelech, to make the desolation of his native city permanent, did not avail, for it afterwards became a place of such importance that all Israel resorted thither to make Rehoboam king, 1 Ki. 12. 1.

2 Probably a castle in the vicinity of Shechem, to which a number of the people had fled for safety. Such towers or citadels are to be found in most considerable towns of western Asia. Distrusting the protection which this tower afforded, they retreated to the hold of the god Berith: probably some strong fortress of their temple, built perhaps upon one of the mountains in the neighbourhood. It may be compared, says Patrick, to the Roman capitol, or to the temple of Jerusalem in after times, which, Josephus says, was impregnable.

4 A city of Ephraim near Shechem, and about thirteen miles west from Bethshan. Eusebius and Jerome inform us that it was in existence in their time. This city is supposed to have confederated against Abimelech; and the bloodthirsty tyrant, having taken the city, thought to burn the inhabitants with the town, as he had done at Shechem. Thus he exactly answered the character of the bramble, to which he had been compared, which may set fire to that which is nobler and better than itself.

saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ¶ Thus [h]God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, which he did unto his father, in slaying his seventy brethren:

57 And all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads: and [i]upon them came the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

CHAPTER X.

Tola judgeth Israel in Shamir; and after him Jair, whose thirty sons had thirty cities, 1—5. The Philistines and Ammonites oppress Israel, 6—9. In their misery God sendeth them to their false gods, 10—14. Upon their repentance he pitieth them, 15—18.

AND after Abimelech there [a]arose, to defend[1] Israel, Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt in [b]Shamir in mount Ephraim.

2 And he judged Israel twenty and three years, and died, and was buried in Shamir.

3 ¶ And after him arose Jair, [c]a Gileadite, and judged Israel twenty and two years.

4 And he had thirty sons that [d]rode on thirty ass-colts,[2] and they had thirty cities, which are [e]called Havoth-jair[3] unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel [f]did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and served [g]Baalim,[4] and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and [h]the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the[i] gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him.

7 And the anger of the LORD [k]was hot against Israel, and [l]he sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the children of Ammon.

8 And [m]that year[5] they vexed and oppressed[6] the children of Israel eighteen years, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan, in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead.

9 Moreover, the children of Ammon passed[n] over Jordan to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim; so that Israel was sore [o]distressed.[1]

10 ¶ And the children of Israel [p]cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both[2] because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim.

11 And the LORD said unto the children of Israel, [q]Did not I deliver you from [r]the Egyptians, and from [s]the Amorites, from [t]the children of Ammon, and from [u]the Philistines?

12 [v]The Zidonians also, and [w]the Amalekites, and [x]the Maonites,[3] did oppress you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand.

13 [y]Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other gods: wherefore I will deliver[4] you no more.

14 Go and [z]cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation.

15 ¶ And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, [a]We have sinned: [b]do thou unto us whatsoever seemeth good unto thee;[5] [c]deliver us only, we pray thee, this day.

16 And [d]they put away[6] the strange gods[7] from among them, and served the LORD: and [e]his soul was grieved[8] for the misery of Israel.

17 Then the children of Ammon were gathered together,[9] and encamped in Gilead: and the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in [f]Mizpeh.

18 And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, [g]What man is he that will begin to fight against the children of Ammon? [h]he shall be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

CHAPTER XI.

The covenant between Jephthah and the Gileadites, that he should be their head, 1—11. His embassy to the king of Ammon, which proveth fruitless, 12—28. Jephthah's vow, 29—31. His conquest of the Ammonites, 32, 33. He performeth his vow on his daughter, 34—40.

NOW [a]Jephthah the Gileadite was [b]a mighty man of valour, and he was the son of an harlot:[10] and Gilead begat Jephthah.

2 And Gilead's wife bare him sons: and his wife's sons grew up, and they [c]thrust out Jephthah, and said unto him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou art the son of [d]a strange woman.

1 Or, deliver. Heb. save. To act as judge, and, if it should be necessary, to take the field in their defence. We read of no wars during the time of Tola or his successor. The history of the period is summed up almost in a sentence. These times of peace, though barren of incident, and of which no narrative is given, were probably the best times of Israel under the judges. Then, we may believe, religion flourished, the duties of the judge being simply those of a ruler administering justice, maintainingunion, and guarding against idolatry.

3 Then Jephthah fled from his brethren,[1] and dwelt in the land of [e]Tob: and there were gathered [f]vain[2] men to Jephthah, and went out with him.

Such kind of military robbery is far from being considered dishonourable in the East. 1 The Ammonites had begun their invasion of Israel before making any statement of the grounds of it, a proof that they were conscious of having no very valid plea to urge; and when pressed to assign a reason for their conduct, they are obliged to look back three hundred years, in order to find any thing like a specious pretext,(ver. 13). Oppressors are ever anxious to give a colour of justice to their deeds. The reply of Jephthah, however, which is little more than a simple narrative of the facts of the case, shows very clearly the falsity of Ammon's pretensions.

2 In order to evince beyond dispute the falsehood and futility of the enemy's claims upon these lands, Jephthah goes into a recapitulation of the leading circumstances of Israel's coming into possession of them. He admits that they had indeed taken the territories in question, but they took them, not from the Ammonites or Moabites, whom they were expressly forbidden to molest on their march, but finding them in possession of Sihon king of the Amorites, they took them from him in just and honourable warfare, in consequence of an unprovoked attack upon them. It might indeed be true that prior to Israel's arrival in the country, the Amorites had taken these lands from the Moabites or Ammonites, Nu. 21.26; Jos.13.25, but this was no concern of theirs, nor were they bound to recognize the previous title of any people whatever. This was his first plea in support of his claims, which extends to ver. 22.

15 And said unto him, Thus saith Jephthah,[1] [x]Israel took[2] not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon:

16 But when Israel came up from Egypt, and [y]walked through the wilderness unto the Red sea, and [z]came to Kadesh;

17 Then Israel [a]sent messengers unto the king of Edom, saying, Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land: but the king of Edom would not hearken thereto. And in like manner they sent unto [b]the king of Moab; but he would not consent: and Israel [c]abode in Kadesh.

18 Then they [d]went along through the wilderness, and [e]compassed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and came by the east side of the land of Moab, and [f]pitched on the other side of Arnon, but came not within the border of Moab: for Arnon was the border of Moab.

19 And [g]Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, the king of Heshbon; and Israel said unto him, Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land unto my place.

20 But Sihon trusted not Israel to pass through his coast: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

21 And the [h]LORD God of Israel delivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they smote them: [i]so Israel possessed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country.

22 And they possessed all the coasts of the Amorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the wilderness even unto Jordan.

23 So now the LORD God of Israel hath dispossessed[3] the Amorites from before his people Israel, and shouldest thou possess it?

24 Wilt not thou possess that which [k]Chemosh[4] thy god giveth thee to possess? So [l]whomsoever the LORD our God shall drive out from before us, them will we possess.

king of Moab? did he ever strive against Israel, or did he ever fight against them, 26 While Israel dwelt in [n]Heshbon and her towns, and in [o]Aroer and her towns, and in all the cities that be along by the coasts of Arnon, [p]three hundred years? why therefore did ye not recover them within that time?

27 Wherefore I have not sinned against thee, but thou doest me wrong to war against me: the LORD [q]the Judge [r]be judge this day between the children of Israel and the children of Ammon.

28 Howbeit [s]the king of the children of Ammon hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah which he sent him.

29 ¶ Then [t]the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah, and he passed over Gilead and Manasseh, and passed over [u]Mizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed over unto the children of Ammon.

30 And Jephthah [v]vowed[1] a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou shalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, 31 Then it shall be, that whatsoever[2] cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall [w]surely be the LORD's, and[3] I will offer it up for a burnt-offering.

32 ¶ So Jephthah passed over unto the children of Ammon to fight against them; and [x]the LORD delivered them into his hands.

33 And he smote them from [y]Aroer, even till thou come to [z]Minnith, even twenty cities, and unto the plain[4] of the vineyards, with a very great slaughter. Thus the children of Ammon were subdued before the children of Israel.

34 ¶ And Jephthah came to [a]Mizpeh unto his house, and, behold, [b]his daughter came out to meet him with timbrels and with dances; and she was his only child: beside[5] her he had neither [c]son nor daughter.

35 And it came to pass, when he saw her, that he [d]rent his clothes, and said, Alas, my daughter! thou hast brought me very low, and thou art one of them that trouble me; for [e]I have opened my mouth unto the LORD, and [f]I cannot go back.

36 And she said unto him, My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth unto the LORD, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth; [g]forasmuch as the LORD hath taken vengeance for thee of thine enemies, even of the children of Ammon.

37 And she said unto her father, Let this thing be done for me: let me alone two months, that I may go[1] up and down upon the mountains,[2] and [h]bewail my virginity, I and my fellows.

38 And he said, Go. And he sent her away for two months: and she went with her companions, and bewailed her virginity upon the mountains.

39 And it came to pass, at the end of two months, that she returned unto her father, who [i]did with[3] her according [k]to his vow which he had vowed: and she knew no man. And it was a custom[4] in Israel,

40 That the daughters of Israel went yearly[5] to lament[6] the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite [l]four days in a year.

2 And Jephthah said unto them, [c]I and my people were at great strife with the children of Ammon; and when I called[10] you, ye delivered me not out of their hands.

3 And when I saw that ye delivered me not, I [d]put my life in my hands, and passed over against the children of Ammon, and the LORD delivered them into my hand: [e]wherefore then are ye come up unto me this day, to fight against me?

1 Commentators are not more divided on any point than on the true import of this vow, the question being, 'Was the daughter of Jephthah offered in sacrifice?' While we confess that an examination of the simple terms of the vow rather favours the affirmative, our opinion, from a consideration of the whole circumstances, decidedly inclines to the negative. Our limits will admit only an imperfect summary of the chief arguments on either side. In support of the view that she was offered as a sacrifice, it is argued, 1. That there is no instance in scripture of a woman being devoted to perpetual virginity. 2. That on this view, there would have been no sufficient reason for the father's great grief, or for the annual mourning on the part of the virgins of Israel. 3. The terms of the vow mentions nothing of virginity. 4. These were times of great ignorance, and Jephthah having been so long banished from his people might, in this case, practice a heathen custom. But in reply it may be stated, 1. That if there is no instance of celibacy, there is nothing in Jewish customs of human sacrifices. 2. There was sufficient cause of grief in the hope of posterity being cut off. This, in these days, was a great calamity. 3. The vow may imply consecration not a sacrifice. 4. The sacrifice of children was an abomination, Le. 20.2, & by the law she might have been redeemed, Le. 27. 4. As two months elapsed before the vow was fulfilled, all pleas of ignorance on the part of Jephthah fall to the ground.

2 This portion of the narrative is very obscure. Perhaps children were occasionally dedicated by their parents to the perpetual service of God; and when this was the case with youthful females, perhaps the custom obtained of their retiring for a season in groups to sequestered places, in token of their regret. The subject of complaint here spoken of, seems to point to perpetual virginity as having been the substance of the vow.

3 Devoted her. Bush, who inclines to the opinion that the terms of the vow itself most naturally imply the intention of sacrifice, conceives, nevertheless, that she was not put to death. 'From all the circumstances,' he says, 'the probability, we think, is very strong that Jephthah availed himself of the provisions of the law, in respect to devoted persons & things.' Boothroyd considers the remark which concludes this verse as decisive. If she was put to death in her virginity, it is needless to inform us that she knew no man; but if she was devoted to a virgin state, then this remark is just.

7 It is not certain that any thing remarkable took place during the time of these latter judges. They were perhaps times of peace, and in which religion flourished. Lightfoot, however, supposes that the 40 years' oppression of the Philistines had begun in the days of Elon, and was gradually becoming more severe through the subsequent administrations. Many are of opinion that these last four judges ruled over the eastern and northern districts, and that Samson and Eli were contemporary with them, judging in the southern and western parts.

2 ¶ And there was a certain man of [b]Zorah,[2] of the family of the Danites, whose name was Manoah; and his wife was [c]barren, and bare not.

3 And [d]the angel of the LORD appeared unto the woman, and said unto her, Behold now, thou art barren, and bearest not: [e]but thou shalt conceive, and bear a son.

6 ¶ Then the woman came and told her husband, saying, [k]A man[6] of God came unto me, and his [l]countenance was like the countenance of an angel of God, very [m]terrible: but I asked him not whence he was, neither told he me [n]his name.

7 But he said unto me, Behold, thou shalt conceive and bear a son; and now drink no wine nor strong drink, neither eat any unclean thing: for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb to the day of his death.

8 ¶ Then Manoah intreated the LORD, and said, O my lord, let the man of God which thou didst send come again unto us, and [o]teach us what we shall do unto the child that shall be born.

9 And God [p]hearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel of God came again unto the woman as she sat in the field: but Manoah her husband was not with her.

10 And the woman made haste, and ran, and shewed her husband, and said unto him, [q]Behold, the man hath appeared unto me that came unto me the other day.

11 And Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and came to the man, and said unto him, Art thou the man that spakest unto the woman? And he said, I am.

14 She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: [r]all that I commanded her let her observe.

15 ¶ And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, I pray thee, [s]let us detain[2] thee, until we shall have made ready a kid for thee.[3]

16 And the angel of the LORD said unto Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread; and if[4] thou wilt offer a burnt-offering, thou must offer it [t]unto the LORD: for Manoah knew not that he was an angel of the LORD.

17 And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour?

18 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, [u]Why askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret?[5]

19 So Manoah [v]took a kid with a meat-offering, and offered it upon a rock[6] unto the LORD: and the angel did[w] wondrously; and Manoah and his wife looked on.

20 For it came to pass, [x]when the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, that the angel of the LORD ascended in the flame of the altar: and Manoah and his wife looked on it, and fell[y] on their faces[7] to the ground.

21 (But the angel of the LORD did no more appear to Manoah and to his wife.) Then Manoah [z]knew that he was an angel of the LORD.

22 And Manoah said unto his wife, We[a] shall surely die, because [b]we have seen God.

23 But [c]his wife said unto him, If[8] the LORD were pleased to kill us, [d]he would not have received a burnt-offering and a meat-offering at our hands; neither would [e]he have shewed us all these things; nor would, as at this time, have told us such things as these.

24 ¶ And the woman bare a son, and called his name [f]Samson: and [g]the child grew, and the LORD blessed him.

25 And [h]the Spirit of the LORD began to move him at times in the camp[1] of Dan,[2] [i]between Zorah and Eshtaol.

He does not forbid him to offer a burnt-offering, but he would have him to do it intelligently. He intimates that though he might offer him a common meal as a man, yet it would not do to offer him a sacrifice as such, or while he was not in possession of full evidence that the being he thus proposed to honour was indeed divine.

CHAPTER XIV.

Samson desireth a wife of the Philistines, 1—4. In his journey to Timnath he killeth a lion, 5—7. In a second journey he findeth honey in the carcase, 8, 9. Samson's marriage-feast, 10, 11. His riddle by his wife is made known, 12—18. He spoileth thirty Philistines, 19. His wife is married to another, 20.

AND Samson went down to [a]Timnath,[3] and [b]saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines.

2 And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore [c]get[4] her for me to wife.

3 Then his father and his mother said unto him, Is there never a woman among the daughters of [d]thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou goest to take a wife of the [e5]uncircumcised Philistines? And Samson said unto his father, Get her for me; for she pleaseth[6] me well.

4 But his father and his mother knew not that [f]it was of the LORD, that he sought an occasion[7] against the Philistines: for at that time the Philistines [g]had dominion over Israel.

5 ¶ Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath; and, behold, a young lion[8] roared against him.[9]

6 And [h]the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and [i]he rent him as he would have rent a kid, and he had nothing in his hand: but [k]he told not his father or his mother what he had done.

7 And he went down and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well.

8 ¶ And after a time[10] he returned [l]to take her, and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion; and, behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase[11] of the lion.

9 And he took thereof in his hands, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.

10 ¶ So his father went down unto the woman: and Samson [m]made there a feast;[1] for so used the young men to do.

11 And it came to pass, when they saw[n] him, that they brought [o]thirty companions to be with him.

12 ¶ And Samson said unto them, I will now put forth [p]a riddle[2] unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me within the[q] seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty sheets,[3] and thirty [r]change of garments:

13 But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets, and thirty change of garments. And they said unto him, Put forth thy riddle, that we may hear it.

14 And he said unto them, [s]Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. And they[t] could not in three days expound the riddle.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh[4] day, that they said unto Samson's wife, [u]Entice thy husband, that he may declare unto us the riddle, [v]lest we burn[5] thee and thy father's house with fire: have ye called us to take[6] that we have? is it not so?

16 And Samson's wife wept before him, and said, [w]Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not: thou hast put forth a riddle unto the children of my people, and hast not told it me. And he said unto her, Behold, [x]I have not told it my father nor my mother, and shall I tell it thee?

17 And she wept before him the seven days,[7] while their feast lasted; and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because [y]she lay sore upon him: [z]and she told the riddle to the children of her people.

18 And the men of the city said unto him on the seventh day, before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey? and what is stronger than a lion? And he said unto them, If ye had not plowed[8] with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle.

19 ¶ And [a]the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he went down to Ashkelon, and slew thirty men of them, and took their spoil,[1] and gave change of garments unto them which expounded the riddle: and his anger was kindled, and he went up[2] to his father's house.

20 But Samson's wife [b]was given to his companion, whom he had used as his[c] friend.[3]

CHAPTER XV.

Samson is denied his wife, 1, 2. He burneth the Philistines' corn with foxes and fire-brands, 3—5. His wife and her father are burned by the Philistines, 6. Samson smiteth them hip and thigh, 7, 8. He is bound by the men of Judah, and delivered to the Philistines, 9—13. He killeth a thousand of them with a jaw-bone, 14—17. God openeth a fountain in Lehi to relieve his thirst, 18—20

BUT it came to pass within a while after, in the time of wheat-harvest, that Samson visited his wife with [a]a kid;[4] and he said, [b]I will go into my wife into the chamber: but her father would not suffer him to go in.

2 And her father said, [c]I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her; therefore [d]I gave her to thy companion: is not her younger sister[5] fairer than she? take her,[6] I pray thee, instead of her.

3 ¶ And Samson said concerning them, Now[7] shall I be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure.

4 And Samson went and caught three[e] hundred foxes,[8] and took firebrands,[9] and turned tail to tail,[10] and put a fire-brand in the midst between two tails.

5 And when he had set the brands on fire, [f]he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and [11]burnt up both the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives.

6 Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? and they answered, Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, because he had taken his wife, and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up, [g]and burnt[12] her and her father with fire.

7 ¶ And Samson said unto them, Though[h] ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you, and after that I will cease.

8 And he [i]smote them hip[13] and thigh with a great slaughter: and he went

This is probably right; for it appears from ver. 17, that she wept the remainder of the seven days, for which there could have been no time, if they did not threaten her till the seventh. If we retain the reading of the 'seventh,' we must understand it of the seventh day of the week, which might be the fourth of the feast.

9 ¶ Then the Philistines went up, and pitched in Judah, and spread themselves in [k]Lehi.[2]

10 And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? and they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us.

11 Then three thousand men of Judah went[3] to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, Knowest[4] thou not that the [l]Philistines are rulers over us? what is this that thou hast done unto us? and he said unto them, As they did unto me, so have I done unto them.

12 And they said unto him, We are come down [m]to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson said unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not [n]fall upon me yourselves.[5]

13 And they spake unto him, saying, No; but we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hand: but surely we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock.

14 ¶ And when he came unto Lehi, the[o] Philistines shouted against him: and [p]the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him; and [q]the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands loosed[6] from off his hands.

15 And he found a new[7] jaw-bone of an ass, and put forth his hand and took it, and [r]slew[8] a thousand men therewith.

16 And Samson said, With the jaw-bone of an ass, heaps upon heaps,[9] with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men.

17 And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking, that he cast away the jaw-bone out of his hand, and called that place Ramath-lehi.[10]

18 ¶ And [s]he was sore athirst, and called on the LORD, and said, [t]Thou hast given this great deliverance into the hand of thy servant: and now shall[u] I die for thirst, [v]and fall into the hand of [w]the uncircumcised?

19 But God clave an hollow place that was in the jaw,[1] and there came water thereout; and when he had drunk, [z]his spirit came again, and he revived: wherefore he called the name thereof En-hakkore,[2] which is in Lehi unto this day.

His conduct shows the influence this woman had over him; and justifies the remark of Solomon, that by such a character many strong ones have been cast down.

she said unto him, The Philistines[1] be upon thee, Samson. And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it toucheth[2] the fire: so his strength was not known.

10 And Delilah said[3] unto Samson, Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: [n]now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mightest be bound.

11 And he said unto her, [o]If they bind me fast with new ropes that[4] never were occupied, then shall I be weak, and be as another man.

12 Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him therewith, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. (And there were liers in wait abiding in the chamber.) And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.

13 And Delilah said unto Samson, Hitherto thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: tell me wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said unto her, If thou weavest the seven locks of my head with the web.[5]

14 And she fastened[6] it with the pin, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awaked out of his sleep, and [p]went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

15 ¶ And she said unto him, [q]How canst thou say, I love thee, [r]when thine heart is not with me? thou hast mocked me these three times, and hast not told me wherein thy great strength lieth.

16 And it came to pass, when [s]she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed[7] unto death,

17 That he told her [t]all his heart, and said unto her, [u]There hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.

18 And when Delilah saw[8] that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, [v]Come up this once; for he hath showed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and [w]brought money in their hand.

19 And [x]she made him sleep upon her knees:[1] and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave[2] off the seven locks of his head; and she began to afflict him, and his strength [3]went from him.

20 And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, [y]I will go out, as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that [z]the LORD was departed from him.

21 ¶ But the Philistines took him, [a]and put out his eyes,[4] and brought him down to Gaza, and [b]bound him with fetters of brass; and he did [c5]grind in the prison house.

22 ¶ Howbeit [d]the hair of his head began to grow[6] again after[7] he was shaven.

23 ¶ Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto [e]Dagon their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hand.

24 And when the people saw him, they [f]praised their god: [8]for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, which[9] slew many of us.

25 And it came to pass, when [g]their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house; and he made [10]them [h]sport: and they set him between the pillars.

26 ¶ And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

27 Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there: and there were upon [i]the roof about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

28 And Samson [k]called unto the LORD, and said, O Lord GOD, [l]remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen

The omission begins and ends with the same word, which accounts for it in the transcribing.
6 In order to have some idea of what is told, the reader must know, first that the looms of Palestine were extremely simple; secondly that they were worked by women; thirdly, that the web was narrow, little more perhaps than an hand's breadth; fourthly, that the woof was driven into the warp not by a reed, but by a wooden spatula; fifthly, that the end of the web was fastened to a pin or stake, fixed probably in the wall or driven into the ground; sixthly, that Samson was probably sleeping with his head on Delilah's lap when she wove his hair into the web.—Boothroyd.

me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that[m] I may be at once avenged[1] of the Philistines for my two eyes.

29 And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars[2] upon which the house stood, and on[3] which it was borne up, of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left.

30 And Samson said, Let me[4] [n]die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; [o]and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein: [p]so the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.

31 Then [q]his brethren, and all the house of his father, came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him [r]between Zorah and Eshtaol, in the burying-place of Manoah his father: [s]and he judged Israel twenty years.

CHAPTER XVII.

Of the money that Micah first stole, then restored, his mother maketh images, 1—4; and the ornaments for them, 5, 6. He hireth a Levite to be his priest, 7—13.

AND[5] there was a man of [a]mount Ephraim, whose name was Micah.

2 And he said unto his mother, The eleven hundred shekels of silver that were taken from thee, about which thou [b]cursedst, and spakest of also in mine ears, behold, the silver is with me; [c]I took it. And his mother said, Blessed[d] be thou of the LORD, my son.

3 And when he had restored the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother, his mother said, [e]I had wholly dedicated the silver unto the LORD from my hand for my son, to make a[f] graven image,[6] and a molten image: now therefore I will restore it unto thee.

4 Yet he restored the money unto his mother; and his mother took [g]two hundred shekels of silver, and gave them to the founder, who made thereof a graven image, and a molten image: and they were in the house of Micah.

5 ¶ And the man Micah had [h]an house of gods, and made an [i]ephod, and [k]teraphim, and consecrated[7] one of [l]his sons, who became his priest.

6 In those days there was [m]no king in Israel; but every man did that which was [n]right in his own eyes.

7 ¶ And there was a young man out of [o]Beth-lehem-judah of the family[1] of Judah, who was a Levite, and he sojourned there.

8 And the man [p]departed out of the city from Beth-lehem-judah to sojourn where he could find a place: and he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, as he journeyed.[2]

9 And Micah said unto him, Whence comest thou? And he said unto him, I am a Levite of Beth-lehem-judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place.

10 And Micah said unto him, [3]Dwell with me, and be unto me [q]a father and a priest, and [r]I will give thee ten shekels of silver by the year, and a suit[4] of apparel, and thy victuals. So the Levite went in.

11 And the Levite was content to dwell with the man; and the young man was unto him as one of his sons.

12 And Micah [s]consecrated the Levite; and the young man became [t]his priest, and was in the house of Micah.

13 Then said Micah, [u]Now know I that the LORD will do me good, seeing I have a Levite to my priest.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Danites send five men to seek out for them an inheritance, 1, 2. At the house of Micah they consult with the Levite, and are encouraged in their way, 3—6. They search Laish, and bring back news of good hope, 7—10. Six hundred men are sent to surprise it, 11—13. On the way they rob Micah of his priest and his consecrated things, 14—26. They win Laish, and call it Dan, 27—29. They set up idolatry, wherein Jonathan the Levite, and his sons, inherit the priesthood, 30, 31.

IN those days there was [a]no king[5] in Israel: and in those days [b]the tribe of the Danites sought them an inheritance to dwell in; [c]for unto that day all their inheritance had not fallen unto them among the tribes of Israel.

2 And the children of Dan sent of their family five men from their coasts, men[6] of valour, from [d]Zorah, and from Eshtaol, [e]to spy out the land, and to search it; and they said unto them, Go, search the land: who, when they came to [f]mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, they lodged there.

3 When they were by the house of Micah, [g]they knew the voice[7] of the young man the Levite: and they turned in thither, and said unto him, Who brought thee hither? and what makest thou in this place? [h]and what hast thou here?

2 The main weight of this building rested upon two pillars in the centre, very near together, according to the method of building in some parts of the world. 5 It is difficult to fix the chronology of this and the following trausactions. Some think them to be here in their natural order; others suppose that they happened in the time of Joshua, or soon after. It is probable, we think, that they took place in the interval after the death of Joshua and the elders that outlived him, and while the government was in a most unsettled state.

6 It is clear, from the terms of the narrative, that Micah and his mother designed to honour the true God, while yet they acted directly contrary to the law. Their case shows very distinctly the mistaken notions which, in these times of anarchy, had arisen, and which, by degrees, led to the most debased idolatry.

1 The meaning cannot be that the young man belonged to the tribe of Judah. He was a Levite. Perhaps, by the mother's side, he was connected with Judah, or the expression, 'of the family of Judah,' may refer to Bethlehem, intimating that he had lived in that Levitical city, which was in the tribe of Judah.

2 Heb. in making his way.

3 The proposals of Micah do not seem to have been very advantageous; but the Levite thought the situation honourable, & a kind of preferment; especially as Micah spoke of his being a father & a priest. Thus he was induced to intrude into the sacerdotal office; and Micah presumed to consecrate him. And so satisfied was Micah with what he had done, that he deemed himself sure of the Lord's blessing on that account; for it seems he deemed the priesthood of his son informal. But instead of having now done better, he had added to all his other crimes, that of tempting a Levite to act as a priest, and to commit idolatry.—Scott. The whole narrative intimates that Micah designed to worship the true God. Wishing to imitate the service of the priests, he had provided all the articles which he thought necessary for the establishment of God's worship in his own house, ver. 5. The phrase there rendered 'an house of Gods,' may be read, 'an house for his God.' But his zeal was without knowledge.

11 ¶ And there went from thence of the family of the Danites, out of Zorah, and out of Eshtaol, six hundred men appointed[8] with weapons of war.

12 And they went up, and pitched in [v]Kirjath-jearim, in Judah: wherefore they called that place [w]Mahaneh-dan unto this day; behold, it is behind Kirjath-jearim.

13 And they passed thence unto mount[x] Ephraim, and came unto the house of Micah.

14 ¶ Then answered the five men that went to spy out the country of Laish, and said unto their brethren, Do ye know that there is [y]in these houses an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? now[z] therefore consider[9] what ye have to do.

15 And they turned thitherward, and came to the house of the young man the Levite, even unto the house of Micah, and saluted[1] him.

16 And the [a]six hundred men appointed with their weapons of war, which were of the children of Dan, stood by the entering of the gate.

17 And the [b]five men that went to spy out the land went up, and came in thither, and took [c]the graven image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image: and the priest stood[2] in the entering of the gate, with the six hundred men that were appointed with weapons of war.

18 And these went into Micah's house, and fetched the carved image, the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image: then said the priest unto them, What do ye?

19 And they said unto him, Hold thy peace, [d]lay thine hand upon thy mouth,[3] and go with us, and be to us [e]a father and a priest: is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or that thou be a priest unto a tribe[4] and a family in Israel?

20 And the priest's [f]heart was [5]glad; and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst[6] of the people.

21 So they turned and departed, and put the little ones, and the cattle, and the carriage, before them.

22 ¶ And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses near[7] to Micah's house were gathered together, and overtook the children of Dan.

23 And they cried unto the children of Dan: and they turned their faces, and said unto Micah, [g]What aileth thee, that thou comest[8] with such a company?

24 And he said, Ye have taken away my gods[9] which I made, and the priest, and ye are gone away; and [h]what have I more? and what is this that ye say unto me, What aileth thee?

25 And the children of Dan said unto him, Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest angry[10] fellows run upon thee, and thou lose[11] thy life, with the lives of thy household.

26 And the children of Dan went their way: and when Micah saw that

1 Degeneracy had, by this time, prevailed to a great extent. These men of Dan manifest no indignation when informed that a rival sanctuary had been set up, and that an unauthorized Levite had assumed the duties of the sacred office. With this how strikingly does the conduct of the tribes contrast, with reference to their brethren on the other side of Jordan, in the days of Joshua! Jos.22. 11, &c.

2 As the Levite uses the word Jehovah, and as the Danites succeeded according to the oracle delivered by him, some are of opinion that the worship established by Micah was not of an idolatrous kind. It is obvious, however, that whatever may have been the intention of Micah, his whole procedure was directly contrary to God's express command. Though he worshipped Jehovah, it was in a way unauthorized, nay, strictly forbidden. And as to the oracle uttered by the Levite, its expressions, it must be confessed, are exceedingly ambiguous.

These men were very ignorant, and concluded that they should, by taking Micah's gods, secure the presence and favour of the God of Israel in their expedition & settlement. They perhaps supposed the piety of their motives, and the goodness of their intentions, would justify the end. But it was a base robbery of Micah, aggravated by the Levite's ingratitude and their menaces.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Levite goeth to Beth-lehem to fetch home his concubine, 1—15. An old man entertaineth him at Gibeah, 16—21. The Gibeonites abuse his concubine to death, 22—28. He divideth her into twelve pieces, which he sendeth to the twelve tribes of Israel, 29, 30.

AND it came to pass in those days, [a]when there was no king in Israel, that there was a certain Levite sojourning on the side of [b]mount Ephraim, who took to him a concubine[5] out of Beth-lehem-judah.[c]

2 And his concubine [d]played the whore against him, and went away from him unto her father's house to Beth-lehem-judah, and was there four[6] whole months.

3 And her husband arose, and [e]went after her, to [f]speak friendly[7] unto her, and to bring her again, having [g]his servant with him, and a couple of asses: and she brought him into her father's house; and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him.

4 And his father-in-law, the damsel's father, retained him; and he abode with him three days: so they did eat and drink, and lodged there.

5 And it came to pass on the fourth day, when they arose early in the morning, that he rose up to depart: and the damsel's father said unto his son-in-law, Comfort[1] thine heart with a morsel of bread,[2] and afterward go your way.

6 And they sat down, and did eat and drink both of them together: for the damsel's father had said unto the man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and [h]let thine heart be merry.

7 And when the man rose up to depart, his father-in-law urged him; therefore he lodged there again.

8 And he rose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart: and the damsel's father[3] said, Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried until[4] afternoon, and they did eat both of them.

9 And when the man rose up to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant, his father-in-law, the damsel's father, said unto him, Behold, now the day draweth[5] toward evening, I pray you tarry all night: behold, the [6]day groweth to an end; lodge here, that thine heart may be merry; and [i]tomorrow get you early on your way, that thou mayest go home.[7]

10 But the man would not tarry that night, but he rose up and departed, and came over[8] against [k]Jebus, (which is Jerusalem,) and there were with him two asses saddled; his concubine also was with him.

11 And when they were by [9]Jebus, the day was far spent; and the servant said unto his master, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in unto this city of [l]the Jebusites, and lodge in it.

12 And his master said unto him, We will not turn aside hither into the city of a stranger, that is not of the children of Israel; we will pass over to Gibeah.[10]

13 And he said unto his servant, Come, and let us draw near to one of these places to lodge all night, in [m]Gibeah, or in Ramah.

14 And they passed on, and went their way; and the sun went down

4 The true reading here very probably is 'Moses' for 'Manasseh.' It seems almost certain that this Jonathan, the grandson of Moses, was the same who had been Micah's priest; and how touchingly does it speak for the magnanimous disinterestedness of that truly great man, that not only did he twice decline the offer of the aggrandizement of his own family, when the Lord proposed to make of him 'a great nation,' but that, neglecting all opportunities of enriching his descendants, he left his sons undistinguished from common Levites by rank or patrimony, and so poor that one of his grandsons was glad to accept a situation which afforded him only his victuals, with a suit of clothes and less than twenty-five shillings by the year.—*Pict. 2 The orientals have generally two meals a day, one from ten to twelve in the morning, & the other, which is the principal, about seven in the evening. As they usually rise as soon as it is light, and there is a long interval to breakfast, they usually take some small matter that cannot be called a meal, such as a crust of bread and a cup of coffee. What we understand here is, that the hospitable father-in-law persuaded the Levite to delay his journey, both on the fourth and fifth days, till after the late breakfast, at which he engaged him so long, that the lateness of the hour for commencing a journey furnished him with an argument to induce the Levite to stay another day. 'Until afternoon,' in the 8th verse, explains what is meant by 'the day groweth to an end,' in the 9th verse. This does not mean that it was late in the evening, but that it was, as the marginal reading has it, 'the pitching time of the day,' that is, the time about the middle of the afternoon, when travellers, who, (unless they journey by night,) start at daybreak, begin to think of pitching their tents for their rest and refreshment till the following morning. This was a late hour to begin a journey; but not so late but that a person bent on proceeding might hope to make considerable progress before sunset.

upon them when they were by Gibeah, which belongeth to Benjamin.

15 And they turned aside thither, to go in, and to lodge in Gibeah: and when he went in, he sat him down in a street of the city; for there was [o]no man[1] that took them into his house to lodging.

16 ¶ And, behold, there came an old[2] man from [p]his work out of the field at even, which was also of mount Ephraim; and he sojourned in Gibeah: but the men of the place were Benjamites.

17 And when he had lifted up his eyes, he saw a way-faring man in the street of the city: and the old man said, [q]Whither goest thou? and whence comest thou?

18 And he said unto him, We are passing from Beth-lehem-judah toward the side of mount Ephraim; from thence am I: and I went to Beth-lehem-judah, but I am now going to the[r] house[3] of the LORD; and there is no man that receiveth me to house.

19 Yet there is both straw and provender for our asses; and there is bread and wine also for me, and for thy handmaid, and for the young man which is with thy servants: there is no want of any thing.

20 And the old man said, [s]Peace be with thee: howsoever, [t]let all thy wants lie upon me; only [u]lodge not in the street.

21 So he brought him into his house, and gave provender unto the asses: and [v]they washed their feet, and did eat and drink.

22 ¶ Now, as they were making their hearts merry, behold, [w]the men of the city, certain [x]sons of Belial, beset the house round about, and beat at the door, and spake to the master of the house, the old man, saying, [y]Bring forth the man that came into thine house, that we may know him.

23 And [z]the man, the master of the house, went out unto them, and said unto them, Nay, my brethren, nay, I pray you, do not so wickedly; seeing that this man is come into mine house, do[a] not this folly.

24 Behold, here is my daughter,[4] a maiden, and his concubine; [b]them I will bring[1] out now, and [c]humble ye them, and do with them what seemeth good unto you: but unto this man do not so[2] vile a thing.

26 Then came the woman in the dawning of the day, and fell down at the door of the man's house where [f]her lord was, till it was light.

27 And her lord rose up in the morning, and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way; and, behold, the woman his concubine was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the threshold.

28 And he said unto her, Up, and let us be going: [g]but none answered. Then the man took her up upon an ass, and the man rose up, and gat him unto his place.

29 ¶ And when he was come into his house, he took a knife, and laid hold on his concubine, and [h]divided[4] her, together [i]with her bones, into twelve pieces, and sent her into all the coasts of Israel.

30 And it was so, that all that saw it said, There was no such deed done nor seen from the day that the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day: [k]consider of it take advice, and speak your minds.

CHAPTER XX.

The Levite in a general assembly declareth his wrong, 1—7. The decree of the assembly, 8—11. The Benjamites, being cited, make head against the Israelites, 12—17. The Israelites in two battles lose forty thousand, 18—28. They destroy by a stratagem all the Benjamites, except six hundred, 29—48.

1 There was probably no inn or house of public entertainment in this place; and therefore they could not have a lodging unless furnished by mere hospitality. In these circumstances the reception which the stranger met with can be accounted for only by the extreme wickedness of the men of the place. There was no humanity left among them. The rights of hospitality were despised.

2 He that was himself but a sojourner in Gibeah, was the more compassionate to a way-faring man. Good people, says Henry, that look upon themselves but as strangers and sojourners in this world, should, for this reason, be tender to one another, because they all belong to the same better country, and are not at home here.

4 His earnest desire to preserve the laws of hospitality (which was a thing very sacred in those days,) made him forget the care he ought to have had to preserve his daughter's purity. He hoped also, perhaps, that they were not grown yet so wicked as to offer this injury to a neighbour, though they regarded not what they did to strangers, which made him offer them the man's concubine also, supposing it better than to let them do violence to her husband.—Patrick. This is almost all that can be advanced in extenuation of the old man's proposal. He may have intended to impress them with an idea of his abhorrence of their purpose, hoping that, instead of acceding to his proposal, the making of a proposal so awfully painful to himself, might have induced them to desist.

1 He had previously endeavoured, by the use of friendly terms, by expostulating with them on the enormity of the crime which they designed to perpetrate, and by urging the rights of hospitality which were wont to be considered sacred, to divert them from their brutal purpose. But all was in vain. The men were, indeed, sons of Belial; vile, profligate fellows.

3 After all that can be said in extenuation of the guilt of some of the parties, we cannot dissent from the following remarks of Clarke. 'The men of Gibeah who wished to abuse the Levite; the Levite who wished to save himself at the expense of the modesty of his wife; and the old man who wished to save his guest at the expense of the violation of his daughter; are all characters that humanity & modesty wish to be buried in everlasting oblivion.

4 It is probable, that with the pieces he sent to each tribe a circumstantial account of the barbarity of the men of Gibeah; & that they considered each of the pieces as expressing an execration. That a similar custom prevailed in ancient times is evident from 1 Sa. 11. 7. And Lucian, speaking of the Scythians and Molossians, says, 'When any one had received an injury, & had not the means of avenging himself, he sacrificed an ox, and cut it in pieces, which he caused to be dressed and publicly exposed. All who chose to take part in the injury which had been committed, took up a piece of the ox, and swore to stand by him.'

3 (Now [h]the children of Benjamin heard[1] that the children of Israel were gone up to Mizpeh.) Then said the children of Israel, Tell[2] us, how was this wickedness?

4 And the[3] Levite, the husband of the woman that was slain, answered and said, [i]I came unto Gibeah that belongeth to Benjamin, I and my concubine, to lodge.

5 And the men of Gibeah rose against me, and [k]beset the house round about upon me by night, and thought to have slain me; and my concubine have they forced,[4] that she is dead.

6 And I took my concubine, and cut[l] her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel: for they have committed lewdness and [m]folly in Israel.

7 Behold, [n]ye are all children of Israel; [o]give here your advice and counsel.

8 ¶ And all the people arose [p]as one man, saying, [q]We will not any of us go to his tent, neither will we any of us turn into his house:

9 But now, this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah; we will go up [r]by lot against it;[5]

10 And we will take ten men of an hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victual[6] for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought in Israel.

11 So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, knit[7] together as one man.

12 ¶ And the tribes of Israel [s]sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, What wickedness is this that is done among you?

13 Now therefore [t]deliver[8] us the men, [u]the children of Belial, which are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and [v]put away evil from Israel. But the children of Benjamin [w]would not hearken[9] to the voice of their brethren the children of Israel:

14 But the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together out of the cities unto Gibeah, [z]to go out to battle against the children of Israel.

15 And the children of Benjamin were numbered at that time, out of the cities, [y]twenty and six thousand men that drew sword, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbered seven hundred chosen men.

16 Among all this people there were seven hundred chosen men [z]left-handed; every one could [a]sling[1] stones at an hair-breadth, and not miss.

17 And the men of Israel, besides Benjamin, were numbered [b]four hundred thousand men that drew sword: all these were men of war.

18 ¶ And the children of Israel arose, and went up to the [c]house[2] of God, and [d]asked counsel of God, and said, Which of us shall go up first to the battle against the children of Benjamin? And the LORD said, [e]Judah shall go up first.

19 And the children of Israel [f]rose up in the morning, and encamped against Gibeah.

20 And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin; and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight against them at Gibeah.

21 And [g]the children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah, and [h]destroyed[3] down to the ground of the Israelites that day twenty and two thousand men.

22 ¶ And the people, the men of Israel, [i]encouraged themselves, and set their battle again in array, in the place where they put themselves in array the first day.

23 (And the children of Israel went up and [k]wept before the LORD until even, and asked counsel[4] of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up again to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother? And the LORD said, Go up against him.)

24 And the children of Israel came near against the children of Benjamin the second day.

25 And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and [l]destroyed[5] down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword.

5 The abhorrence of the crime here expressed, and the determination of the Israelites to punish the criminals, were very proper; but they seem to have acted with too much precipitation and resentment. There were 'with them also sins against the Lord:' the abomination of Gibeah was both an evidence and effect of national degeneracy, and it called for deep humiliation and lamentation, that such wickedness had been wrought in Israel, as well as for indignation against the criminals. They ought to have begun with personal and national repentance and reformation; with solemn sacrifices and earnest supplications. — Scott.

1 The sling appears to have been the most ancient instrument employed for discharging missiles. In skilful hands it became a weapon of astonishing power. Practice rendered the aim so certain, that the object, even though minute, was seldom missed; and the impetus communicated to the missile was such, that defensive armour was quite inadequate to resist it; shields and helmets it broke to pieces. The inhabitants of the Balearic islands (Majorca & Minorca,) were celebrated for their skill in the use of this instrument, to which it would seem they were carefully trained from their earliest years. They did not allow their children to break their fast, till they had struck down the bread they were to eat from the top of a pole or some distant eminence.

5 God had ulterior designs to effect beyond the merited punishment of the Benjamites. He had great moral lessons to teach, not to the men of that age only, but to the most distant generations. Especially may we suppose that he purposed by such a result, to impress upon our minds the conviction, that the success of any cause depends not solely upon its intrinsic goodness, but also upon its being conducted with a right spirit and by proper means.—Bush.

26 ¶ Then all the children of Israel, and all the people, went up, and came unto the house of God, and [m]wept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted that day until even, and offered[1] burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD.

27 And the children of Israel [n]enquired of the LORD, (for [o]the ark of the covenant of God was there[2] in those days;

28 And [p]Phinehas,[3] the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, [q]stood before it in those days,) saying, [r]Shall I yet again go out to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother, or shall I cease? And the LORD said, [s]Go up; for to-morrow I will deliver them into thine hand.

29 ¶ And Israel set [t]liers in wait[4] round about Gibeah.

30 And the children of Israel went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day, and put themselves in array against Gibeah, as at other times.

31 And the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were drawn[u] away from the city; and they began to smite[5] of the people, and kill, as at other times, in the highways, of which one goeth up to the[6] house of God, and the other to [v]Gibeah in the field, about [w]thirty men of Israel.

32 And the children of Benjamin said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first. But the children of Israel said, [x]Let us flee, and draw them from the city unto the highways.

33 And all the men of Israel [y]rose up out of their place, and put[7] themselves in array at Baal-tamar; and the liers in wait of Israel came forth out of their places, even out of the meadows[8] of Gibeah.

34 And there came against Gibeah ten[z] thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and the battle was sore: but they [a]knew not that evil was near them.

35 And the LORD[9] smote Benjamin before Israel: and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day [b]twenty and five thousand and an hundred men: all these drew the sword.[10]

36 So the children of Benjamin saw that they were smitten: [c]for the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted unto the liers in wait which they had set beside Gibeah.

37 And [d]the liers in wait hasted, and rushed upon Gibeah; and the liers in wait drew[1] themselves along, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword.

38 Now[2] there was an appointed sign[3] between the men of Israel [4]and the liers in wait, that they should make a great flame[5] with smoke to rise up out of the city.

39 And [e]when the men of Israel retired in the battle, Benjamin began to smite[6] and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons; for they said, Surely they are smitten down before us, as in the first battle.

40 But when the flame began to arise up out of the city with [f]a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites [g]looked behind them, and, behold, the flame[7] of the city ascended up to heaven.

41 And when the men of Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin [h]were amazed:[8] for they saw that evil was[9] come upon them.

42 Therefore they turned their backs[10] before the men of Israel unto the way of the wilderness; but [i]the battle overtook them; and them which came out of the cities they destroyed in the midst of them.

43 Thus they [k]inclosed the Benjamites round about, and chased them, and trode them down with[11] ease,[12] over against Gibeah toward the sun-rising.

44 And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men: all these were men of valour.

45 And they turned and fled toward the wilderness unto the rock of [l]Rimmon:[13] and they gleaned of them in the highways five thousand men; and pursued hard after them unto Gidom, and slew two thousand men of them.

46 So that all which fell that day of Benjamin were [m]twenty and five thousand men that drew the sword; all these were men of valour.

47 But [n]six hundred men turned

It is not improbable that, from the nature of the ground on which they formerly fought, the numbers of Israel gave them no advantage, and hence their recourse to this stratagem. The management of the stratagem is very largely described in the ensuing verses, but it is sufficient to remark, that in its general features it bears a great resemblance to that which had been employed with so much success by Joshua in the taking of Ai, Jos. 8. 1-29.

Sometimes God suffers wicked men to be lifted up in successes and hopes, that their fall may be the sorer. See how short their joy is, and their triumphing but for a moment. Evil was near them & they did not know it; they saw, when it was too late to prevent it, that evil was come upon them. What evils may at any time be near us we cannot tell, but the less they are feared, the heavier they fall; sinners will not be persuaded to see evil near them, but how dreadful will it be when it comes, and there is no escaping! 1 Th. 5. 3.'

10 This, it has been remarked, is undoubtedly an erroneous rendering. As we read the original, instead of turning their backs, they turned their faces towards the enemy. Seeing their city on fire, and all hope cut off in that quarter, they again face the enemy with a determination, if possible, to cut a passage thro' them, and escape to the wilderness. But while attempting this, the ambush from the city fell upon them in the rear, so that they were properly said to be 'destroyed in the midst of them,' i.e. between the two divisions.

CHAPTER XXI.

The people bewail the desolation of Benjamin, 1—7. By the destruction of Jabesh-gilead they provide them four hundred wives, 8—15. They advise them to surprise the virgins that danced at Shiloh, 16—25.

NOW the men of Israel [a]had sworn[4] in Mizpeh, saying, [b]There shall not any of us give [c]his daughter unto Benjamin to wife.

2 And the people came to [d]the house of God, and abode there till even before God, and [e]lifted up their voices, and wept[5] sore;

3 And said, O LORD God of Israel, why[f] is this come to pass in Israel, that there should be to-day one tribe lacking in Israel?

4 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people [g]rose early, and built[h] there an altar,[6] and offered burnt-offerings, and peace-offerings.

5 And the children of Israel said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel that came not up with the congregation unto the LORD? for they had made [i]a great oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh, saying, He shall surely be put to death.[7]

6 And the children of Israel [k]repented them for Benjamin their brother, and said, There is one tribe cut off[8] from Israel this day.

7 How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have sworn[l] by the LORD, that we will not give them of our daughters to wives?

8 ¶ And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel that came not up to Mizpeh to the LORD? And, behold, there came none to the camp from Jabesh-gilead[m] to the assembly.

9 For the people were numbered, and, behold, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead[9] there.

10 And the congregation sent thither twelve thousand men of the valiantest, and commanded them, saying, [n]Go and smite the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword, with the women and the children.

11 And this is the thing that ye shall do, Ye shall utterly[1] destroy [o]every male, and every woman that hath lain by man.[2]

12 And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead four hundred young virgins,[3] that had known no man by lying with any male; and they brought them unto the camp to [p]Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

13 And the whole congregation sent some to[4] speak to the children of Benjamin that were in [q]the rock Rimmon, and to call[5] peaceably unto them.

14 And Benjamin came again at that time; and they gave[6] them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead: and yet so [r]they sufficed[7] them not.

15 And the people [s]repented them for Benjamin, because that the LORD had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

16 ¶ Then the elders of the congregation said, How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin?

17 And they said, There must be [t]an inheritance[8] for them that be escaped of Benjamin, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel.

18 Howbeit we may not give them wives of our daughters: for the children of Israel have [u]sworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin.

19 Then they said, Behold, there is a[v] feast[9] of the LORD in Shiloh [10]yearly, in a place which is on the north[11] side of Beth-el, on[12] the east side of[13] the highway that goeth up from Beth-el to Shechem, and on the south of Lebona.

20 Therefore they commanded the children of Benjamin, saying, Go and lie in wait in the vineyards;

1 It is scarcely possible to imagine any thing more horrid than the indiscriminate and relentless slaughter of both innocent and guilty mentioned in this chapter. The crime of the men of Gibeah was great, but there was no adequate cause for this relentless extermination of a whole tribe. There was neither justice nor judgment in the case; they were on all sides brutal, cruel, and ferocious: and no wonder; there was no king in Israel—no effective civil government, & every man did what was right in his own eyes.—Clarke.

1 This statement is frequently repeated, to account for the many lawless deeds recorded in this and the preceding chapters. It was a time of complete anarchy. While we shudder at many of the revolting events which are narrated, we cannot but admire the impartiality of the historian, in recording facts, which reflected so much dishonour on the whole nation. Even this affords proof of the authenticity of the narrative.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF JUDGES.

The history of Israel under the Judges is fitted to deepen our conviction of the depravity and untowardness of the heart of fallen man. It does little more than present us with scene after scene of rebellion and apostacy on the part of those who had been favoured above every other people. As in the narrative of Joshua we beheld the just vengeance of God manifested against the idolatrous Canaanites, so here do we behold his wrath poured out upon the backsliding Israelites, for he is no respecter of persons; while at the same time his abundant mercy is conspicuously displayed, in his readiness to pardon their iniquities, and to deliver them from their sufferings, whenever they were brought to the exercise of genuine repentance. We may, perhaps, be astonished at the ingratitude of this nation, and their continual proneness to rebel, notwithstanding the great things which the Lord had done for them. But let us not forget the apostle's admonition: 'Thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest; for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things;' an admonition most strikingly applicable to all who continue in sin under the light of the glorious gospel—who continue impenitent under that system of grace, the privileges of which transcend those of the former dispensation, even as the splendour of noon-day exceeds the uncertain light of the early dawn. It may be important also to observe, that although the narrative presents us with little else than a succession of apostacies on the part of Israel, we are not at liberty to infer, that during the long period which this history embraces, religion had altogether ceased to flourish. We know that such an inference would be incorrect. On this point Dr Graves justly remarks, that 'by a superficial reader, the whole period under the Judges may be easily mistaken for an uninterrupted series of idolatries and crimes, from his not observing that the lapses which incurred punishment, and the divine deliverances which attended repentance, are related so fully as to occupy almost the whole narrative; while long periods, when, under the government of the Judges, the people followed God, and the land enjoyed peace, are passed over in a single verse, as productive of no events which required a particular detail.'

We must remark that not a few of the actions here recorded as performed by those whom God selected as the instruments of his will, were justifiable only on the supposition of a divine warrant, which, in the circumstances, altogether superseded the general rules of conduct. Such were the deeds of Ehud and of Jael. In respect too to some other incidents, it is obvious, that the sacred writer does not vindicate all that he relates. The indiscriminate massacre of the people of Jabesh-Gilead, and the carrying off of the virgins at Shiloh, cannot possibly be defended on the principles which the scriptures elsewhere furnish. In all such cases, as has been remarked, and in the recorded characters of God's ministers who are brought before us in this book, we perceive the traces of human infirmity; and while we discriminate between the lights and shades that mark the picture, it cannot be questionable what parts of their conduct we are called to imitate, and what to avoid. Without attempting or wishing in the slightest degree to extenuate the guilt of certain actions committed by God's servants, we may remark, that in judging of the conduct of the patriarchs and early believers on some occasions, we are apt to forget that the light enjoyed by them was feeble compared with that with which we are blessed. Theirs was but the dawn; ours is the noon-day: and this single consideration, though it may not extenuate, will at least account for many of their deeds, which otherwise seem almost inexplicable. Let us beware of attempting to find in such records an apology for our own sins. To do this, frequent alas! though the habit be, is to indicate the most determined depravity. It is to make the holy oracles promoters of wickedness, and God himself the favourer of sin.

Let the case of Micah warn us against the beginnings of evil, and against 'will-worship' in all its forms. He seems to have been sincere in his desire of worshipping the one Jehovah, yet was his false step the opening, it would appear, of the flood-gates of idolatry, which threatened soon to overflow the whole land. 'Resist the beginning' must ever be our maxim in waging the spiritual war to which we have been called. If this be neglected, our resistance will generally be found too late. The gigantic tree was once a little seed which an insect might have crushed. The mighty river at its source is but a little brook which a child can step over. Evils of the greatest magnitude begin with what we consider trifles.

Let the remark, which towards the conclusion of the book so frequently occurs, as if to account for the abounding of impiety and wickedness, viz. that 'in those days there was no king in Israel,' increase our gratitude to God for his ordinance of the powers that be, and teach us to appreciate the blessings of well-regulated society, and lead us often to the throne of grace on behalf of all in lawful authority over us, that under them we may be enabled to lead a quiet and peaceable life, in all godliness and honesty.

R U T H.

THIS interesting book, which derives its name from the person whose history it contains, is generally ascribed to the pen of Samuel; and bears internal evidence of not having been written, at least, before his time. It may be viewed as an appendix to the book of Judges; and, indeed, in the ancient Jewish canon, Judges and Ruth formed but one book. It is certain that the period which it embraces was during the time of the Judges, (ch. i. 1,) but under which of them cannot be satisfactorily ascertained.

The design of the book seems to be to record the genealogy of king David through the line of Ruth; and the adoption of this heathen proselyte into the line of Messiah has generally been viewed as a fore-intimation of the admission of the Gentiles into the church of Him who was spoken of as 'the desire of all nations.' The narrative, at the same time, presents a singular illustration of the superintendence of providence, and of Jehovah's care over those who sincerely fear him. The book is written throughout with beautiful simplicity, and furnishes us with an affecting representation of the manners of the times. It is referred to, Mat. i. 5; Luke iii. 31, 33.

BEFORE CHRIST, 1186.—YEAR FROM THE FLOOD, 1162.—CREATION FROM TISRI, OR SEPTEMBER, 2818.—THIS CHRONOLOGY IS UPON THE SUPPOSITION THAT OBED WAS FORTY YEARS OF AGE AT THE BIRTH OF JESSE; AND JESSE FIFTY AT THE BIRTH OF DAVID.

CHAPTER I.

Elimelech driven by famine into Moab, dieth there, 1—3. Mahlon and Chilion his sons, having married wives of Moab, die also, 4, 5. Naomi returning homeward, 6, 7; dissuadeth her two daughters-in-law from going with her, 8—13. Orpah leaveth her, but Ruth with great constancy accompanieth her, 14—18. They two come to Beth-lehem, where they are gladly received, 19—22.

NOW it came to pass, in the days when [a]the judges[1] ruled,[2] that there was [b]a famine in the land: and a certain man of [c]Beth-lehem-judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Naomi,[d] and the name of his two sons Mahlon and Chilion, [e]Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah: and they came into the country of Moab, and continued[3] there.

3 And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died; [f]and she was left, and her two sons.

4 And they took them [g]wives[4] of the women of Moab; the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth: [h]and they dwelt there about ten years.

5 And [i]Mahlon and Chilion died also both of them; [k]and the woman was left of her two sons and her husband.

6 ¶ Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the LORD had [l]visited his people [m]in giving them bread.

1 Under which of the judges cannot be ascertained; but from the statement immediately following, many conjecture that the period referred to must have been in the days of Gideon, the only famine of which we have any account in the time of the judges, being that occasioned by the incursions of the Amalekites, &c. 4 Unless prior to their marriage, these women had become proselytes to the Hebrew faith, the sons of Naomi acted contrary to the law. 7 The affection between Naomi and her daughters-in-law is very pleasing, & it is worthy of remark, that she holds out no improper inducement to them to accompany her. For their own sakes she would have them to return, rather than to share with her the privations of widowhood. The whole narrative is deeply affecting and instructive.

7 Wherefore [n]she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and [o]they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law, [p]Go, return each to her mother's[1] house: [q]the LORD deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with [r]the dead, and with me.

9 The LORD grant you that ye may find [s]rest, each of you in the house of her husband.[2] Then [t]she kissed them: and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

11 And Naomi said, Turn again, my daughters; why will ye go with me? are there yet any more sons in my womb,[3] [v]that they may be your husbands?

12 Turn again, my daughters; go your way; for I am [w]too old to have an husband. If I should say, I have hope, if I[4] should have an husband also to-night, and should also bear sons, 13 Would ye tarry[5] for them till they were grown? would ye stay for them from having husbands? nay, my daughters; for it[6] grieveth me much for your sakes, that [x]the hand of the LORD is gone out against[7] me.

and wept again: and [y]Orpah kissed her mother-in-law; but [z]Ruth clave unto her.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law [a]is gone back unto her people, and unto [b]her gods:[1] [c]return[2] thou after thy sister-in-law.

16 And Ruth said, Entreat[3] me not to[d] leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for [e]whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: [f]thy people shall be my people, and [g]thy God my God.

17 Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried:[4] [h]the LORD do so to me, and more also, if ought [i]but death part thee and me.

18 When she saw that she was[5] stedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

19 ¶ So they two went until they came to Beth-lehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Beth-lehem, that [k]all the city was moved[6] about them; and they said, [l]Is this Naomi?

20 And she said unto them, Call me not Naomi,[7] call[8] me Mara:[9] for the[m] Almighty hath [n]dealt very bitterly with me.

21 I went out full, [o]and the LORD hath brought me home again empty: why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the[p] LORD hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Beth-lehem in [q]the beginning of barley-harvest.

CHAPTER II.

AND Naomi had a [a]kinsman of her husband's, [b]a mighty man of wealth, of the family of Elimelech; and his name was [c]Boaz.

2 And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go to the field, and [d]glean ears of corn after him,[10] in whose sight I shall find grace. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter.

3 And she went, and came, and [e]gleaned in the field after the reapers: and her hap[1] was to light on a part of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech.

4 ¶ And, behold, Boaz came from Beth-lehem, and said unto the reapers, [f]The LORD be with you. [g]And they answered him, The LORD bless[2] thee.

5 Then said [h]Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this?

6 And [i]the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, [k]It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab:

7 And she said, [l]I pray you, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves: so she came, and hath [m]continued even from the morning until now, that she tarried a little in the house.[3]

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, [n]my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but [o]abide here fast by my maidens.

9 Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men that they shall not [p]touch[4] thee? and when thou art athirst, [q]go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men have drawn.

10 Then she [r]fell[5] on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, [s]Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldest take knowledge of me, [t]seeing I am a stranger?

11 And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been shewed me [u]all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law since the death of thine husband; and how [v]thou hast left thy father and thy mother and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not heretofore.

2 This mutual salutation of Boaz and his reapers, is highly impressive. The pious affectionate language interchanged between them, and which appears to have been familiar to them, shows, as Scott remarks, that there were many godly persons in Israel, notwithstanding national defections; and beautifully illustrates the genuine effect of true religion, in producing affability in superiors, respect and affection in inferiors, and mutual unaffected good will in all.

thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken friendly[1] unto thine handmaid, though I be [y]not like unto one of thine handmaidens.

14 And Boaz said unto her, [z]At meal-time come[2] thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar.[3] And she sat beside the reapers: and he reached her [a]parched corn, and [b]she did eat, and was sufficed, and left.

15 And when she was risen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and reproach[4] her not:

16 And [c]let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her, and leave them, that she may glean them, and rebuke her not.

17 So [d]she gleaned in the field until even, and beat[5] out that she had gleaned: and it was about an [e]ephah of barley.

18 ¶ And she took it up, and went into the city; and her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned: and she brought forth, and gave to her that [f]she had reserved[6] after she was sufficed.

19 And her mother-in-law said unto her, Where hast thou gleaned to-day? and where wroughtest thou? [g]blessed be he that did take knowledge of thee. And she shewed her mother-in-law with whom she had wrought, and said, The man's name with whom I wrought to-day is [h]Boaz.

20 And Naomi said unto her daughter-in-law, [i]Blessed be he of the LORD, who [k]hath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead. And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, one[7] of our next kinsmen.[8]

21 And Ruth the Moabitess said, He said unto me also, [l]Thou shalt keep fast by my young men, until they have ended all my harvest.

22 And Naomi said unto Ruth her daughter-in-law, [m]It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they meet[9] thee not in any other[10] field.

23 So she [n]kept fast by the maidens of Boaz to glean unto the end of barley-harvest, and of wheat-harvest; and dwelt with her mother-in-law.

2 I cannot devise, says Patrick, how the ancient Jews came to apply these words to the kingdom of Messiah, and to his suffering condition here in this world; but so it is, that the Midrash upon this place makes these words, come thou hither, to signify as much as come to thy kingdom; & the morsel dipt in vinegar, to denote the reproaches and torments of the Messiah; which is an argument that they expected such a king as should be exposed to such sufferings as our blessed Saviour endured, who saith in the Psalmist, 'They gave me vinegar to drink,' Ps. 69. 21; and this perhaps was the original of this application of the words of Boaz to the Messiah, whose coming they longed for, and found it foretold in more places than we are aware of.
3 Vinegar, roh of fruits, &c. are used for this purpose in the East to the present day; into which, says Dr Shaw, they dip the bread and hand together. In hot seasons, vinegar was used as a cooling and refreshing sauce. It was probably mingled with a small portion of oil.

By Naomi's instruction, 1—5, Ruth lieth at Boaz's feet, 6, 7. Boaz acknowledgeth the right of a kinsman, 8—13. He sendeth her home in the morning with six measures of barley, 14—18.

THEN Naomi her mother-in-law said unto her, My daughter, [a]shall I not seek rest[1] for thee, that it [b]may be well with thee?

2 And now [c]is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? behold, he winnoweth[2] barley to-night in the thrashing-floor.

3 Wash[3] thyself therefore, and [d]anoint thee, and [e]put thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating[4] and drinking.

4 And it shall be, when he lieth down, that thou shalt mark the place where he shall lie, and thou shalt go in, and uncover[5] his feet, and lay thee down; and he will tell thee what thou shalt do.

5 And she said unto her, All that thou sayest unto me I will do.

6 ¶ And she went down unto the floor, [f]and did according to all that her mother-in-law bade her.

7 And when Boaz had eaten and drunk, and [g]his heart was merry,[6] he went to lie down at the end of the heap of corn; and she came softly, and uncovered his feet, and laid her down.

8 ¶ And it came to pass at midnight, that the man was afraid, and [7]turned himself, and, behold, a woman lay at his feet.

9 And he said, Who art thou? and she answered, I am [h]Ruth thine handmaid: [i]spread[8] therefore thy skirt over thine handmaid; for thou art a[9] near kinsman.

10 And he said, [k]Blessed be thou of the LORD, my daughter; for thou hast shewed more kindness[10] in the latter end than [l]at the beginning, inasmuch as thou followedst not young men, whether poor or rich.

11 And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for [m]all the city[11] of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman.

12 And now, it is true that I am thy near kinsman: howbeit [n]there is a kinsman nearer than I.

Boaz probably slept upon a rug, sheep skin, or thick quilt, and was covered with another, or by his cloak. 13 Tarry this night, and it shall be in the morning,[1] that [o]if he will perform unto thee the part of a kinsman, well; let him do the kinsman's part: but if he will not do the part of a kinsman to thee, then will I do the part of a kinsman to thee, as [p]the LORD liveth: lie down until the morning.

14 ¶ And she lay at his feet until the morning: and she rose up before one could know[2] another. And he said, [q]Let it not be known that a woman came into the floor.

15 Also he said, Bring the vail[3] that thou hast upon thee, and hold it. And when she held it, [r]he measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her: and she went into the city.

16 And when she came to her mother-in-law, she said, Who[4] art thou, my daughter? And she told her all that the man had done to her.

17 And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty[5] unto thy mother-in-law.

18 Then said she, [s]Sit still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall: for the man will not be in rest until he have finished the thing this day.

CHAPTER IV.

Boaz calleth into judgment the next kinsman, 1—5. He refuseth the redemption according to the manner in Israel, 6—8. Boaz buyeth the inheritance, 9, 10. He marrieth Ruth, 11, 12. She beareth Obed the grandfather of David, 13—17. The generations of Pharez unto David, 18—22.

THEN went Boaz up [a]to the gate,[6] and sat him down there: and, behold, [b]the kinsman of whom Boaz spake came by; unto whom he said, Ho,[c] such a one! turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside, and sat down.

2 And he took ten[7] men of [d]the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat down.

3 And [e]he said unto the kinsman, Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech's:

4 And I[8] thought to advertise thee, saying, [f]Buy it [g]before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it; but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know: [h]for there is none to redeem[1] it besides thee; and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it.

5 Then said Boaz, What[2] day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, [i]to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance.

6 ¶ And the kinsman said, I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I mar[3] mine own inheritance: redeem thou my right to thyself; for I cannot redeem it.

7 Now this was the manner in former time in Israel, concerning redeeming, and concerning changing, for to confirm all things; [k]a man plucked off his shoe,[4] and gave it to his neighbour: and this was a testimony in Israel.

8 Therefore the kinsman said unto Boaz, Buy it for thee: so he drew off his shoe.

9 ¶ And Boaz said unto the elders, and unto all the people, [l]Ye are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi.

10 Moreover, Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, [m]have I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that [n]the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place: [o]ye are witnesses this day.

11 And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders, said, We are witnesses. [p]The LORD make the woman that is come into thine house like [q]Rachel and like Leah, which two did [r]build the house of Israel; and [5]do thou worthily in [s]Ephratah, and [6]be famous in Beth-lehem:

12 And let thy house be like [t]the house of Pharez,[7] [u]whom Tamar bare unto Judah, of [v]the seed which the LORD shall give thee of this young woman.

13 ¶ So Boaz [w]took Ruth, and she was his wife: and when he went in unto her, [x]the LORD gave her conception, and she bare a son.

But they do not consider that in these countries it was a better sort of corn than it is in these parts of the world; for bread was commonly made of it, and that not only by the poor, but the better sort; of which we find examples both in the Old Testament & in the New.

It was afterwards ordained that after a man had espoused a woman, he should marryher publicly, after the example of Boaz, for if, says he, it had been enough to do it privately, many would have taken a harlot into their houses, for a time, and pretended she was their wife.

1 The law on this matter was to the effect, that if a man died without issue his nearest kinsman was to marry the widow and raise up children to the deceased, the first-born son of this union being considered in all respects as the son and heir of the dead. It has been remarked, that this law did not originate with Moses. It was in force at a much earlier time, (Ge. xxxviii.) and is therefore to be regarded as one of those prevalent usages which the law of Moses subjected to certain limitations and directions which did not previously exist. Analagous usages have prevailed among different nations, both ancient and modern.

2 Or rather, according to various MSS. and versions, 'In the day thou purchasest the land from the hand of Naomi, thou wilt also acquire Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead,' &c. This is Boaz's statement of the case to his kinsman, before the people and elders.

4 A common token of the transference of right, and which still obtains. According to the law, this act should have been performed by the woman, who was, at the same time, to spit either at or before him. Perhaps the ignominy is here spared, as this man so readily makes over his right, and renders an excuse for not discharging the duty himself. In the middle ages the giving of a glove was the ceremony of investiture.

16 And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it.

17 And [e]the women her neighbours gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.

18 ¶ Now these are the [1]generations of Pharez: [f]Pharez begat Hezron, CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE BOOK OF RUTH.

THIS beautiful narrative presents us with a fine illustration of the Lord's providential care over them that fear Him. He has promised that their bread shall be given them, and their water shall be sure; and, although they may be brought into straits, and encompassed with difficulties, the word of his promise endureth for ever. Let us cherish the habit of acknowledging him in all our ways, and he shall direct our paths. It were well if we were more in the habit of observing his providential dealings. This would teach us to rely more implicitly upon him, and would bring before us many tokens of his goodness, which, alas, we are too apt to overlook. 'Whoso is wise, and will observe these things, even they shall understand the loving-kindness of the Lord,' Ps. cvii. 43. The whole history of this pious woman furnishes an interesting illustration of that passage in Hannah's song: 'The Lord maketh poor, and maketh rich: he bringeth low, and lifteth up. He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for the pillars of the earth are the Lord's, and he hath set the world upon them,' 1 Sam. ii. 7, 8.

The narrative, moreover, exhibits to us a striking picture of the true convert. Willing to suffer affliction with the people of God, Ruth turned away for ever from her idols, forsaking, along with them, her kindred and her father's house, and, with full purpose of heart, cleaving to the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings she had come to trust. Nothing but a high degree of faith and of devotedness, could have prompted to, and sustained, conduct such as this: but let us not forget that, though such sacrifices may not be demanded of us, we must be ready, if required, to make them; for 'whosoever,' saith Jesus, 'loveth father or mother, &c., more than me, is not worthy of me.'

The circumstance that Ruth, by her marriage with Boaz, became one of the progenitors of David, in whose line Messiah was to come, may have been intended to pre-intimate the admission of the Gentiles into the Christian church. She was the great-grandmother of the king of Israel. It is indeed interesting to find, as we do in more than this instance, that Gentiles were honoured to become links in this sacred chain—progenitors of Him who was to be 'the desire of all nations.' But oh! let us seek that greater honour, and far more blessed connection, which union to Him, by saving faith, secures. Let us do his will, and he will not be ashamed to call us brethren; for he hath thus spoken, 'Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother,' Mark iii. 35.

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL,

OTHERWISE CALLED THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS.

In the Hebrew manuscripts of the bible the two books of Samuel form but one; while in the ancient Greek and Latin translations, as well as in some of the modern versions, they are called, 'The First and Second Books of the Kings or Kingdoms,' our books of Kings being the third and fourth. In 1 Ch. 29. 29, it is said, that the acts of David are written 'in the book of Samuel the seer, and in the book of Nathan the prophet, and in the book of Gad the seer.' It is an ancient and probable tradition, that Samuel wrote the first twenty-four chapters of the first book, and from that circumstance, his name was, for the sake of brevity, given to the whole history. Gad was a co-temporary of David in the first part of his reign, and Nathan in the last; and hence it is not unlikely that the former continued Samuel's narrative to the time of David's establishment in Hebron, (1 Sa. xxv. down to 2 Sa. 5. 3,) and that Nathan completed it to the period of David's death, for he was one of those who assisted at the anointing of Solomon, not long before that event.

The first book of Samuel is taken up with an account of the transactions in the Jewish church and commonwealth, from the birth of Samuel, when Eli was judge, to the death of Saul the first king. It comprises a period of about eighty years according to the common Chronology, but Hales lengthens it out to ninety-four years. The date of Samuel's birth he fixes in the nineteenth year of Eli's administration, and his prophetic call in the thirty-first year of it, when he was twelve years old. The contents may be classed under three great divisions. I. The events which occurred during the government of ELI, ch. i.—iv. II. The transactions during the administration of SAMUEL, ch. v.—xii. III. The history of the reign of SAUL, ch. xiii.—xxxi. This book contains some predictions which were not long in being fulfilled, such as the fate of Eli's house, 1 Sa. 2. 31, 35, compared with 1 Ki. 2. 27. In the song of Hannah we find the first reference to 'the Messiah' by name, ch. 2. 10. Samuel is reckoned by the Jews the first in order of the prophets strictly so called; compare Heb. 11. 32, with Ps. 99. 6. The history throws much light on many of the Psalms; it is frequently cited by Christ and his apostles as part of the holy oracles; and the account which it contains of the origin and rise of David forms a natural introduction to the prophecies concerning HIM who was to reign upon his throne for ever.

CHAPTER I.

Elkanah a Levite, having two wives, worshippeth yearly at Shiloh, 1—3. He cherisheth Hannah, though barren, and provoked by Peninnah, 4—8. Hannah in grief prayeth for a child, 9—11. Eli at first rebuking her, afterwards blesseth her, 12—18. Hannah having born Samuel, stayeth at home till he is weaned, 19—23. She presenteth him to the Lord according to her vow, 24—28.

NOW there was a certain man of [a]Ramathaim-zophim,[1] of [b]mount Ephraim, and his name was [c]Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, an Ephrathite:[d2]

2 And he had [e]two wives; the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other Peninnah: and Peninnah had children, [f]but Hannah had no children.

3 And this man went up out of his city yearly[3] [g]to worship and to sacrifice unto the LORD of hosts in [h]Shiloh: and the [i]two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, the priests of the LORD, were there.

4 ¶ And when the time was that Elkanah [k]offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and her daughters, portions:

5 But unto Hannah he gave a worthy[1] portion;[2] for [l]he loved Hannah: but the LORD had [m]shut up her womb.

6 And her [n]adversary also [3]provoked her sore, for to make her fret, because the LORD had shut up her womb.

7 And as he did so [o]year by year, when[4] she went up to the house of the LORD, so she provoked her: therefore she wept, and did not eat.

8 Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, [p]why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? [q]am not I better to thee than ten sons?

9 ¶ So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk: (now Eli the priest sat upon a seat[5] by a post of [r]the [6]temple of the Lord:)

10 And she was in[7] bitterness of soul, and [s]prayed unto the LORD, [t]and wept sore.

11 And she [u]vowed a vow, and said, O LORD of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look [v]on the affliction of thine hand-

1 In ver. 19 it is called Ramah, i. e. the 'height;' Ramthaim (the dual number) meaning the'double-height.' The Ha-Ramathaim of the Hebrew was easily changed into the Arimathea of the Greek; but if this was the city of Joseph, they are in error who identify it with Ramlah, a place comparatively modern, between Joppa and Jerusalem. It rather corresponds to Ramah lying north of Jerusalem, now a village called Nebi-Sahamuil (i. e. the prophet Samuel) where his supposed tomb is pointed out. The 'Zophim' denotes the Zophites or posterity of Zuph, Elkanah's remote ancestor. The land of 'Zuph' occurs ch. 9. 5.

maid, and [w]remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man-child,[1] then I will give him unto the LORD all the days of his life, and [x]there shall no razor come upon his head.[2]

12 ¶ And it came to pass, as she continued[3] praying before the LORD, that Eli marked her mouth.

13 Now Hannah, she [y]spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli thought [z]she had been drunken.

14 And Eli said unto her, [a]How long wilt thou be drunken? [b]put away thy wine from thee.

15 And Hannah answered and said, No,[c] my lord; I am a woman of a sorrowful spirit:[4] I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured[d] out my soul before the LORD.[5]

16 Count not thine handmaid for a[e] daughter of Belial;[6] for [f]out of the abundance of my complaint[7] and grief have I spoken hitherto.

17 Then Eli answered and said, Go[g] in peace: and [h]the God of Israel grant thee thy petition that thou hast asked of him.

18 And she said, 'Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman [k]went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad.

19 ¶ And [l]they rose up in the morning early, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah: and Elkanah knew Hannah his wife; [m]and the LORD remembered her.

20 Wherefore it came to pass, when the time[8] was come about, after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son, and called his name Samuel,[9] saying, [n]Because I have asked him of the LORD.

21 And [o]the man Elkanah, and all his house, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly sacrifice, and his vow.

22 But Hannah went not up;[10] for she said unto her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned, [p]and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, [q]and there abide [r]for ever.

23 And Elkanah her husband said unto her, [s]Do what seemeth thee good:[1] tarry until thou have weaned him; only [t]the LORD establish his word.[2] So the woman abode, and gave her [u]son suck until she weaned him.

24 ¶ And when she had weaned him, [v]she took him up with her, with three bullocks,[3] and one ephah[4] of flour, and a bottle of wine, and brought him unto the [w]house of the LORD in Shiloh; and the child was young.

25 And they slew a bullock, and [x]brought the child to Eli.

26 And she said, O my lord! [y]as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.

27 [z] For this child I prayed; and [a]the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of him:

28 Therefore also I have [5]lent[6] him to the LORD; as long as he liveth [7]he shall be lent to the LORD. And [b]he worshipped[8] the LORD there.

6 The LORD [r]killeth, and maketh alive: [s]he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

7 The LORD [t]maketh poor, and maketh rich: he [u]bringeth low, and lifteth up.

8 He raiseth up [v]the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to [w]set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for [x]the pillars of the earth are the LORD's, and he hath set the world upon them.

9 He [y]will keep the feet of [z]his saints, and the wicked shall [a]be silent in darkness; for [b]by strength shall no man prevail.

10 The [c]adversaries of the LORD shall be broken to pieces; out of heaven shall [d]he thunder upon them: the LORD shall [e]judge the ends of the earth; and [f]he shall give strength unto his King, and [g]exalt the horn of his Anointed.[h][1]

11 And Elkanah went to Ramah to his house: and the child did [i]minister unto the LORD before Eli the priest.

12 ¶ Now [k]the sons of Eli were [l]sons of Belial; they [m]knew not the LORD.

13 And the priests' custom[2] with the people was, that, when any man offered sacrifice, the priest's servant came, while the flesh was in seething, with a flesh-hook of three teeth in his hand:

14 And he struck it into the pan, or kettle, or caldron, or pot; [n]all that the flesh-hook brought up the priest took for himself. So they did in Shiloh unto all the Israelites that came thither.

15 Also, [o]before they burnt the fat, the priest's servant came, and said to the man that sacrificed, Give flesh to roast for the priest; for he will not have sodden flesh of thee, but raw.

16 And if any man said unto him, Let them not fail to burn the fat presently,[3] and then take as much as thy soul desireth; then he would answer him, Nay; but thou shalt give it me now: and if not, [p]I will take it by force.

17 Wherefore the sin of the young men was very great [q]before the LORD; for men [r]abhorred the offering of the LORD.

18 ¶ But Samuel [s]ministered before the LORD, being a child, girded with [t]a linen ephod.

19 Moreover, his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him [u]from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice.

20 ¶ And Eli [v]blessed Elkanah and his wife, and said, The LORD give thee seed of this woman for the loan[1] which is lent to the LORD. And they went unto their own home.[2]

21 And the LORD [w]visited Hannah, so that she conceived, and bare three sons and two daughters. And the child Samuel [x]grew before the LORD.

22 ¶ Now Eli [y]was very old, and heard all that his sons [z]did unto all Israel; and how they lay with the women that assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.[3]

23 And he said unto them, [a]Why do ye such things? for I hear[4] of your evil dealings [b]by all this people.[5]

24 Nay, my sons; for it is [c]no good report that I hear: [d]ye make the LORD's people to transgress.[6]

25 If one man [e]sin against another, the judge shall judge him; but [f]if a man sin against the LORD, who shall entreat for him?[7] Notwithstanding they [g]hearkened not unto the voice of their father, because the LORD would slay them.

26 And the child Samuel [h]grew on, and [i]was in favour both with the LORD, and also with men.

27 ¶ And there came [k]a man of God unto Eli, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, [l]Did I plainly appear unto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt in Pharaoh's house?

28 And [m]did I choose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me? and [n]did I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire of the children of Israel?

29 Wherefore [o]kick ye at my sacrifice, and at mine offering, which I have commanded in my [p]habitation; and [q]honourest thy sons above me, to [r]make yourselves fat with the chiefest of all the offerings of Israel my people?

2 A practice had been introduced, for the priest's servant to come, while the flesh was boiling for the use of the offerer, and carry away whatever a three-pronged fork brought up. Their sin in the matter of the sacrifices (ver. 15-17) had been committed directly against God, and amounted to a virtual rejection of an atonement, for they are accused, in ver. 29, of having 'kicked at the offering;' and as there 'remained no more sacrifice for sins,' than those at which they spurned, they were necessarily abandoned to the judgment of the Almighty.

30 Wherefore the LORD God of Israel saith, [s]I said indeed, that thy house, and the house of thy father, should walk before me for ever: but now the LORD saith, [t]Be it far from me; for [u]them that honour me [v]I will honour, and they [w]that despise me shall be lightly esteemed.

31 Behold, the days come, that [x]I will cut off thine arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thine house.

32 And thou shalt see an enemy[1] in my habitation, in all the wealth which God shall give Israel: and there shall not be [y]an old man in thine house for ever.

33 And the man of thine whom I shall not cut off from mine altar, shall be [z]to consume thine eyes, and to grieve thine heart:[2] and all the increase of thine house[3] shall die in the flower of their age.

34 And this shall be [a]a sign unto thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, on Hophni and Phinehas; [b]in one day they shall die both of them.

35 And [c]I will raise me up a faithful priest,[4] that shall do according to that which is in mine heart, and in my mind: and [d]I will build him a sure house; and he shall walk before [e]mine anointed for ever.

36 And it shall come to pass, that every one that [f]is left in thine house shall come and crouch to him for a piece of silver, and a morsel of bread, and shall say, Put me,[5] I pray thee, into one[6] of the priest's offices, that I may [g]eat a piece of bread.

CHAPTER III.

How the word of the Lord was first revealed to Samuel, 1—10. God telleth Samuel the destruction of Eli's house, 11—14. Samuel, though loth, telleth Eli the vision, 15—18. Samuel acknowledged as a prophet, 19—21.

AND [a]the child Samuel ministered unto the LORD before Eli. And the [b]word of the LORD was precious in those days; there was no open vision.[7]

2 And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place, and [c]his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see;

3 And ere [d]the lamp of God[8] went out in [e]the temple of the LORD, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep;[1]

4 That the LORD [f]called Samuel: and he answered, Here am I.

5 And he ran unto Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not; lie down again. And he went and lay down.

6 And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose, and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, [g]my son; lie down again.

7 Now[2] Samuel [h]did not yet know the LORD,[3] neither was the word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.

8 And the LORD called Samuel again [i]the third time. And he arose, and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the LORD had called the child.[4]

9 Therefore Eli said unto Samuel, Go, lie down: and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, [k]Speak, LORD; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the LORD came, and stood, and called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak; for thy servant heareth.

11 ¶ And the LORD said to Samuel, Behold, [l]I will do a thing in Israel, at which [m]both the ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle.[5]

12 In that day [n]I will perform against Eli all things which I have spoken concerning his house: when I begin,[6] I will also make an end.[7]

13 For[8] I have told him, that [o]I will judge his house for ever, for the iniquity [p]which he knoweth; because [q]his sons made themselves vile,[9] and he restrained[10] them not.[11]

14 And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that [r]the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.[12]

15 ¶ And Samuel lay until the morning, and [s]opened the doors of the house of the LORD. And Samuel [t]feared to show Eli the vision.

16 Then Eli called Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I.

8 The dimness of Eli's eyes had been mentioned, to show that he could not see clearly to do his duty after it grew duskish, which made him go to bed early, and leave directions with Samuel what to do. And this might be the reason why Samuel ran so hastily to him when he thought he called him; men of his age, and dim-sightedness, being less able to help themselves. Josephus says that of the seven branches of the golden candlestick, all were kept burning during night and only three during day. But whatever may have been the case in his time it is evident from Ex. 30. 8, that anciently the lamps were not lighted till the evening.

17 And he said, What is the thing that the LORD hath said unto thee? I[u] pray thee hide it not from me: [v]God do so to thee, and more[1] also, if thou hide any thing[2] from me of all the things that he said unto thee.

18 And Samuel told him every[3] whit, and hid nothing from him. And he said, [w]It is the LORD;[4] let him do what seemeth him good.

19 ¶ And Samuel [x]grew, and [y]the LORD was with him, and did [z]let none of his words fall to the ground.[5]

20 And all Israel, from [a]Dan even to Beer-sheba,[6] knew that Samuel was established[7] to be a prophet of the LORD.

21 And the LORD [b]appeared again in Shiloh: for the LORD revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh by [c]the word[8] of the LORD.

CHAPTER IV.

The Israelites are smitten by the Philistines at Eben-ezer, 1, 2. They fetch the ark, to the terror of the Philistines, 3—9. They are smitten again, and the ark taken; Hophni and Phinehas are slain, 10, 11. Eli, at the news, falling backward, breaketh his neck, 12—18. Phinehas' wife, through grief, falleth in labour, is delivered of I-chabod, and dieth, 19—22.

AND the word of Samuel came[9] to all Israel. Now Israel went out against the Philistines to battle, and pitched beside [a]Eben-ezer:[10] and the Philistines pitched in [b]Aphek.

2 And the Philistines [c]put themselves in array against Israel: and when they joined battle,[11] [d]Israel was smitten before the Philistines; [e]and they slew of the army[12] in the field about four thousand men.

3 ¶ And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, [f]Wherefore hath the LORD smitten us to-day before the Philistines? [g]Let us fetch[13] [h]the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of Shiloh unto us, that, when it cometh among us, [i]it may save us out of the hand of our enemies.

4 So the people sent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, which[k] dwelleth between [l]the cherubims: and the two sons of Eli, [m]Hophni and Phinehas, were there [n]with the ark of the covenant of God.

5 And when the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, [o]all Israel shouted with a great shout, so that the earth rang again.[1]

6 And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, [p]What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the LORD was come into the camp.

7 And the Philistines [q]were afraid: for they said, God is come into the camp. And they said, Woe unto us! for there hath not been such a thing heretofore.[2]

8 Woe unto us! who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty gods?[3] these are the gods that [r]smote the Egyptians with all the plagues in the wilderness.[4]

9 [s]Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines! that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, [t]as they have been to you: quit yourselves like men,[5] and fight.

10 ¶ And the Philistines fought, and [u]Israel was smitten, and they fled [v]every man into his tent; and there was [w]a very great slaughter: for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen.

11 And [x]the ark of God was taken; and [y]the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain.[6]

12 ¶ And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and came to Shiloh the same day, [z]with his clothes rent, and [a]with earth upon his head.[7]

13 And when he came, lo, Eli [b]sat upon a seat by the way-side[8] watching: for [c]his heart trembled for the ark of God.[9] And when the man came into the city, and told it, all the city cried out.

14 And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said, [d]What meaneth the noise of this tumult? and the man came in hastily, and told Eli.

15 Now Eli was [e]ninety and eight years old; [f]and his eyes were [10]dim, that he could not see.

16 And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army, and I fled to-day out of the army. And he said, [g]What is there done,[11] [h]my son?

17 And the messenger answered and said, [i]Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a

1 It is doubtful whether it was ever lawful to carry the ark into the army without God's express command; and neither Eli nor Samuel seem on this occasion to have been consulted. Instead of repentance and humility, the people have recourse to ceremonial observances. They adopt the heathen notion that the power of their God was more concentrated when in connection with the visible symbols of his presence.

They did not deny that he was a powerful God, but not regarding him as the only God, they expected that their own tutelary deities would deliver them from the tutelary deity of the Hebrews. The taking of the ark, and in after times the repeated destruction of the temple, would tend to spiritualize the views of the Hebrews, who were often tempted to limit God's presence and localize his power.

great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of God is taken.[1]

18 And it came to pass, [k]when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat[2] backward, by the side of the gate, and [l]his neck brake, and he died; for he was an old man, and heavy: and he had judged Israel forty years.

19 ¶ And his daughter-in-law, Phinehas's wife, was with child, near to be delivered:[3] and when she heard the tidings that the ark of God was taken, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and travailed; for her pains came upon her.[4]

20 And, about the time of her death, the women that stood by her said unto her, [m]Fear not; for thou hast born a son. But she answered not, neither[5] did she regard it.

21 And she named the child I-chabod,[6] saying, [n]The glory is departed from Israel: (because the ark of God was taken, and because of her father-in-law, and her husband:)

22 And she said, [o]The glory is departed from Israel; for the ark of God is taken.

CHAPTER V.

The Philistines having brought the ark into Ashdod, set it in the house of Dagon, 1, 2. Dagon is cast down and cut in pieces, and they of Ashdod smitten with emerods, 3—7. The ark being carried to Gath, the men of Gath are smitten with the like plague, 8, 9; and also the men of Ekron, when it is brought thither, 10—12.

AND the Philistines [a]took the ark of God, and brought it from [b]Eben-ezer unto [c]Ashdod.

2 When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of [d]Dagon,[7] and set it by Dagon.

3 ¶ And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, [e]Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the LORD. And they took Dagon, and [f]set him in his place again.

4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD; and [g]the head of Dagon, and both the palms of his hands, were cut off upon the threshold; only the stump of Dagon[8] was left to him.

1 The strikingly graphic effect of this brief announcement has been generally admired. Some compare it with a passage in Homer's Iliad, 'Patroclus is stretched a corpse; the Greeks fight around him lying naked, and Hector with the dazzling helmet is in possession of his armour.' 'Nothing,' says Saurin, when alluding to this passage of scripture, 'is more ridiculous than to hear a messenger, when he is about to repeat some very bad news, running into tedious circumstances and pathetic expressions. For he to whom he addresses himself cannot attend to what he says; the first word that makes him acquainted with the misfortune makes him deaf to every thing else.'

2 The Hebrew word is generally used to denote a throne, or some seat of authority & state; for the ancient Jews, like the modern orientals, seem to have sat on the ground or reclined upon couches. It appears from the sculptures at Persepolis, that a high seat was the distinction of royalty. And on the Egyptian monuments we find representations of rich chairs or thrones, so high that they could not be used without a footstool. Some of them were elevated on pillars to a considerable height from the ground. See 'Taylor's Illustrations of the Bible from the Monuments of Egypt. Lond. 1838. p. 109.

1 To prostrate one's self on the threshold of a temple was an act of the profoundest reverence; and therefore when Dagon fell there upon his face before the ark of God (ver. 4.) it was as if he worshipped the God of Israel. Maurice, speaking of the destruction of the idol in the temple of Sumnaut, says that fragments of it were sent to the mosques of Mecca, Medina, &c. to be thrown down at the threshold of their gates and trampled upon by devout Mahometans. The Philistines, however, now looked upon the threshold of Dagon's temple as peculiarly sacred by the touch of their god, and out of reverence forbore to tread on such 'holyground.' Morier, when describing the mausoleum of Sheikh Setti at Ardebil, says, 'Here we remarked the veneration of the Persians for the threshold of a holy place. Before they ventured to cross it, they knelt down and kissed it, while they were very careful not to touch it with their feet.'

a ch.5.1,3,10, 11; Ps. 78. 61.

4 On comparing this with the close of the last chapter, it may be asked why they retained the ark so long. Having been sent away successively from three of the cities, perhaps it had been left in the open country, and the increase of mice in their fields then began to be felt as another grievous plague, ver.4. The Sept. has here a clause about the mice, and both it and the Vulg. at ch.5.6. add that the 'country swarmed with mice, that the fields burst up and produced mice.' Perhaps the animal called the jerboa is intended, which, as it feeds only on vegetables, a multiplication of its numbers would be highly destructive to agriculture. William of Tyre mentions, that in the country around Nablous the mice destroyed the harvest for four years.

b Ge.41.8: Ex. 7. 11; Is.47.12; Da.2. 2; 5. 7; Mat. 2. 4.

5 Therefore [h]neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, [i]tread on the [1]threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day.

6 ¶ But [k]the hand of the LORD was heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with [l]emerods, even Ashdod, and the coasts thereof.

7 And when the men of Ashdod [m]saw that it was so, they said, [n]The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and [o]upon Dagon our god.

8 ¶ They sent therefore, and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, [p]What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto [q]Gath. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither.

9 And it was so, that, after they had carried it about, [r]the hand of the LORD was against the city with a very great destruction: and he smote the men of the city, both small and great, [s]and they had emerods in their secret parts.

10 ¶ Therefore they sent the ark of God to [t]Ekron. And it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us,[2] to slay us and our people.

11 So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not,[3] and our people: for there was [u]a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there.

12 And the men that [v]died not were smitten with the emerods: and [w]the cry of the city went up to heaven.

CHAPTER VI.

After seven months the Philistines take counsel how to send back the ark, 1—9. They bring it on a new cart with an offering unto Beth-shemesh, 10—18. The people are smitten for looking into the ark, 19, 20. They send to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim to fetch it, 21.

AND [a]the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months.[4]

2 And the Philistines [b]called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? tell us wherewith we shall send it to his place.

3 And they said, If ye send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not [c]empty; but in any wise return him [d]a trespass-offering: then ye shall be healed, and it shall be [e]known to you why his hand is not removed from you.

4 Then said they, What shall be the trespass-offering which we shall return to him? They answered, [f]Five golden emerods, and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one plague was on you[1] all, and on your lords.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images[2] of your emerods, and images of your mice[g] that mar the land; and ye shall give[h] glory unto the God of Israel: peradventure he will [i]lighten his hand from off you, and from [k]off your gods, and from off your land.

6 Wherefore then do ye [l]harden your hearts, as [m]the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? When he had wrought wonderfully[3] among them, [n]did they not let the[4] people go, and they departed?

7 Now therefore make a [o]new cart,[5] and take two milch-kine, [p]on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them:[6]

8 And take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart; and put the jewels[q] of gold, which ye return him for a trespass-offering, in a coffer by the side thereof; and send it away, that it may go.

9 And see, if it goeth up by the way of his own coast to [r]Beth-shemesh, then he[7] hath done us this great evil: but if not, then we shall know that it is not[s] his hand that smote us; it was [t]a chance that happened to us.

10 ¶ And the men did so; and took two milch-kine, and tied them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home;

11 And [u]they laid the ark of the LORD upon the cart, and the coffer with the mice of gold and the images of their emerods.

12 And the kine took the straight way to the way of Beth-shemesh, and went along the highway, lowing as they went, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left;[1] and the lords of the Philistines went after them unto the border of Beth-shemesh.

13 And they of Beth-shemesh were reaping their wheat-harvest in the valley; and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

14 And the cart came into the field of Joshua, a Beth-shemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone: and they clave the wood of the cart, and [v]offered the kine a burnt-offering unto the LORD.[2]

15 And the Levites took down[3] the ark of the LORD, and the coffer that was with it, wherein the jewels of gold were, and put them on the great stone: and the men of Beth-shemesh offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed sacrifices, the same day unto the LORD.

16 And when [w]the five lords of the Philistines had seen it, they returned to Ekron the same day.

17 And these are the golden emerods, which the Philistines returned for a trespass-offering unto the LORD: [x]for Ashdod one, [y]for Gaza one, [z]for Askelon one, [a]for Gath one, [b]for Ekron one;

18 And the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords, both of fenced cities, and of country villages,[4] even unto the great[5] stone of Abel, whereon they set down the ark of the LORD; which stone remaineth unto this day in the field of Joshua the Beth-shemite.

19 ¶ And [c]he smote the men of Beth-shemesh, because they had looked into the ark[6] of the LORD, even he smote of the people fifty thousand and three score and ten men.[7] And the people lamented, because the LORD had smitten many of the people with a great slaughter.

20 And the men of Beth-shemesh said, [d]Who is able to stand before this holy LORD God? and [e]to whom shall he go up from us?

21 ¶ And they sent messengers to

1 Heb. them.
2 It was usual for the heathen to offer to the gods such memorials of deliverance as represented the evils from which deliverance had been vouchsafed. These were called telesms, whence our word talisman. Tavernier remarks that when a Hindoo pilgrim repairs to a temple to be cured, he brings the figure of the member affected, made either of gold, silver or copper, according to his circumstances, & presents it to the god. Among the Greeks & Romans, persons saved from shipwreck dedicated to Isis and Neptune a tablet representing their deliverance. The temples of Æsculapius were adorned with tablets presented by persons restored to health. Emancipated slaves and captives offered their chains. A similar practice obtains among Roman Catholics, who suspend in their temples, or shrines of their saints, votive offerings of the figures of legs, arms, &c., in token of supposed cures performed by the saint in those parts of the body.

6 They concluded that unless supernaturally influenced they would not leave their calves, & that unless supernaturally directed they would not leave their home. It was a received opinion among the heathen, that in the motions of a heifer or cow that was never yoked, there was something ominous, and declarative of the will of heaven. In Ovid's Metamorphoses (book III.) it is said, 'Apollo says, thou shalt in the lone field be met by an ox that has never felt the yoke, or been oppressed by the crooked harrow; with him as your guide proceed on your way.'

1 The circumstance of the two kine, which had never before been in the yoke, drawing quietly & keeping the road without a driver, for several miles, neither stopping nor turning aside, and while lowing for their calves nevertheless urged forward by a stronger impulse to the very place mentioned by the Philistines, and there stopping, is in all respects an astonishing miracle.

5 Or, great stone. There is much confusion in this verse as it stands in our translation. By a slight change in the text, and putting a full stop at 'villages' the second part may be rendered, 'And the witness or memorial (of this) is the great stone, whereon they set the ark, which remains to this day, &c.' It had been mentioned in ver. 14, 15.

6 When the sight of it had become familiar, they indulged in impious curiosity and unhallowed presumption. Even the outside of the ark was not to be seen by the Levites who carried it, nor does it appear that the Philistines had dared to look into it.
7 In the Heb. it is, '70 men, 50,000 men.' Josephus has '70 men;' the Syriac and Arabic 5070. Some translate '70 men, two fifties, a thousand men = 1170. Bochart supplies a Hebrew letter meaning 'out of,' before 'a thousand,' & then it is '70 men, even 50 out of 1000,' which supposes the number present to have been 1400.

the inhabitants of [f]Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the LORD; come ye down,[1] and fetch it up to you.

CHAPTER VII.

The men of Kirjath-jearim bring the ark into the house of Abinadab, and sanctify Eleazar his son to keep it, 1. After twenty years, 2; the Israelites, by Samuel's means, solemnly repent at Mizpeh, 3—8. While Samuel prayeth and sacrificeth, the Lord discomfiteth the Philistines by thunder at Eben-ezer, 9—12. The Philistines are subdued, 13, 14. Samuel peaceably and religiously judgeth Israel, 15—17.

AND the men of [a]Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched up the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of [b]Abinadab in the hill, and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the LORD.

2 And it came to pass, while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, that the time was long; for it was twenty years:[2] and all the house of Israel [c]lamented after the LORD.

3 ¶ And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do [d]return unto the LORD with all your hearts, then [e]put away the strange gods and Ashtaroth from among you, and prepare[f] your hearts unto the LORD, and [g]serve him only; and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away [h]Baalim and Ashtaroth,[3] and served the LORD only.

5 And Samuel said, [i]Gather all Israel to [k]Mizpeh,[4] and [l]I will pray for you unto the LORD.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh, and [m]drew water, and poured it out[5] before the LORD, and [n]fasted on that day, and said there, [o]We have sinned against the LORD. And Samuel judged[p] the children of Israel in Mizpeh.

7 ¶ And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard it, they were [q]afraid of the Philistines.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, Cease[6] not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

9 ¶ And Samuel took [r]a sucking lamb,[7] and offered it for a burnt-offering wholly unto the LORD: and Samuel [s]cried unto the LORD for Israel; and the LORD heard[1] him.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt-offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: but the LORD [t]thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and [u]discomfited them;[2] and they were smitten before Israel.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them, until they came under Beth-car.

12 Then Samuel [v]took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it Eben-ezer,[3] saying, [w]Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.[4]

13 ¶ So the Philistines were [x]subdued, and they [y]came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was [z]against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was [a]peace between Israel and the Amorites.

15 ¶ And Samuel [b]judged Israel all the days of his life.[5]

16 And he went from year to year in circuit[6] to Beth-el, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Israel in all those places.[7]

17 And [c]his return was to Ramah; for there was his house: and there he judged Israel; and there [d]he built an altar[8] unto the LORD.

CHAPTER VIII.

By occasion of the ill government of Samuel's sons, the Israelites ask a king, 1—5. Samuel praying in grief, is comforted by God, 6—9. He telleth the manner of a king, 10—18. God directeth Samuel to yield unto the importunity of the people, 19—22.

AND it came to pass, when Samuel was old, that he [a]made his [b]sons judges over Israel.

2 Now the name of his first-born was [c]Joel, and the name of his second Abiah: they were judges in Beer-sheba.[9]

3 And [d]his sons walked not in his ways, [e]but turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment.

5 And said unto him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now [g]make us a king to judge us like all the nations.

6 ¶ But the thing displeased[1] Samuel, when they said, Give us a king to judge us. And Samuel [h]prayed unto the LORD.

7 And the LORD said unto Samuel, Hearken[2] unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee: for [i]they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them.

8 According [l]to all the works which they have done, since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt even unto this day, wherewith they have forsaken me, and served other gods, so do they also unto thee.

9 Now therefore hearken[2] unto their voice: howbeit[3] yet protest solemnly unto them, and shew them [m]the manner[4] of the king that shall reign over them.

10 ¶ And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people that asked of him a king.

11 And he said, [n]This will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: [o]He will take your sons, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen; and some [p]shall run[5] before his chariots.

12 And he will [q]appoint him captains over thousands, and captains over fifties; [r]and will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of war, and instruments of his chariots.[6]

13 And he will take your daughters to be confectionaries, and to be cooks, and to be bakers.

14 And he will [s]take your fields, and your vineyards, and your oliveyards, even the best of them, and [t]give them to his servants.

15 And he will take the tenth of your seed, and of your vineyards, and give to his officers,[7] and to his servants.

16 And he will take your men-servants, and your maid-servants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, and put them to his work.[1]

17 He will take the tenth[2] of your sheep: and ye shall be his servants.

18 And ye shall [u]cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the LORD [v]will not hear you in that day.

19 ¶ Nevertheless, the people [w]refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us;

20 That [x]we also may be like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles.

21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and [y]he rehearsed them in the ears of the LORD.

22 And the LORD said to Samuel, Hearken[z3] unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

6 Or, 'their furnishings.' Eastern sovereigns still claim the right of appropriating the services of any of their subjects. Sometimes these are against their will appointed to offices of honour, the expense of which ruins them. Distinguished artizans are pressed into the royal service without adequate remuneration, as is instanced by Frazer in the case of a Persian who had improved the manufacture of porcelain, but being called to Tehran to work for the shah, had to bribe the vizier to report that he was not the man; & vowed that he would make no more china so long as he lived.

1 As thousands derive their food from the royal kitchen in the East, the number of servants required is enormous. Knox says of the then kings of Ceylon; 'Several times he hath sent into the countries a command to gather handsome young women of the Chingualayes to recruit his kitchen, whether married or unmarried.'

2 These heavy exactions would form a great contrast to the government of the judges to whom they paid no tribute, and who seem to have put them to no charge.

5 Or, substance, ch. 25.2; 2Sa.19.32; Job 1.3. This may refer to bodily strength, for at ver. 21, Saul speaks of his family as the least in Benjamin. Or, though the family was inferior, Kish may have amassed substance.

7 Heb. she-asses. The horse not yet being introduced, the ass was of greater value and especially the female. But the word here atonoth, denotes not the common ass but one of a nobler race, always mentioned as in the possession of men of rank or affluence. This accounts for the anxiety of Kish to find his when they had strayed, and as they were uncommon he might expect the more readily to hear tidings of them. Baron Du Tott, mentions that these animals in the East stray far, and it is not uncommon to have to seek them for days.

8 Shalisha was the Beth-shalisha of 2 Ki. 4. 42. (15 miles north of Lydda,) and Shalim a place mentioned by Jerome as in the tribe of Dan; thus Saul's search extended as far as to the former place, to the north and the latter to the south.

return; lest my father leave caring for the asses, and [i]take thought for us.

6 And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this [k]city a man of God, and he is [l]an honourable man; all [m]that he saith cometh surely to pass: now, let us go thither; peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go.

7 Then said Saul to his servant, But, behold, if we go, [n]what shall we bring the man? for the bread is spent[1] in our vessels, and there is not a present[2] to bring to the man of God: what have we?[3]

8 And the servant answered Saul again, and said, Behold, I have[4] here at hand the fourth part of a shekel[5] of silver; that will I give to the man of God to tell us our way.

9 (Beforetime in Israel, when a man went to [o]enquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the seer: for he that is now called a Prophet, was before-time called [p]a Seer.)[6]

10 Then said Saul to his servant, Well said;[7] come, let us go. So they went unto the city where the man of God was.

11 ¶ And as they went up the hill[8] to the city, they [q]found young maidens going out to draw water, and said unto them, Is the seer here?

12 And they answered them, and said, He is; behold, he is before you: make haste now, for he came to-day to the city; for there is a sacrifice[9] of the people to-day in [r]the high place.

13 As soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because [s]he doth bless the sacrifice; and afterwards they eat that be bidden.[10] Now therefore get you up; for about this time[11] ye shall find him.

14 And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out against them, for to go up to the high place.

15 ¶ Now [t]the LORD had told Samuel[12] in his ear a day before Saul came, saying,

16 To-morrow, about this time, I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, and [u]thou shalt anoint him to be captain[1] over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have [v]looked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me.

17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, [w]Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall reign over my people.[2]

18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is.

19 And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the seer: go up before me unto the high place; for ye shall eat with me to-day; and to-morrow I will let thee go, [x]and will tell thee all that is in thine heart.

20 And as for thine asses that were lost three days ago,[3] [y]set not thy mind on them; for they are found. And [z]on whom is all the desire[4] of Israel? is it not on thee, and on all thy father's house?

21 And Saul answered and said, Am not I [a]a Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? and [b]my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? wherefore then speakest thou so to me?[5]

22 And Samuel took Saul and his servant, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit [c]in the chiefest place among them that were bidden, which were about thirty persons.

23 And Samuel said unto the cook, [d]Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee.

24 And the cook took up [e]the shoulder, and that which was upon [6]it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold that which is left![7] set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time hath it been kept for thee, since I said, I have invited the people. So Saul did eat with Samuel that day.

25 ¶ And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon [f]the top of the house.[8]

26 And they arose early: and it came to pass, about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, saying, [g]Up, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel, abroad.

6 This verse, which should rather come in after ver. 11, was either inserted by Ezra or interpolated by a transcriber. The word rendered a seer denotes one who sees preternatural sights. 6 Dathe has 'the leg with the broth.' The Chaldee Targ. has 'the shoulder and its thigh,' i. e. the fore leg bone or perhaps the whole fore quarter. It is still the custom in the East to honour distinguished guests not only with the largest quantity of meat, but with the most esteemed portions. In Homer the chine is the piece of honour, but Josephus calls the shoulder the royal portion,' as it was also of the priest. Ockley, in his History of the Saracens, says that Abdal-melek, the Caliph, on entering Cafa, made a great feast, and on asking one of the guests what meat he liked best of all he had ever eaten, received for answer, 'An ass's neck well seasoned and well roasted.' 'You do nothing,' said the caliph; 'what say you to a leg or shoulder of a lamb well roasted and covered with butter & milk?' Perhaps this is 'what was on the shoulder' presented to Saul.

27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid[h] the servant pass on before us, (and he passed on,) but stand thou still a while,[1] [i]that I may shew thee the word of God.

CHAPTER X.

Samuel anointeth Saul, 1. He confirmeth him by prediction of three signs, 2—8. Saul's heart is changed, and he prophesieth, 9—13. He concealeth the matter of the kingdom from his uncle, 14—16. Saul is chosen at Mizpeh by lot, 17—25. The different affections of his subjects, 26, 27.

THEN Samuel took [a]a vial of oil,[2] and poured it upon his head, and kissed[b][3] him, and said, Is it not because the LORD hath anointed thee to be [c]captain over [d]his inheritance?

2 When thou art departed from me to-day, then thou shalt find two men by [e]Rachel's sepulchre, in the border of Benjamin, at [f]Zelzah; and they will say unto thee, [g]The asses which thou wentest to seek are found: and, lo, thy father hath left the care[4] of the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son?

3 Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain of [h]Tabor,[5] and there shall meet thee three men going up to God to [i]Beth-el,[6] one carrying [k]three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine:

4 And they will salute[7] thee, and give thee two loaves of bread; which thou shalt receive of their hands.

5 After that thou shalt come to the hill[l] of God, where is the garrison of the Philistines: and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city, that thou shalt meet [m]a company of prophets[8] coming down from the high place, with [n]a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp, before them, and they shall prophesy:

6 And the [o]Spirit of the LORD will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into [p]another man.

7 And let it be,[9] when these [q]signs are come unto thee, that thou do[10] as occasion shall serve thee; for [r]God is with thee.

8 And thou shalt go down before me [s]to Gilgal; and, behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt-offerings, and to sacrifice sacrifices of peace-offerings: [t]seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do.

9 ¶ And it was so, that, when he had turned his back[1] to go from Samuel, God gave[2] him [u]another heart:[3] and [v]all those signs came to pass that day.

10 And when [w]they came[4] thither to the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him; and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he [5]prophesied among them.

11 And it came to pass, [x]when all that knew him beforetime saw that, behold, he prophesied among the prophets, then the people said one to another,[6] [y]What is this that is come unto the son of Kish? [z]Is Saul[7] also among the prophets?

12 And one[8] of the same place answered and said, But [a]who is their father?[9] Therefore it became a proverb, Is Saul also among the [10]prophets?

13 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

14 ¶ And Saul's uncle said unto him and to his servant, Whither went ye? [b]And he said, To seek the asses: and when we saw that they were [c]no where, we came to Samuel.

15 And Saul's uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said unto you.

16 And Saul said unto his uncle, He told us plainly that the asses were found. But [d]of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, he told him not.

17 ¶ And Samuel called the people together [e]unto the LORD to Mizpeh;

18 And said unto the children of Israel, [f]Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you:

2 There is no recorded injunction to anoint kings, but as we read of it in the parable of Jotham (Ju. 9. 8.) long before this period, it seems to have been a very ancient custom. In the days of Jacob, unction was the prevalent mode of consecrating, even things inanimate, such as pillars of memorial, (Ge.28.18.) Yet we are to distinguish here between the private anointing by a prophet, (which was merely a predictive symbol,) and the public anointing at the coronation, which was the real investiture.

9 The Syriac and Arabic have 'his father,' as also the Septuagint, some of the editions of which add the words 'Is it not Kish?' Yet a very congruous sense is yielded by the words 'Who is their father?' It is as if it had been said, 'You wonder at the son of Kish appearing among these men. But whose sons are they as prophets? Who is really their father, i. e. their instructor? Is it not God himself? And why then should you be surprised to see Saul, though previously untutored, appear among them, and join in their sacred songs?' Compare Am. 7. 14. 'When we consider who makes the Christian and the prophet, we need not be offended, should we number among professors & even preachers of the gospel, some Saul who was one of our former ungodly acquaintances: for true conversion makes so great a change in a man's character, that former friends can scarcely believe him to be the same.'—Scott.

your God, who himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations; and ye have said unto him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the LORD [h]by your tribes, and by your thousands.

20 And when Samuel had [i]caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was taken.[1]

21 When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken: and when they sought him, he could not be found.

22 Therefore they [k]enquired of the LORD further, if the man should yet come thither. And the LORD answered, Behold, he hath [l]hid himself among the stuff.[2]

23 And they ran and fetched him thence: and when he stood among the people, [m]he was higher than any of the people, from his shoulders and upward.[3]

24 And Samuel said to all the people, [n]See ye him whom the LORD hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? And all the people shouted, and said, God save the king.[4]

25 Then Samuel told the people [o]the manner of the kingdom,[5] and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house.

26 ¶ And Saul also went home to Gibeah:[p] and there went with him a band[6] of men, [q]whose hearts God had touched.

27 But the [r]children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? and they despised him, and [s]brought him no presents;[7] but he held his peace.[8]

CHAPTER XI.

Nahash offereth them of Jabesh-gilead a reproachful condition, 1—3. They send messengers, and are delivered by Saul, 4—11. Saul thereby is confirmed, and his kingdom joyfully renewed, 12—15.

THEN[9] [a]Nahash the Ammonite came up, and encamped against [b]Jabesh-gilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, [c]Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee.

2 And Nahash the Ammonite answered them, [d]On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that [e]I may thrust out all your right eyes, and lay it for [f]a reproach upon all Israel.[1]

3 And the elders of Jabesh said unto him, Give[2] us seven days' respite, that we may send messengers unto all the coasts of Israel: and then, if there be no man to save us, we will come out to thee.

4 ¶ Then came the messengers to [g]Gibeah of Saul, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and all the people [h]lifted up their voices, and wept.

5 And, behold, Saul came [i]after the herd out of the field; and Saul said, [k]What aileth the people that they weep? And they told him the tidings of the men of Jabesh.

6 And the [l]Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and [m]his anger was kindled greatly.

7 And he took a yoke of oxen, and [n]hewed them in pieces,[3] and sent them throughout all the coasts of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying, [o]Whosoever cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall it be done unto his oxen. And [p]the fear of the LORD fell on the people, and they came out with one consent.[4]

8 And when he numbered them in [q]Bezek, [r]the children of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand.

9 And they said unto the messengers that came, Thus shall ye say unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, To-morrow, by that time the sun be hot, ye shall have help.[5] And the messengers came and shewed it to the men of Jabesh; and they were glad.

10 Therefore the men of Jabesh said, [s]To-morrow we will come out unto you, and ye shall do with us all that seemeth good unto you.

11 And it was so [t]on the morrow, that Saul put the people [u]in three companies; and they came into the midst of the host in the [v]morning-watch, and [w]slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day: and it came to pass, that they which remained were scattered, [x]so that two of them were not left together.[6]

3 The Orientals are accustomed to regard the stature & exterior of their kings as a matter of great importance. On such a man as Saul therefore (more especially in a rude age when physical qualities are the most valued) the suffrages of most would readily centre on one pointed out by nature as 'every inch a king.' This feeling operated even on Samuel not only now, ver. 24, but on the occasion of the choice of David, ch.16.6,7. The sculptures of Egypt and Persia, and the writings of Homer and Herodotus, show that in early times the sentiment was universal, and it may be traced still in the personal appearance we expect in the more immediate guards of royalty.

1 We need seek for no other motive for the barbarous requisition than that stated in the text, namely, that it might be a badge of slavery. The cruel practice (still so prevalent in the East) probably originated in a desire to disable an enemy for active warfare, or to incapacitate a rival aspirant for kingly power. In the present case some speak of the loss of the right eye as preventing the proper use of the shield; but it would also keep archers and slingers from taking an accurate aim. When the monster, Aga Mahomed Khan, took Kerman in Persia, in 1795, he made all the male prisoners be put to death or deprived of sight. It is even said that he directed a certain number of pounds weight of eyes should be brought him.

3 This was a conventional summons to war, similar in spirit to that mentioned in Ju. xix. & on the present occasion it may have also been intended to secure by it a general confederacy in behalf of the king elect, who till now had by many been rejected. A similar practice seems to have obtained among the ancient Scythians & Scandinavians; and a resemblance to it may be traced in the well known fiery cross of the Highlanders, so graphically described by Scott in the 'Lady of the Lake.' When a Highland chieftain designed to summon his clan upon any sudden emergency, he slew a goat, and making a cross of wood, seared its extremities in the fire and extinguished them in the animal's blood. This was sent round by a swift messenger from hamlet to hamlet: and he who failed to appear suffered the extremities of fire and sword.

reign over us? bring the men, that we may put them to death.[1]

13 And Saul said, [a]There shall not a man be put to death this day: for to-day [a]the LORD hath wrought salvation in Israel.

14 ¶ Then said Samuel to the people, Come, and [b]let us go to Gilgal, and renew[c] the kingdom[2] there.

15 And all the people went to Gilgal; and there they made Saul king before[d] the LORD in Gilgal; and [e]there they sacrificed sacrifices of peace-offerings before the LORD; and there Saul and all the men of Israel [f]rejoiced greatly.

CHAPTER XII.

Samuel testifieth his integrity, 1—5. He reproveth the people of ingratitude, 6—17. He terrifieth them with thunder in harvest-time, 18, 19. He comforteth them in God's mercy, 20—25.

AND Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, [a]I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have[b] made a king over you.

2 And now, behold, the king [c]walketh before you: and [d]I am old and gray-headed; and, behold, [e]my sons[3] are with you: and [f]I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.

3 Behold, here I am: witness against me before the LORD, and before [g]his anointed; [h]whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any bribe[4] to blind[5] mine eyes therewith? and [i]I will restore it you.

4 And they said, [k]Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.

5 And he said unto them, [l]The LORD is witness against you, and [m]his anointed is witness this day, that [n]ye have not found ought [o]in my hand. And they answered, He is witness.

6 ¶ And Samuel said unto the people, [p]It is the LORD that advanced[6] Moses and Aaron, and that brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt.

7 Now therefore stand still, that I may [q]reason with you before the LORD of all the righteous[7] acts of the LORD, which he did to[8] you and to your fathers.

1 Saul's success had a greater effect upon the people than his appointment by God or his anointing by Samuel. Flushed with victory and proud of their leader, they propose to murder in cold blood those who had not yet acknowledged him as king, but with no less prudence than piety he forbade the cruel deed.

2 The unction of Saul had been a private act and was not perhaps generally known. He had retired to his pastoral occupations, whence, like the Roman Cincinnatus at the plough, he was summoned by the people. As Saul had now shown himself worthy to command, Samuel takes advantage of the circumstance to confirm the kingdom to him, probably by a second and public anointing. But lest the solemnity should be construed into a sanction of all the proceedings of the people, Samuel takes this new occasion of placing the whole transaction before them in its true and proper light. And he also takes the opportunity of making a spirited justification of his own conduct and of the purity and integrity of his own administration.

1 No judge of Israel of this name is mentioned any where else. Calmet thinks it refers to Jair who judged Israel twenty-two years. Ju. 10. 3. Patrick, Scott, &c., think it is a contraction of Ben-Dan, i. e. the son of Dan, meaning Samson; and so the Targum has it. But it is most likely that the letters d and n have been substituted for r and k (which in Hebrew they resemble,) and then we have the name of Barak, an illustrious judge of Israel. This is the reading of the Septuagint, the Syriac and Arabic, and it is confirmed by the enumeration of St Paul, (He. 11. 32,) "The time would fail me to tell of Gideon, of Barak, &c.

g ch. 7. 13.

2 There might be no indelicacy in Samuel mentioning his own name, but there is certainly a harshness in point of diction in the use of the third person; besides Samuel was not a military leader like the others here mentioned, but a civil judge. The Syriac and Arabic versions have 'Samson,' which in the Hebrew resembles the word Samuel in three of the letters. This, like the change mentioned in the preceding note, is confirmed by St Paul's language in He.11.32.

11 And the LORD sent [d]Jerubbaal, and [e]Bedan,[1] and [f]Jephthah, and [g]Samuel,[2] and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelled safe.

Hence it is generally thought, that Saul's age at the time of his election has here dropped out. Some following Origen insert 'thirty,' but Hales adopts the opinion of Vignolles, that Saul was now forty years old; for in the second year of his reign his son Jonathan had a separate military command, ch. 13. 2, 3.

It would have been, moreover, out of all proportion to the number of horsemen, which instead of being less, was always far greater than that of chariots. But the Syriac and Arabic, instead of 30,000 have 3000, and even that number being large, may be held either to include all kinds of waggons, or to refer only to the number of men who fought in the chariots.

blished thy kingdom upon Israel for ever

14 But [w]now thy kingdom shall not continue:[1] [x]the LORD hath sought[2] him a man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him to be [y]captain over his people, because thou hast not kept that which the LORD commanded thee.

15 And Samuel arose, and gat him up from Gilgal[3] unto Gibeah of Benjamin: and Saul numbered the people that were present[4] with him, [z]about six hundred men.

16 And Saul, and Jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, abode in Gibeah[5] of Benjamin; but the Philistines encamped in Michmash.

17 ¶ And the spoilers came out of the camp of the Philistines [a]in three companies: one company turned unto the way that leadeth to [b]Ophrah, unto the land of [c]Shual:

18 And another company turned the way to [d]Beth-horon: and another company turned to the way of the border that looketh to the valley of [e]Zeboim, toward the wilderness.

19 ¶ Now [f]there was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel; for the Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears:[6]

20 But all the Israelites went down to the Philistines,[7] to sharpen every man his share, and his coulter, and his axe, and his mattock.

21 Yet they had a file[8] for the mattocks, and for the coulters, and for the forks, and for the axes, and to sharpen[9] the goads.[10]

22 So it came to pass, in the day of battle, that [g]there was neither sword nor spear[11] found in the hand of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan: but with Saul, and with Jonathan his son, was there found.

23 And the garrison[12] of the Philistines went out to the [h]passage[13] of Michmash.

CHAPTER XIV.

Jonathan, without the knowledge of his father or any of the people, goeth and miraculously smiteth the Philistines' garrison, 1—14. A divine terror maketh them beat themselves, 15, 16. Saul, not staying the priest's answer, setteth on them, 17—20. The captivated Hebrews, and the hidden Israelites, join against them, 21—23. Saul's unadvised adjuration hindereth the victory, 24—31. He restraineth the people from eating blood, 32—34. He buildeth an altar, 35—37. Jonathan, taken by lot, is saved by the people, 38, 48. Saul's strength and family, 49—52.

NOW it came to pass upon a [1]day, that [a]Jonathan the son of Saul said unto the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over to the Philistines' garrison, that is on the other side. But [b]he told not his father.[2]

2 And Saul tarried [c]in the uttermost part of Gibeah, under a pomegranate tree[3] which is in Migron: and the people that were with him were about six hundred men;

3 And [d]Ahiah, the son of Ahitub, [e]I-chabod's brother, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eli, the LORD's priest in Shiloh, [f]wearing an ephod.[4] And the people knew not that Jonathan was gone.

4 ¶ And between [g]the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over unto the Philistines' garrison, there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side: and the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh.[5]

5 The fore-front[6] of the one was situate northward over against Michmash, and the other southward over against Gibeah.

6 And Jonathan said to the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over unto the garrison of these [h]uncircumcised; [i]it may be that the LORD will work for us: [k]for there is no restraint to the LORD to save by many or by few.[7]

7 And his armour-bearer said unto him, [l]Do all that is in thine heart: turn thee; behold, I am with thee according to thy heart.

8 Then said Jonathan, Behold, [m]we will pass over unto these men, and we will discover ourselves unto them.

9 If [n]they say thus unto us, [8]Tarry until we come to you; then we will stand still in our place, and will not go up unto them.[9]

10 But if they say thus, Come up unto us; then we will go up: for the LORD hath delivered them into our hand; and [o]this shall be a sign unto us.

11 And both of them discovered themselves unto the garrison of the Philistines: and the Philistines said,

5 In early times every natural object, in the least marked, had a distinctive name. This is the case still among the Arabs; and even in the desert, where there are no cities, there are innumerable proper names of rocks, wells, hollows, clumps of trees, &c. Professor Robinson says, in his account of his late journey in Palestine: 'North-east of Jeba, across the very deep valley, lies Mukhmas, the ancient Michmash. In the bottom of the valley, directly between Jeba and Mukhmas, are two conical hills, not very high, which are probably the scene of Jonathan's romantic adventure.'

Behold, the Hebrews come forth [p] out of the holes where they had hid themselves.

12 And the men of the garrison answered Jonathan and his armour-bearer, and said, [q] Come up to us, and we will shew you a thing.[1] And Jonathan said unto his armour-bearer, [r] Come up after me; for the LORD hath delivered them into the hand of Israel.

13 And Jonathan [s] climbed up upon his hands and upon his feet, and his armour-bearer after him: and they [t] fell before Jonathan;[2] and his armour-bearer slew after him.

14 And that first slaughter, which Jonathan and his armour-bearer made, was about twenty men, within as it were an half-acre[3] of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow.[4]

15 And [u] there was trembling in the host, in the field, and among all the people; the garrison, and [v] the spoilers,[5] they also trembled, and [w] the earth quaked: so it was a very great trembling.[6]

16 And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked; and, behold, the multitude [x] melted away, and they went on [y] beating down one another.[7]

17 ¶ Then said Saul unto the people that were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armour-bearer were not there.

18 And Saul said unto Ahiah, Bring [z] hither the ark[8] of God: (for [a] the ark of God was at that time with the children of Israel.)

19 ¶ And it came to pass, while Saul talked unto the priest, that the noise[9] that was in the host of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said unto the priest, [b] Withdraw thine hand.[10]

20 And Saul and all the people that were with him assembled[11] themselves, and they came to the battle: and, behold, [c] every man's sword was against his fellow, and there was a very great discomfiture.

21 Moreover, [d] the Hebrews that were with the Philistines before that time, which went up with them into the camp from the country round about, even they also turned to be with the Israelites that were with Saul and Jonathan.

22 Likewise all the men of Israel which had [e] hid themselves in mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they also followed hard after them in the battle.

23 So [f] the LORD saved Israel that day: and the battle passed over unto [g] Beth-aven.

24 ¶ And the men of Israel were distressed that day: for Saul had adjured the people, saying, [h] Cursed be the man that eateth any food until evening,[1] that [i] I may be avenged on mine enemies. So none of the people tasted any food.

25 And [k] all they of the land came to a wood; and there was [l] honey upon the ground.[2]

26 And when the people were come into the wood, behold, the honey dropped; but no man put his hand to his mouth: for [m] the people feared the oath.

27 But Jonathan heard not when his father charged the people with the oath: wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it in an honey-comb, and put his hand to his mouth; and [n] his eyes were enlightened.[3]

28 Then answered one of the people, and said, Thy father straitly charged the people with an oath, saying, [o] Cursed be the man that eateth any food this day. And the people were faint.[4]

29 Then said Jonathan, [p] My father hath troubled[5] the land: see, I pray you, how mine eyes have been enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey;

30 How much more, if haply the people had eaten freely to-day of the spoil of their enemies which they found? for [q] had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?

31 ¶ And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to [6r] Aijalon: and the people were very faint.

32 And the people [s] flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people [t] did eat them with the blood.

33 ¶ Then they told Saul, saying,

They are indeed "troublers of Israel," who prohibit such use of those good things which "God giveth us richly to enjoy;" the curses with which they sanction their anti-christian mandates, will fall on their own heads, and they will be answerable for all the consequences; for restraints from things lawful generally prove temptations to forbidden indulgences, and a superstitious zeal about externals has often hindered men from performing essential services to the church.'—Scott.

6 Aijalon, (which means the 'place of deer,') was in the territory of Dan, (Jos. 19. 42,) but was given to the Levitical family of Kohath, (Jos. 21.24). It lay in the valley or plain where Joshua performed his illustrious miracle, Jos. 10. 12. It must not be confounded with a place of the same name in the tribe of Zebulun, where the judge Elon was buried, Ju. 12. 12.

Behold, the people sin against the LORD, in that they eat with the blood. And he said, Ye have transgressed:[1] roll a great stone[2] unto me this day.

34 And Saul said, Disperse yourselves among the people, and say unto them, Bring me hither every man his ox, and every man his sheep, and slay them here, and eat; and sin not against the LORD in eating with the blood. And all the people brought every man his ox with[3] him that night, and slew them there.

35 And Saul [u]built an altar unto the LORD; the[4] same was the first altar[5] that he built unto the LORD.

36 ¶ And Saul said, [v]Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and [w]let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then [x]said the priest,[6] Let us draw near hither unto God.

37 ¶ And Saul asked counsel of God, Shall[y] I go down after the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel? But [z]he answered him not that day.[7]

38 ¶ And Saul said, [a]Draw ye near hither all the chief[8] of the people; and know and see wherein this sin hath been this day:

39 For, as [b]the LORD liveth, which saveth Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die.[9] But there was not a man among all the people that answered him.

40 Then said he unto all Israel, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people said unto Saul, [c]Do what seemeth good unto thee.

41 Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, Give a perfect lot.[10] And[d] Saul and Jonathan were taken: but the people escaped.[11]

42 And Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken.

43 Then Saul said to Jonathan, [e]Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, [f]I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and, lo, I must die.

7 Saul understood this to intimate that his interdict had been transqressed. Yet there might be other reasons for the silence. God might not think it right to send the people exhausted(defiled, too, by eating blood) after the Philistines by night; and Saul himself had offended by his rash oath, which, however improper in itself, yet, having been once made, ought to have been carefully observed.

9 This was quite in keeping with Saul's reckless character. He had formerly interrupted the priest when asking counsel of the Lord (ver. 19.) & afterwards made a most senseless adjuration to the people to abstain from food; & now, before the lots are cast, he rashly swears to put the offender to death, were it his own son (who had under God obtained the victory) without waiting to know what the crime was, or whether it really deserved death, or might not be expiated by a sin-offering.

The marginal translation seems preferable; unless we rather adopt the clause added in the Gr. and Lat. 6 It is a common but erroneous opinion that the Amalekites were descended from a grandson of Esau (Ge.36.12.) whereas they existed in the days of Abraham (Ge. 14. 7.); they are spoken of by Balaam as 'the first of nations,' & according to Jewish and Arab tradition, they belonged to the doomed tribes of Canaan, with whom they are always associated, and never with Esau's posterity, the 'brethren' of Israel. When the people were in straits at their entry into the wilderness, these Amalekites basely way-laid them, & cut off those who were too weak to keep up with the rest. This unprovoked cruelty had drawn from God the determination to 'blot out their name from under heaven'—a decree which was put on record for the guidance of Israel's future king, De.25.18,19. In almost every league against Israel we find the Amalekites a party, Ps. 83. 7; so with the Canaanites, Nu.14. 45; Moabites and Ammonites, Ju. 3. 13; Midianites, Ju. 6. 3; and they had recently spoiled the land, 1 Sa. 14. 48. Besides all this they were sinners above others (ver. 18.) and had made many a woman childless (ver. 33.); and being a wild, unsettled, aggressive, predatory race, Israel's hereditary and implacable foes, there was now a social necessity that such dangerous neighbours should be extirpated, or removed from the frontiers of a settled people.

44 And Saul answered, [g]God do so and more also: for [h]thou shalt surely die, Jonathan.

45 And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, [i]who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: as the LORD liveth, [k]there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for [l]he hath wrought with God this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not.

46 Then Saul went up from following the Philistines: and the Philistines went to their own place.

47 ¶ So Saul [m]took the [1]kingdom over Israel, and [n]fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children of [o]Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of [p]Zobah, and against the Philistines; and whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them.

48 And he gathered[2] an host, and [q]smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of them that spoiled them.

49 ¶ Now the sons of Saul were [r]Jonathan, and Ishui,[3] and Melchi-shua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the [s]name of the first-born Merab, and the name of the younger Michal:

50 And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz; and [t]the name of the captain of his host was Abner,[4] the son of Ner, Saul's uncle:

51 And [u]Kish was the father of Saul; and Ner, the father of Abner, was the son of Abiel.[5]

52 And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul: and [v]when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, he took him unto him.

CHAPTER XV.

Saul is sent to destroy Amalek, 1—5. He favoureth the Kenites, 6; smiteth the Amalekites; but spareth Agag and the best of the spoil, 7—9. Samuel denounceth unto Saul, commending and excusing himself, God's rejection of him for his disobedience, 10—23. Saul's humiliation, 24—31. Samuel killeth Agag, 32, 33. He and Saul part, 34, 35.

SAMUEL also said unto Saul, [a]The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore [b]hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the LORD.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, [c]I remember that which [d]Amalek[6] did to Israel, how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly [c]destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but [f]slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, [g]ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 And Saul gathered the people together, and numbered them in [h]Telaim, [i]two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah.

5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and laid wait[1] in the valley.

6 ¶ And Saul said unto [k]the Kenites, Go, [l]depart, get you down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for [m]ye shewed kindness to all the children of Israel when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites.

7 ¶ And Saul [n]smote the Amalekites from [o]Havilah until thou comest to Shur,[p][2] that is over against Egypt.

8 And he took [q]Agag the king of the Amalekites alive, and [r]utterly destroyed all the people[3] with the edge of the sword.

9 But Saul and the people spared Agag,[4] and [s]the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and of the fatlings,[5] and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile and refuse, that they destroyed utterly.

10 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Samuel, saying,

11 It [t]repenteth me[6] that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is [u]turned back from following me, and [v]hath not performed my commandments. And it [w]grieved Samuel; and [x]he cried unto the LORD all night.

12 ¶ And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to Carmel,[y][7] and, behold, [z]he set him up a place,[8] and is gone about, and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

13 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, [a]Blessed be thou of the LORD; [b]I have performed the commandment of the LORD.

14 And Samuel said, [c]What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?

15 And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites: [d]for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen [e]to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

16 Then Samuel said unto Saul, [f]Stay, and I will tell thee what the LORD hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on.

17 And Samuel said, [g]When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and [h]the LORD anointed thee king over Israel?

18 And the LORD sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy [i]the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until they be [1]consumed.

19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst [k]flee upon the spoil, and [l]didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

20 And Saul said unto Samuel, [m]Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the LORD, and have gone the way which the LORD sent me, and [n]have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

21 But [o]the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.[2]

22 And Samuel said, [p]Hath the LORD as great delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, to [q]obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.[3]

23 For [r]rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft,[4] and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry.[5] Because [s]thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

24 ¶ And Saul said unto Samuel, [t]I have sinned: for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD, and thy words; because [u]I feared the people, and [v]obeyed their voice.

25 Now therefore, I pray thee, [w]pardon my sin,[6] and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD.

5 By making the words translated 'sin' & 'iniquity' adjectives instead of substantives, (which the Hebrew idiom allows,) we obtain a clearer sense. 'Contumacy is as sinful as divination, and stubbornness is as iniquitous as idolatry.' And there a climax may be marked, persevering obstinacy being worse than simple contumacy, & the worship of idols being worse than magic. Saul had, perhaps, already begun his extirpation of necromancers, (ch. 28. 3,) and this would make the reproof more pointed.

26 And Samuel said unto Saul, [z]I will not return with thee: for [y]thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.[1]

27 And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent.

28 And Samuel said unto him, [z]The LORD hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and [a]hath given it to [b]a neighbour of thine, that is better than thou.

29 And also [c]the Strength[2] of Israel[d] will not lie nor repent: for he is not a man, that he should repent.

30 Then he said, I have sinned; yet honour[e] me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn again with me, [f]that I may worship the LORD thy God.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul; and Saul worshipped the LORD.

32 ¶ Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to me Agag the king of the Amalekites. And Agag came unto him delicately.[3] And [g]Agag said, Surely the bitterness of death is past.

33 And Samuel said, [h]As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel [i]hewed Agag in pieces[4] before the LORD in Gilgal.

34 ¶ Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul went up to his house to Gibeah[k] of Saul.

35 And [l]Samuel came no more to see Saul until the day of his death; nevertheless [m]Samuel mourned for Saul: and the LORD [n]repented that he had made Saul king over Israel.

CHAPTER XVI.

Samuel sent by God, under pretence of a sacrifice, cometh to Beth-lehem, 1—5. Jesse's seven sons pass before him, but are not approved by God, 6—10. David is sent for, approved, and anointed, 11—13. Saul sendeth for David to quiet his evil spirit, 14—23.

AND the LORD said unto Samuel, [a]How long wilt thou mourn[5] for Saul, [b]seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? Fill thine [c]horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse[d] the Beth-lehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons.

2 And Samuel said, [e]How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer [6]with thee, and say, [f]I am come to sacrifice to the LORD.

3 And [g]call Jesse to the sacrifice, [h]and I will shew thee what thou shalt do; and thou shalt [i]anoint unto me him whom I name unto thee.

4 And Samuel did that which the LORD spake, and came to Beth-lehem: and the elders of the town [k][1]trembled at his coming,[2] and said, [l]Comest thou peaceably?

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the LORD:[3] [m]sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified[4] Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 ¶ And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on [n]Eliab, and said, [o]Surely the LORD's anointed is before him.[5]

7 But the LORD said unto Samuel, [p]Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD [q]seeth not as man seeth; for man [r]looketh on the outward[6] appearance, but the LORD looketh [s]on the heart.[7]

8 Then Jesse called [t]Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

9 Then Jesse made [u]Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

10 Again, Jesse made [v]seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The LORD hath not chosen these.

11 ¶ And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, [w]There remaineth yet the youngest; and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit [8]down till he come hither.

12 And he sent, and brought him in. Now he was [x]ruddy, and withal [9]of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to.[10] And the LORD said, Arise, [y]anoint him: for this is he.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and [z]anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and [a]the Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day for-

4 Agag was judicially put to death as a notorious and cruel murderer, and there is no reason for supposing that Samuel did any thing more than order the execution. Yet, on former occasions, the Levites (to which tribe he belonged) had not been slow in using their swords for the Lord; nor was it ever unusual in the East for persons in power to slay offenders with their own hand. When Chardin was in Persia, the king, rising in wrath against an officer who had attempted to deceive him, drew his sabre, fell upon him and hewed him in pieces. This form of punishment is still sometimes resorted to in the East. Bruce mentions instances of it in Abyssinia; & the tyrant Djezzar, (i. e. butcher) the Pacha of Acre, caused 50 or 60 officers whom he suspected of fraud, to be thus dispatched.

ward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

14 ¶ But [b]the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and [c]an evil spirit from the LORD troubled him.[1]

15 And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit from God troubleth thee:

16 Let our lord now command thy servants, which are [d]before thee, to seek out a man who is a cunning player on an harp: and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit[2] from God is upon thee, that he shall [e]play with his hand, and thou shalt be well.

17 And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring him to me.

18 Then answered one of the servants, and said, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Beth-lehemite, that is cunning in playing, and [f]a mighty valiant man, and a man of war,[3] and prudent in matters,[4] and a comely person, and [g]the LORD is with him.

19 ¶ Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, and said, Send me David thy son, which is [h]with the sheep.

20 And Jesse took [i]an ass laden with bread,[5] and a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them by David his son unto Saul.

21 And David came to Saul, and stood[k] before him: and he [l]loved him greatly; and he became his armour-bearer.

22 And Saul sent to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray thee, stand before me; for he hath found favour in my sight.

23 And it came to pass, when [m]the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, that David took an harp, and played with his hand: so [n]Saul was refreshed, and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him.

CHAPTER XVII.

The armies of the Israelites and Philistines being ready to battle, 1—3; Goliath cometh proudly forth to challenge a combat, 4—11. David, sent by his father to visit his brethren, heareth the challenge, 12—27. Eliab chideth him, 28, 29. He is brought to Saul, 30, 31. He showeth the reason of his confidence, 32—37. Without armour, armed by faith, he slayeth the giant, 38—54. Saul taketh notice of David, 55—58.

NOW the Philistines [a]gathered together their armies to battle, and were gathered together at [b]Shochoh, which belongeth to Judah, and pitched between Shochoh and [c]Azekah, in Ephes-dammin.[1]

2 And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and pitched by [d]the valley of Elah,[2] and set[3] the battle in array against the Philistines.

3 And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them.

4 ¶ And there went out a [4]champion out of the camp of the Philistines, named [e]Goliath [f]of Gath, [g]whose height was six cubits and a span.[5]

5 And he had an helmet of brass upon his head; and he was armed[6] with a coat of mail;[7] and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass:

6 And he had greaves[8] of brass upon his legs, and a target[9] of brass between his shoulders.

7 And [h]the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron: and one bearing a shield went before him.

8 And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? am not I a Philistine,[10] and ye [i]servants to Saul? choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me.

9 If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants:[11] but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and [k]serve us.

10 And the Philistine said, [l]I defy the armies of Israel this day; [m]give me a man, that we may fight together.

11 When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were [n]dismayed, and greatly afraid.

12 ¶ Now[12] [o]David was the son of that [p]Ephrathite of Beth-lehem-judah, whose name was Jesse; and he had [q]eight sons: and the man went among men for an old man in the days of Saul.

13 And the three eldest sons of Jesse went and followed Saul to the battle: and [r]the names of his three sons that went to the battle were Eliab the first born; and next unto him, Abinadab; and the third, [s]Shammah.

2 From the remedy suggested and employed with success (ver. 23.) we are not led to think of diabolical possession, so much as of deep melancholy, suffered by God to visit him in judgment. Compare the same expression in Ju. 9. 23. where 'an evil spirit' sent between two parties denotes a spirit of discord. In the present case conscious guilt, foreboding the loss of his kingdom and life, and the overthrow of his dynasty, made Saul jealous, and irritable, and at times subject to fits of moody madness, which the courtiers sought to allay (as is often done with effect) with the soothing strains of music. Earth contains not a more evil spirit than the guilty or troubled mind abandoned to its own impulses; & that may be fitly said to be 'from God,' inasmuch as it is the instrument of effecting one of his most terrible judgments.

3 How can this be reconciled with ver. 33, 39, of the next chapter, where he is spoken of as hitherto unused to arms and unable to bear them? Or if he now became Saul's minstrel and armour-bearer (ver. 21.) how came neither Saul nor Abner to know him when he defeated Goliath, ch. 17. 55. These and other discrepancies can only be removed by making the encounter with Goliath precede David's introduction to court: and the proper place for the last ten verses of the present chapter (ver. 14 to the end) seems to be between ver. 9. and 10. of chapter xviii. The following is Townshend's arrangement of the whole narrative, ch.16.1-14; 17. 1-41; 55, 56; 41-55; 57, 58; 18. 1-10; 16. 14-23; 18. 10, and onwards.

14 And David was [t]the youngest: and the three eldest followed Saul.

15 But David went and [u]returned from Saul to feed his father's sheep at Beth-lehem.

16 And the Philistine drew near morning and evening, and presented himself [v]forty days.

17 And Jesse said unto David his son, [w]Take now for thy brethren an ephah of this [x]parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren;

18 And [y]carry these ten cheeses[1] unto the captain of their thousand,[2] and [z]look how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge.[3]

19 Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel, were in the valley of Elah,[4] fighting with the Philistines.

20 ¶ And David rose up early in the morning,[5] and [a]left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went, as Jesse had commanded him: and he came to the trench,[6] as the host was going forth to the fight,[7] and shouted for the battle.

21 For Israel and the Philistines had put the battle in array, army against army.

22 And David left his carriage[8] in the hand of the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army, and came and saluted[9] his brethren.

23 And as he talked with them, behold, there came up the champion (the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name) out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake [b]according to the same words: and David heard them.

24 And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him,[10] and were [c]sore afraid.

25 And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defy Israel is he come up: and it shall be, that the man who killeth him, [d]the king will enrich him with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and make his father's house [e]free in Israel.[11]

26 And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the [f]reproach from Israel? for who is this [g]uncircumcised Philistine, that he should [h]defy the armies of the living God?

27 And the people answered him after this manner, saying, [i]So shall it be done to the man that killeth him.

28 ¶ And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men; and [k]Eliab's anger[1] was kindled against David, and he said, Why camest thou down hither? and [l]with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? [m]I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle.

29 And David said, [n]What have I now done? Is there not a cause?[2]

30 ¶ And he turned from him toward another, and spake after the same manner:[3] and the people answered him again after the former manner.

31 And when the words were heard which David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul; and he [4]sent for him.

32 ¶ And David said to Saul, [o]Let no man's heart fail because of him; [p]thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine.

33 And Saul said to David, [q]Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: [r]for thou art but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth.

34 And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion and a bear,[5] and took a lamb[6] out of the flock;

35 And I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and [s]smote him, and slew him.

36 Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear; and [t]this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing [u]he hath defied the armies of the living God.

37 David said moreover, [v]The LORD that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, [w]Go, and the LORD be with thee.

38 ¶ And Saul armed David with his armour,[7] and he put an helmet of 3 This was probably some concerted token of welfare, according to the custom of those times, when epistolary correspondence was rare.

4 'We entered,' says Clarke, 'the famous Terebinthine Vale, renowned for centuries as the field of the victory gained by David over the uncircumcised Philistine. It is a pretty & interesting looking spot; the bottom covered with olive trees. Its present appearance answers exactly to the description given in scripture; for nothing has ever occurred to alter the appearance of the country. The two hills on which the armies stood, entirely confine it on the right and left. The very brook whence David chose him 'five smooth stones' (which has been noticed by many a thirsty pilgrim, journeying from Jaffa to Jerusalem) still flows through the vale, which is varied with banks and undulations.'
5 David must still be the drudge of the family, though he was to be its greatest ornament. His prudence & care made him be up early, and yet not leave his sheep unguarded. Faithful in a few things, and therefore fit to be made ruler over many; so well had he learned to obey before he aspired to command.

5 As the lion & bear are never known to associate, this must refer to two different occasions, which David combined for the sake of brevity. And perhaps, in the next verse, the first clause refers to one animal, and the second to the other. The bear denotes not the white or black, but the brown bear, which still exists in western Asia, though nearly extirpated from Palestine. In early times the pastoral occupation was attended with much danger from beasts of prey, and the intrepidity requisite for subduing them, rendered it a more honourable profession than in after ages. David was in this a type of the good Shepherd, who gathers the lambs in his arms, and who laid down his life for the sheep.

brass upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail.

39 And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go; for he had not proved it. And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them. And David put[z] them off him.[1]

40 And he took his [y]staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook,[2] and put them in a shepherd's bag[3] which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine.

41 And the Philistine came on, and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.

42 And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, [z]he disdained him; for he was but [a]a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance.[4]

43 And the Philistine said unto David, [b]Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed[c] David by his gods.

44 And the Philistine said to David, Come[d] to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.[5]

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou[e] comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee [f]in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast [g]defied.

46 This day [h]will the LORD deliver[6] thee into mine hand: and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give the [i]carcases of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that [k]all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.[7]

47 And all this assembly shall know that the LORD [l]saveth not with sword and spear: for [m]the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands.

48 And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose, and came and drew nigh to meet David, that [n]David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine.[8]

49 And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and [o]smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth.[1]

50 So David prevailed over the Philistine[2] with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; [p]but there was no sword in the hand of David.

51 Therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine, and took [q]his sword, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion[3] was dead, they [r]fled.

52 ¶ And [s]the men of Israel and of Judah arose, and shouted, and pursued the Philistines, until thou come to the [t]valley,[4] and to the gates of Ekron: and the wounded of the Philistines fell down by the way to Shaaraim, even unto Gath, and unto Ekron.

53 And the children of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines, and [u]they spoiled their tents.

54 ¶ And David [v]took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem: but he put his armour in his tent.

55 And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, [w]Whose son is this youth? And Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell.[5]

56 And the king said, Enquire thou whose son the stripling is.

57 And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul, [x]with the head of the Philistine in his hand.

58 And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, [y]I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Beth-lehemite.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Jonathan loveth David, 1—4. Saul envieth his praise, 5—9; seeketh to kill him in his fury, 10, 11; feareth him for his good success, 12—16; offereth him his daughter for a snare, 17—21. David persuaded to be the king's son-in-law, giveth two hundred foreskins of the Philistines for Michal's dowry, 22—27. Saul's hatred, and David's glory increaseth, 28—30.

AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that [a]the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan [b]loved him as his own soul.[6]

7 David's speech savours nothing of ostentation; God is all in all in it. He derives his authority from God. He depends wholly for success upon God. He devotes the praise and glory of all to God. Nothing can exceed the humility, faith, and piety, which appear in it. He expresses his assured expectation of success, he glories in his mean appearance and arms, that the victory might be the more unquestionably ascribed to the Lord. He even expresses a hope that it might convince the Philistines that the God of Israel was the only true God.

1 The sling was a very powerful weapon. See Note at Ju. 20. 16. The stone might pierce the helmet, or pass through the hole left for sight, or Goliath might have lifted up the part of his helmet that covered his forehead (as he did when speaking) in contempt of David.

1 The presenting an article of dress or armour, is considered in the East as ratifying an agreement or confirming friendship; the gift of the girdle, in particular, is a valuable present, but the most coveted honour of all, is to be arrayed by a prince in a dress that has been worn by himself. Mordecai was invested with 'the apparel which the king useth to wear.' s ver. 17; 2 Sa. 17. 8-11.
9 In the poems and romances of the East, (as well as those of the West which relate to the times of chivalry,) instances often occur of a father trying to get rid of an obnoxious suitor to his daughter, by proposing some arduous enterprize, which he would either decline, or in which, if he accept the condition, he would probably perish. In the famous Bedouin romance of Antar, his rival says to the father, 'When Antar asks of the dower of Ibla, tell him you only desire a thousand Asafeer camels that are in the possession of the king of the Arabs. He will go in search of them, and expose his life to danger and death, and you will never see him again.' But Antar, like David, succeeded in the enterprize designed for his destruction.

15 Wherefore, when Saul saw that he behaved himself very [z]wisely, he was afraid of him.

16 But [a]all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

17 ¶ And Saul said to David, Behold my elder daughter Merab, [b]her will I give thee to wife;[1] only be thou valiant[2] for me, and fight [c]the LORD's battles: for Saul said, [d]Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him.

18 And David said unto Saul, [e]Who am I? and what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king?

19 But it came to pass, at the time when Merab, Saul's daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given unto [f]Adriel the [g]Meholathite to wife.

20 ¶ And Michal, Saul's daughter, [h]loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing pleased him.[3]

21 And Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be [i]a snare[4] to him, and that [k]the hand of the Philistines may be against him. Wherefore Saul said to David, Thou shalt [l]this day be my son-in-law in the one of the twain.[5]

22 ¶ And Saul [m]commanded his [n]servants, saying, Commune with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee: now therefore be the king's son-in-law.

23 And Saul's servants spake those words in the ears of David. And David said, Seemeth it to you a light thing to be a king's son-in-law, seeing that I am [o]a poor man, and lightly [6]esteemed?

24 And the servants of Saul told him, saying, On[7] this manner spake David.

25 And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any [p]dowry, but an hundred [q]foreskins[8] of the Philistines, [r]to be avenged of the king's enemies. But Saul [s]thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines.[9]

26 And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the king's son-in-law: and [t]the days were not expired.[1]

27 Wherefore David arose and went, he and [u]his men, and [v]slew[2] of the Philistines two hundred[3] men: and David brought their foreskins, and they gave them in full tale to the king, that he might be the king's son-in-law. And Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife.

28 ¶ And Saul [w]saw and knew that the LORD was with David, and that Michal, Saul's daughter, loved him.

29 And Saul was [x]yet the more afraid of David; and [y]Saul became David's enemy continually.

30 Then the princes of the Philistines [z]went forth: and it came to pass, after they went forth, that David [a]behaved himself more wisely[4] than all the servants of Saul; so that his name was much set by.[5]

CHAPTER XIX.

Jonathan discloseth to David his father's purpose to kill him, 1—3. He persuadeth his father to a reconciliation, 4—7. By reason of David's good success in a new war, Saul's malicious rage breaketh out against him, 8—11. Michal deceiveth her father with an image in David's bed, 12—17. David cometh to Samuel to Naioth, 18, 19. Saul's messengers, sent to take David, 20—22, and Saul himself, prophesy, 23, 24.

AND [a]Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.

2 But Jonathan, Saul's son, [b]delighted[6] much in David: and [c]Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee. Now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself;

3 And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field[7] where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee; and [d]what I see, that I will tell thee.

4 ¶ And Jonathan [e]spake good of David unto Saul his father,[8] and said unto him, Let not the king [f]sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because [g]his works have been to thee-ward very good:

5 For he did [h]put his life in his hand, and [i]slew the Philistine, and the LORD [k]wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: wherefore then wilt thou [l]sin against innocent blood, to slay David [m]without a cause?

6 And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan: and Saul [n]sware, As the LORD liveth, [o]he shall not be slain.

7 And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan showed him all those things: and Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, [p]as in times past.[1]

8 ¶ And there was war again: and [q]David went out and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter; and they fled from him.[2]

9 And [r]the evil spirit[3] from the LORD was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand: and David played with his hand.

10 And Saul [s]sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin; but [t]he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night.

11 ¶ Saul also [u]sent messengers unto David's house, [v]to watch him, and to slay him in the morning:[4] and Michal, David's wife, told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to-night, to-morrow thou shalt be slain.

12 ¶ So Michal [w]let David down through a window; and he went, and fled, and escaped.

13 And Michal took an image,[5] and laid it in the bed, and put a pillow of goat's hair for his bolster,[6] and covered it with a cloth.

14 And when Saul sent messengers to take David, [x]she said, He is sick.

15 And Saul sent the messengers again to see David, saying, [y]Bring him up to me in the bed,[7] that I may slay him.

16 And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was an image in the bed, with a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster.

17 And Saul said unto Michal, [z]Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away [a]mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, [b]He said unto me, Let me go; [c]why should I kill thee?

18 ¶ So David fled, and escaped, and came [d]to Samuel to Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him.

'It is a sign that the spirit of God is departed from men, if they are peevish in resenting affronts, envious and suspicious of all about them, and ill-natured in their conduct.'—Henry. No sooner does Saul conceive malice against David, than the evil spirit, that had formerly haunted him, seizes him again. Those who indulge in envy, and uncharitableness, give place to the devil, and prepare for the re-entry of the unclean spirit, with seven others more wicked. Where envy is, there is confusion.

And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.[1]

19 And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah.

20 And Saul [f]sent messengers to take David: and [g]when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as appointed over them, the Spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied.[2]

21 And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And Saul [h]sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied[3] also.

22 Then went he also to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David? and one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

23 [1] And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and [k]the Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on and prophesied, until he came to Naioth in Ramah.

24 And he [l]stripped off his clothes also, and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and lay[4] down naked all that day, and all that night. Wherefore they say, [m]Is Saul also among the prophets?

CHAPTER XX.

David consulteth with Jonathan for his safety, 1—10. Jonathan and David renew their covenant by oath, 11—17. Jonathan's token to David, 18—23. Saul, missing David, seeketh to kill Jonathan, 24—40. Jonathan lovingly taketh his leave of David, 41, 42.

AND David [a]fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came and said before Jonathan, What have I done? what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life?

2 And he said unto him, [b]God forbid; thou shalt not die: behold, my father will do nothing, either great or small, but that he will shew[5] it me: and why should my father hide this thing from me? it is not so.

3 And David sware moreover, and said, Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes; and he saith, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved: but truly, [c]as the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, there is [d]but a step between me and death.[6]

4 'Naked' often means putting off the upper garments only. Saul took off his arms and outer vestments, and thus appeared like the rest of the prophets, a plain disarmed man. The light under-dress now worn in the East, is complete in itself, though, as it fits closer than the loose outer robes, it does suggest the idea of comparative nakedness.

6 Literally, 'there is a step.' A similar figure is made use of by Juvenal, who, authorizing those who risk their lives for gain, speaks thus, 'Go now and commit thy life to the winds, trusting to a hewn plank, but four or seven fingers distant from death, if the beam (out of which it has been cut,) has been large enough,' ver. 4. Sometimes it appears to us that there is 'but a step between us and death;' at all times it may be so, and we should prepare for the event. But the dangers appear most threatening, we cannot die till the purpose of God concerning us be accomplished, and till (like David,) we have served our generation according to God's will. We blame not David for using with all diligence the means of safety, but it became him to believe the word of God, and not give way to desponding fears. Faith is not designed to supersede, but to quicken our endeavours, and to assure us of a successful issue. He ought to have recollected his former deliverances, and to have encouraged himself in his God.

4 Then said Jonathan unto David, Whatsoever[1] thy soul desireth,[2] I will even do it for thee.[3]

5 And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, to-morrow is the [h]new moon,[4] and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat: but let me go, that I may hide myself in the field unto the third day at even.

6 If thy father at all miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run to [k]Beth-lehem his city;[5] for there is a yearly sacrifice[6] there for all the family.

7 If he say thus, [i]It is well; thy servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth, then be sure that [7]evil is determined by him.

8 Therefore thou shalt [n]deal kindly with thy servant; for [o]thou hast brought thy servant into a covenant of the LORD with thee: notwithstanding, [p]if there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself;[8] for [q]why shouldest thou bring me to thy father?

9 And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee: for if I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee, [r]then would I not tell it thee?

10 Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? or what if thy father [s]answer thee roughly?[9]

11 [t]And Jonathan said unto David, Come, and let us go out into the field. And they went out both of them into the field.

12 And Jonathan said unto David, [u]O LORD God of Israel,[10] when I have sounded[11] my father about to-morrow any time, or the third day, and, behold, if there be good toward David, and then send not unto thee, and shew[12] it thee;

13 [v]The LORD do so and much more to Jonathan:[13] but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will shew it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace: and [w]the LORD be with thee, as [x]he hath been with my father.

thy kindness from my house for ever;[1] no, not when the LORD hath cut off the enemies of David every one from the face of the earth.

16 So Jonathan made[2] a covenant with the house of David, saying, [z]Let the LORD even require it at the hand of David's enemies.[3]

17 And Jonathan caused David to swear again,[4] because[5] he loved him: for[a] he loved him as he loved his own soul.

18 ¶ Then Jonathan said to David, To-morrow is the [b]new-moon; and thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty.[6]

19 And when thou hast stayed three days, then thou shalt go down quickly,[7] and come to the place where thou didst hide[c] thyself when[8] the business was in hand,[9] and shalt remain by the stone Ezel.[10]

20 And I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as though I shot at a mark.

21 And, behold, I will send a lad, saying, Go, find out the arrows. If I expressly say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them; then come thou: for there is peace to thee, and no hurt,[11] as [d]the LORD liveth.

22 But if I say thus unto the young man, Behold, the arrows are beyond thee; go thy way: for the LORD hath sent thee away.[12]

23 And as touching [e]the matter[13] which thou and I have spoken of, behold, [f]the LORD be between thee and me for ever.

24 ¶ So David hid himself in the field: and when the new-moon was come, the [g]king sat him down to eat meat.[14]

25 And the king sat upon his seat, as[h] at other times, even upon a seat by the wall:[15] and Jonathan arose,[16] and Abner sat by Saul's side, and David's place was empty.

26 Nevertheless Saul spake not any thing that day; for he thought, Something hath befallen him, [i]he is not clean; surely he is not clean.[17]

27 And it came to pass on the morrow, which was the second day of the month, that David's place was empty: and Saul said unto Jonathan his son, [k]Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat, neither yesterday nor to-day?

28 And Jonathan [l]answered Saul, David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Beth-lehem:

29 And he said, Let me go, I pray thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and [m]my brother, he hath commanded me to be there: and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren: therefore he cometh not unto the king's table.

30 Then [n]Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, Thou[2] son of the perverse rebellious woman,[3] do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness?[4]

31 For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom: wherefore now [o]send and fetch him unto me; for he shall surely die.[5]

32 And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, [p]Wherefore shall he be slain? [q]what hath he done?

33 And Saul [r]cast[q] javelin[6] at him to smite him: [s]whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David.

34 So Jonathan arose from the table [t]in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month: for [u]he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.[7]

35 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field [v]at the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him.

36 And he said unto his lad, [w]Run find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an arrow beyond him.[8]

37 And when the lad was come to the place[9] of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

38 And Jonathan cried after the lad, [y]Make speed, haste, stay not.[10] And

1 The meaning seems to be, 'If I live, spare me; if I die, spare my family.' The 'kindness of the Lord' denotes such kindness as he shows to those whom he takes into covenant with him; for he is a God to them and to their seed.

3 As there is no word for woman in the Heb. some understand the phrase as in the margin. But the subsequent allusion to his mother shows that this does not exhaust the meaning. Among eastern nations it is the extremity of abuse to speak evil of any one's mother. Mungo Park relates the expression of an African, 'Strike me, but do not curse my mother.' Yet the intention is commonly not so much to stigmatize the mother as the son; for not only is she often unknown to the reviler, but a father will (like Saul) use such expressions to his own son, and one brother to another.

But not to speak of the construction of the original, how could the bare recollection of a fact make him leave his father's feast 'in fierce anger?' Besides, it is added that on this occasion he was grieved not only for David's danger, but his own disgraceful treatment. He grieved for his father, he grieved for his friend.

Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master.

39 But the lad knew not any thing; only Jonathan and David knew the matter.

40 And Jonathan gave his artillery[1] unto his lad,[2] and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

41 ¶ And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south,[3] [z]and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times:[4] [a]and they kissed one another, and wept one with another, until [b]David exceeded.[5]

42 And Jonathan said to David, [c]Go in peace, forasmuch[6] as we have sworn both of us in the name of the LORD, saying, The LORD be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. [d]And he arose and departed: and Jonathan went into the city.

CHAPTER XXI.

David obtaineth of Ahimelech hallowed bread, 1—6. Doeg is present, 7. David taketh Goliath's sword, 8, 9. He feeth to Gath. where to save his life he feigneth himself mad, 10—15.

THEN came David to [a]Nob[7] to [b]Ahimelech the priest: and Ahimelech was [c]afraid at the meeting of David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee?

2 And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, [d]The king hath commanded me a business, and hath said unto me, Let no man know any thing of the business whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee: and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place.

3 Now therefore what is [e]under thine hand? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what there is present.[8]

4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand; but there is [f]hallowed bread, [g]if the young men have kept themselves at least from women.

5 And David answered the priest, and said unto him, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days, since I came out, and [h]the vessels[9] of the young men are holy, and the bread is [i]in a manner common, yea,[10] though it were sanctified this day in the vessel.

6 So the priest gave him hallowed bread; for there was no bread[1] there but the shew-bread, that was taken from before the LORD, to put [k]hot bread in the day when it was taken away.

7 Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, [m]2 detained before the LORD; and his name was [n]Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of [o]the herdmen that belonged to Saul.

8 ¶ And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste.

9 And the priest said, [p]The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in [q]the valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth[3] [r]behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it; for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.

10 ¶ And David arose, and [s]fled that day for fear of Saul, and went [t]to Achish[4] the king of Gath.[5]

11 And [u]the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David [v]the king of the land? did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

12 And David [w]laid up these words in his heart, and was [x]sore afraid of Achish the king of Gath.

13 And he [y]changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself [6]mad in their hands, and scrabbled[7] on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard.

14 Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man is [8]mad: wherefore then have ye brought him to me?

15 Have I need of madmen,[9] that ye have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?

Delany considers, that David was thus deeply affected by a sense of Jonathan's generosity, rather than by his own danger and desolate condition; and that Jonathan, desirous to prevent his being wholly cast down, repressed his own grief, and concluded the conference in the religious & calm manner here stated. Nothing can be conceived more pathetic than this parting; and we do not find that they met more than once afterwards in this world, (ch. 23. 16-18.)

6 Some think that David's terror threw him into an involuntary phrenzy, which produced epilepsy. The Greek version seems to countenance this idea; & his foaming at the mouth, so as that the 'spittle fell down upon his beard,' is a concomitant of that disease. But it is evident, that whatever were the appearances, they were all counterfeit. In like manner the ancients spake of Ulysses, Solon, Brutus, &c. feigning madness to gain some important purpose. But though Chandler vindicates David's conduct, it must be viewed as degrading to his character, and as proceeding from a want of faith; nor does the historian say one word in justification of it.

DAVID [a]therefore departed thence, and escaped to [b]the cave Adullam:[1] and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him.

2 And every one that was [c]in distress, and every one that was[2] in debt, and every one that was discontented,[3] gathered themselves unto him; and he became [d]a captain over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.

5 ¶ And the prophet [k]Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold; [l]depart, and get thee into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came into the forest of Hareth.

6 This was one of the worst acts in Saul's life. His malice was implacable, and his wrath cruel; there is no motive of justice or policy by which such a barbarous massacre can be justified. It was well said by Justin Martyr, 'Let us pray that kings and rulers may be found having a sober mind.' Saul's unrighteous command fulfilled God's threatening against the house of Eli. 'By the massacre of the priests, Saul weakened the power of those whom he had made his enemies, and obtained their possessions to bestow upon his followers. It was a most decided act of defiance to the Most High.' —Delany. 'Saul hereby for ever deprived himself of the protection and counsel of Jehovah. Abiathar fled with the ephod in which was the judgment of Urim; and David thereby received the fullest and plainest directions in circumstances of danger and difficulty.'—Chandler.

12 And Saul said, Hear now, [v]thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, Here I am,[1] my lord.

13 And Saul said unto him, [w]Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse, in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast enquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

14 Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And [x]who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is [y]the king's son-in-law, and [z]goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine house?

15 Did I then begin[2] to enquire of God for him? be it far from me. Let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: [a]for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more.[3]

16 And the king said, [b]Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, [c]thou, and all thy father's house.

17 ¶ And the king said unto [4]the footmen that stood about him, Turn, and [d]slay the priests of the LORD; because their hand also is with David, and because they knew when he fled, and did not shew it to me. But the servants of the king [e]would not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the LORD.

18 And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou, and fall upon the priests. And [f]Doeg the Edomite turned, and [g]he fell upon the priests, and slew on that day [h]fourscore and five persons[5] that did wear [i]a linen ephod.

19 And [k]Nob, the city of the priests, smote he with the edge of the sword, both [l]men and women, children and sucklings, and oxen, and asses, and sheep, with the edge of the sword.[6]

20 ¶ And [m]one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, [n]escaped, and fled after David.

21 And Abiathar shewed David that Saul had slain the LORD's priests.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Philistines fight against Keilah; David, enquiring of the Lord by Abiathar, smiteth them, and saveth Keilah, 1—8. God shewing him the coming of Saul, and the treachery of the Keilites, he escapeth from Keilah, 9—12. In Ziph Jonathan cometh and comforteth him, 13—18. The Ziphites discover him to Saul, 19—24. At Maon he is rescued from Saul by the invasion of the Philistines, 25—28. He dwelleth at En-gedi, 29.

THEN they told David, saying, Behold, the Philistines fight against Keilah,[a1] and they [b]rob the threshing-floors.[2]

2 Therefore David [c]enquired[3] of the LORD, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the LORD said unto David, Go and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah.

3 And David's men said unto him, Behold,[d] we be afraid[4] here in Judah, how much more then if we come to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?

4 Then David enquired of the LORD yet[e] again. And the LORD answered him, and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for[f] I will deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

5 So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and smote them with a great slaughter. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

6 And it came to pass, [g]when Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with [h]an ephod in his hand.[5]

7 ¶ And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah. And Saul said, God[i] hath delivered him into mine hand; for [k]he is shut in, by entering into a town that hath gates and bars.

8 And Saul called all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.

9 ¶ And David [l]knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and he said to Abiathar the priest, [m]bring hither the ephod.[1]

10 Then said David, O LORD God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, to [n]destroy the city for my sake.

11 Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O LORD God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. [o]And the LORD said, He will come down.

12 Then said David, Will the men of Keilah deliver[2] me and my men into the hand of Saul? and the LORD said, [p]They will deliver thee up.[3]

13 ¶ Then David and his men, which were about [q]six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go. And it was told Saul that David was escaped from Keilah; and he forbare to go forth.

14 And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds, and remained in [r]a mountain in the [s]wilderness of Ziph:[4] and [t]Saul sought him every day; [u]but God delivered him not into his hand.

15 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life: and David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a wood.

16 And Jonathan, Saul's son, arose, and went to David into the wood, and [v]strengthened his hand in God.

17 And he said unto him, [w]Fear not; for the hand of Saul my father [x]shall not find thee: and [y]thou shalt be king over Israel, and [z]I shall be next unto thee; and [a]that also Saul my father knoweth.

18 And [b]they two made a covenant before the LORD. And David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his house.

19 ¶ Then came up [c]the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strong holds in the wood, in the hill of [d5]Hachilah, which is on[6] the south of [7]Jeshimon?

20 Now therefore, O king, come down, according to [e]all the desire of thy soul to come down; and [f]our part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand.

1 Keilah was a city of Judah situated, according to Eusebius, 17 Roman miles south-east from Eleutheropolis, but only 8 according to Jerome. Sozomenus says, that the prophet Habbakuk's tomb was shown there.

3 'In what way David made this inquiry we are not told, but it was probably by means of Abiathar; and therefore, I think that the sixth verse should be read immediately after the first. The adventure here mentioned was truly noble and patriotic. Had not David loved his country and been above all motives of private and personal revenge, he would have rejoiced in this invasion of Judah, as producing a strong diversion in his favour, and embroiling his inveterate enemy. In most cases, a man with David's wrongs would have joined with the enemies of his country, and avenged himself on the author of his calamities; but he thinks of nothing but of succouring Keilah, and using his power and influence in behalf of his brethren. This is a rare instance of disinterested heroism.'—Clarke.

5 It will be seen from the Note at ver 2. that Clarke, following Houbigant, would bring in this verse after ver. 1. Geddes brings it in after ver. 9. and he, Dathe and Boothroyd following the Greek Version, give the sense thus, 'For Abiathar, who had fled to David, went down with David to Keilah, and brought the ephod with him.' It is certain that Abiathar had joined David before the latter recovered Keilah.

3 'In this history,' says Clarke, 'we find proof that there is such a thing as contingency in human affairs; that is, God has poised many things between a possibility of being and not being, leaving it to the will of the creature to turn the scale. In the answers of the Lord the following conditions were implied: "If thou continue in Keilah, Saul will certainly come down; and if Saul come down, the men of Keilah will deliver thee up." Now though the text positively asserts that Saul would come to Keilah, yet he did not come; and that the men of Keilah would deliver David into his hand, yet David was not thus delivered to him. And why? Because David left Keilah; but had he staid, Saul would have come down, and the men of Keilah would have betrayed David.' But it is at the same time evident, that in the mind and purpose of God there was no contingency; he not only knew what would have happened in other circumstances, but what was to happen in point of fact.

21 And Saul said, [g]Blessed be ye of the LORD; for ye have compassion on me.

22 Go, I pray you, prepare[1] yet, and know and see his place where his haunt is,[2] and who hath seen him there: for it is told me that he dealeth very subtlely.

23 See therefore, and [h]take knowledge of all the lurking-places where he hideth himself, and come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you: and it shall come to pass, if he be in the land, that [i]I will search him out throughout all [k]the thousands[3] of Judah.

24 And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul: but David and his men were in the wilderness of [l]Maon,[4] in the plain on [m]the south of Jeshimon.

25 Saul also and his men went to seek him. And they told David: wherefore he came down into[5] a rock, and abode in the wilderness of Maon; and when Saul heard that, he pursued after David in the wilderness of Maon.

26 And Saul[6] went on this side of the mountain, and David and his men on that side of the mountain: and [n]David made haste to get [o]away for fear of Saul; for Saul and his men compassed David and his men round about to take them.

27 ¶ But [p]there came a messenger unto Saul, saying, Haste thee, and come; for [q]the Philistines have[7] invaded the land.[8]

28 Wherefore Saul returned from pursuing after David, and went against the Philistines: therefore they called that place Sela-hammah-lekoth.[9]

29 ¶ And David went up from thence, and dwelt in strong holds at [r]En-gedi.[10]

CHAPTER XXIV.

David, in a cave at En-gedi, having cut off Saul's skirt, spareth his life, 1—7. He sheweth thereby his innocency, 8—15. Saul, acknowledging his fault, taketh an oath of David, and departeth, 16—22.

AND it came to pass, [a]when Saul was returned from following[11] the Philistines,[12] that [b]it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in [c]the wilderness of En-gedi.

2 Then Saul took [d]three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went [e]to seek David and his men upon the [f]rocks of the wild goats.[13]

3 And he came to the [1]sheep-cotes by the way, where was a cave; and Saul went in to cover [g]his feet:[2] and [h]David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.[3]

4 And [1]the men of David said unto him, Behold the day of which the LORD said unto thee, Behold, [k]I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of Saul's[4] robe privily.

5 And it came to pass afterward, that [l]David's heart smote him,[5] because he had cut off Saul's skirt.

6 And he said unto his men, [m]The LORD forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the LORD's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD.

7 So David stayed[6] his servants with these words, and [n]suffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rose up out of the cave, and went on his way.

8 ¶ David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, [o]My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, [p]David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself.

9 And David said to Saul, [q]Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?

10 Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the LORD had delivered thee to-day into mine hand in the cave: and some [r]bade me kill thee; but mine eye spared thee;[7] and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is [s]the LORD's anointed.

11 Moreover, [t]my father, see; yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see that there is [u]neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet [v]thou huntest my soul to take it.

12 The [w]LORD judge between me and thee, and the LORD avenge me of thee; but [x]mine hand shall not be upon thee.

But if the idea of the word be 'separation,' the rock might get this name from its having so completely divided the two hostile parties as described in ver. 26. 3 There are many very large caverns in that part of Judea. Strabo mentions one of sufficient size to contain 4000 men. They usually consist of several distinct cavities, with intricate passages from one to another. Travellers describe the cave of En-gedi as at first not appearing very lofty or spacious, but a low passage leads into apartments, where many persons might remain concealed. Dr Pococke says of it; 'There is a tradition that the people of the country, to the number of thirty thousand, retired into this grotto to avoid a bad air. This place is so strong, that one would imagine it to be one of the strongholds of En-gedi, to which David and his men fled from Saul; & possibly it may be that very cave in which he cut off Saul's skirt, for David and his men might with great ease lie hid there and not be seen by him.' the wicked;[1] but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

14 After whom is [z]the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? [a]after a dead dog, [b]after a flea?[2]

15 The LORD therefore [c]be judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and deliver[3] me out of thine hand.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, Is[d] this thy voice, my son David? and Saul[e] lifted up his voice, and wept.[4]

17 And he said to David, [f]Thou art more righteous than I; for [g]thou hast rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil.

18 And thou hast shewed this day how that thou hast dealt well with me: forasmuch as, when [h]the LORD had delivered[5] me into thine hand, thou killedst me not.

19 For if a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away? wherefore the [i]LORD reward thee good for that thou hast done unto me this day.

20 And now, behold, [k]I know well that thou shalt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in thine hand:

21 [l]Swear now therefore unto me by the LORD, that [m]thou wilt not cut off my seed after me, and that thou wilt not destroy my name out of my father's house.

22 And David sware unto Saul. And Saul went home; but [n]David and his men gat them up unto [o]the hold.[6]

CHAPTER XXV.

Samuel dieth, 1; David in Paran sendeth to Nabal, 2—9; Provoked by Nabal's churlishness, he mindeth to destroy him, 10—13. Abigail understanding thereof, 14—17; taketh a present, 18—22; and by her wisdom, 23—31; pacifieth David, 32—35; Nabal hearing thereof dieth, 36—38. David taketh Abigail and Ahinoam to be his wives, 39—43. His wife Michal is given to Phalti, 44.

AND [a]Samuel died;[7] and all the Israelites were gathered together, and [b]lamented him, and buried him [c]in his house[8] at Ramah. And David arose, and went down to [d]the wilderness of Paran.

2 ¶ And there was a man in [e]Maon, whose possessions[9] were in Carmel; and the [f]man was very great, and he had [g]three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats; and he was [h]shearing his sheep in [i]Carmel.[1]

3 Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigail; and she was a woman of [k]good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance: but the man [l]was churlish, and evil in his doings; and he was of the house of Caleb.[2]

4 ¶ And David heard in the wilderness that Nabal did shear his sheep.

5 And David sent out ten young men; and David said unto the young men, Get you up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and greet[3] him in my name:

6 And thus shall ye say to him that [m]liveth in prosperity, [n]Peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast.

7 And now I have heard that thou hast shearers: now, thy shepherds which were with us, [o]we hurt[4] them not, neither was there ought missing[5] unto them, all the while they were in Carmel.

8 Ask thy young men, and they will shew thee: wherefore let the young men find favour in thine eyes; (for we come in [p]a good day;) give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand unto thy servants, and to [q]thy son David.

9 And when David's young men came, they spake to Nabal according to all those words in the name of David, and ceased.[6]

10 ¶ And Nabal answered David's servants, and said, [r]Who is David? and who is the son of Jesse? [s]There be many servants now a days that break away every man from his master.

11 [t]Shall I then take my bread, and my water, and my flesh[7] that I have killed for my shearers, and [u]give it unto men [v]whom I know not whence they be?

12 So David's young men turned their way, and went again, and [w]came and told him all those sayings.

13 And David said unto his men, [x]Gird ye on every man his [8]sword. And they girded on every man his sword; and [y]David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men, [z]and two hundred abode by the stuff.

2 Similar phrases are still used in the East, when persons wish to express the lowliness of their condition. Compare 2 Sa. 9. 8. Notwithstanding the value of the dog to man, its name has almost universally been employed to express not only debasement, but detestation. It is a favourite term of abuse among the heroes of Homer. As for the flea, it is deemed equally contemptible and troublesome in the East and West. An Arabian writer thus describes it: 'A black, nimble, extenuated, hunch backed animal, which being sensible when any one looks at it, jumps incessantly, now on one side, now on the other, till it gets out of sight.' Some think that David uses the simile to imply, that while it would cost Saul much pains to catch him, he would obtain but little advantage from the capture; but this seems a needless refinement.

The ruins cover a large extent of ground, and there are remains of several large churches, besides a Roman fortress. The place is now called by the natives, Kurmel. We read here the story of David and Nabal, & were deeply struck with the truth of Biblical descriptions of manners and customs, almost literally, and identically the same as they exist at the present day.'

8 Admitting that David was in fairness entitled to the customary present for the services he had rendered to Nabal, and that the provocation he received was very great, (especially to a military leader, in his peculiarly critical circumstances) still it was not such as to justify his barbarous design. He allowed the bitterness of 'a blockhead's insult,' to sink too deeply into his soul, as he himself afterwards confessed.

14 ¶ But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he railed[1] on them:

15 But the men were [a]very good unto us, and we were not hurt,[2] neither missed we any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields.

16 They were [b]a wall unto us, both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep.

17 Now therefore know and consider what thou wilt do; for [c]evil is determined against our master, and against all his household: for he is such [d]a son of Belial, [e]that a man cannot speak to him.

18 ¶ Then Abigail [f]made haste,[3] and took[g] two hundred loaves, and two bottles of wine,[4] and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and an hundred clusters[5] of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs,[6] and laid them on asses.[7]

19 And she said unto her servants, Go on before me: behold, I come after you. [h]But she told not her husband Nabal.

20 And it was so, as she [i]rode on the ass, that she came down by the covert of the hill, and, behold, David and his men came down against her; and she met them.

21 (Now David had said, [k]Surely in vain have I kept all that this fellow hath in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that pertained unto him; and [l]he hath requited me evil for good.

22 [m]So and more also do God unto the enemies of David, [n]if I leave of all that pertain to him, by the morning light, [o]any that pisseth against the wall.)

23 And when Abigail saw David, she hasted, and [p]lighted off the ass, and fell[q] before David on her face, and bowed herself to the ground,

24 And [r]fell at his feet,[8] and said, Upon[s] me, my lord, upon me let this iniquity[9] be; and [t]let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine audience,[10] and hear the words of thine handmaid.

1 'The whole transaction between David and Abigail was carried on in the most open and public manner, in the presence of David's men and Abigail's servants in the field where they met, and was begun and finished without interruption, or any private conference between them. The meaning of David's expression is, "I have accepted thy interposition for Nabal, and for thy sake will not execute my intended revenge upon him." The whole conduct of this excellent woman shows that she aimed at nothing but the preservation of Nabal and her family.'—Chandler.

4 The word rendered bolster, means simply at his 'head' (see ch.19.13). The spear had a spike at the lower end for the purpose of sticking it in the ground when the warrior was at rest, a custom described by Homer and still prevalent in the East. As to the place, in the centre of which Saul lay, it ought not to have been translated trench, nor (as in the margin of ver. 5.) 'carriages,' unless by this we understand 'things carried,' i. e. the baggage, (see ch. 17. 20) for heavy waggons could not have been used in so mountainous a district. The radical idea of the word is 'roundness' and it no doubt refers to the circular form of encampment still adopted by the Arabs, the chief being always in the centre, as the place of greatest honour and security. Morier, in describing the Persian camp in the plain of Oujan, notes particularly that the royal palace was in the middle. 'The king thus became, as it were, the nave of a great wheel, and he was so completely hemmed in, that if an enemy had appeared, it would have been impossible to get at him without first cutting a road through the labyrinth of ropes & tents which every where surrounded him.

AND the [a]Ziphites came unto Saul to Gibeah, saying, [b]Doth not David hide himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon?

2 Then [c]Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having [d]three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph.

3 And Saul pitched in the hill of [e]Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon, by the way: but David abode in the wilderness; and he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness.[1]

4 David therefore [f]sent out spies, and understood that Saul was come in very deed.

5 ¶ And David arose, and came to the place where Saul had pitched; and David beheld[2] the place where Saul lay, and [g]Abner the son of Ner, the captain of his host: and Saul lay in the trench,[3] and the people pitched round about him.

6 Then answered David, and said to Ahimelech the [h]Hittite, and to [i]Abishai the son of [k]Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, [l]Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee.

7 So David and Abishai came to the people by night; and, behold, Saul lay [m]sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his [4]bolster: but Abner and the people lay round about him.

8 Then said Abishai to David, [n]God hath delivered[5] thine enemy into thine hand this day: now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear even to the earth at once, and I will not smite him [o]the second time.

9 And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: for [p]who can stretch forth his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless?

10 David said furthermore, As [q]the LORD liveth, the LORD shall smite him; or [r]his day shall come to die; or [s]he shall descend into battle, and perish.

11 The LORD forbid [t]that I should stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that is at his bolster, and the cruse of water,[1] and let us go.

12 So David took [u]the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster; and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither awaked; for they were all asleep: because [v]a deep sleep from the LORD was fallen upon them.

13 ¶ Then David went over to the other side, and stood on [w]the top of an hill afar off, a great space being between them:

14 And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king?[2]

15 And David said to Abner, Art not thou a valiant man? and who is like to thee in Israel? wherefore then hast thou not kept[3] thy lord the king? for there[x] came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord.

16 This thing is not good that thou hast done. As the LORD liveth, ye are worthy[4] to die, because ye have not kept your master, the [y]LORD's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his bolster.

17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, [z]Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

18 And he said, [a]Wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? for [b]what have I done? or what evil is in mine hand?

19 Now therefore, I pray thee, [c]let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the LORD have [d]stirred thee up against me, let him accept[5] an offering:[6] but if they be the children of men, [e]cursed be they before the LORD; for [f]they have driven me out this day from abiding[7] in [g]the inheritance of the LORD, saying, Go, serve other gods.[8]

20 Now therefore, [h]let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the LORD; for [i]the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge[9] in the mountains.

21 ¶ Then said Saul, [k]I have sinned: return, my son David; for [l]I will no more do thee harm, because [m]my soul was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.

22 And David answered and said, Behold the king's spear! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.

23 The LORD [n]render to every man his righteousness and his [1]faithfulness: for the LORD delivered thee into my hand to-day; but [o]I would not stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed.

24 And, behold, [p]as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the LORD, and [q]let him deliver me out of all tribulation.

25 Then Saul said to David, [r]Blessed be thou, my son David; thou shalt both do great things, and also shalt still [s]prevail.[2] [t]So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Saul hearing that David was fled to Gath, seeketh no more for him, 1—4. David beggeth Zihlag of Achish, 5—7. He, invading other countries, persuadeth Achish he fought against Judah, 8—12.

AND David [a]said in his heart, I shall now perish[3] one day by the hand of Saul:[4] [b]there is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape [c]into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any coast of Israel: so shall I escape out of his hand.

2 And David arose, and he passed over with [d]the six hundred men that were with him unto [e]Achish, the son of Maoch,[5] king of Gath.

3 And David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his men, every man with his household,[6] even David [f]with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the Carmelitess, Nabal's wife.

4 And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath; and [g]he sought no more again for him.[7]

5 ¶ And David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in [h]some town in the country, that I may dwell there: for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city[8] with thee?

6 Then Achish gave him [i]9[9]Ziklag

Shaw says of the greater or red-legged partridge, 'The Arabs have another, though a more laborious method of catching these birds; for, observing that they become languid and fatigued after they have been hastily put up twice or thrice, they immediately run in upon them and knock them down with their serwattys or bludgeons.' 'Precisely in this manner,' says Harris, (Nat. that day; wherefore Ziklag pertaineth unto the kings of Judah unto this day.

7 And the time[1] that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines was a full year and four months.[2]

8 ¶ And David and his men went up, and invaded [k]the Geshurites, and the[l] Gezerites,[3] and [m]the Amalekites: for those nations were of old the inhabitants of the land, [n]as thou goest to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt.

9 And David smote the land, and left[o] neither man nor woman alive, and took away the sheep, and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned, and came to Achish.

10 And Achish said, Whither have ye made a road[4] to-day? [p]And David said, Against the south of Judah,[5] and against the south of [q]the Jerahmeelites, and against the south of the [r]Kenites.

11 And David saved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, saying, [s]Lest they should tell on us, saying, So did David, and so will be his manner all the while he dwelleth in the country of the Philistines.[6]

12 And Achish believed David, saying, He hath made his people Israel utterly[7] to abhor him; therefore he shall be my servant for ever.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Achish putteth confidence in David, 1, 2. Saul, having destroyed the workers with familiar spirits, 3; and now in his fear forsaken of God, 4—6, seeketh to a witch, 7, 8. The witch, encouraged by Saul raiseth up Samuel, 9—14. Saul, hearing his ruin, fainteth, 15—20. The woman, with his servants, refresh him with meat, 21—25.

AND it came to pass in those [8]days, [a]that the [b]Philistines gathered their armies together for warfare, to fight with Israel: and Achish said unto David, Know thou assuredly, that [c]thou shalt go out with me to battle, thou and thy men.

2 And David said to Achish, [d]Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. And Achish said to David, Therefore will I make thee keeper of mine head[9] for ever.

3 ¶ Now [e]Samuel was dead, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own city: and Saul had [f]put away those that had familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land.

4 ¶ And the Philistines gathered themselves together, and came and pitched in [g]Shunem; and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in [h]Gilboa.

5 And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, [i]he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled.

6 And when Saul [k]enquired of the LORD, the LORD answered him not, neither [l]by dreams, nor [m]by Urim, nor [n]by prophets.

7 ¶ Then said Saul unto his servants, [o]Seek me a woman that hath [p]a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and enquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit[1] at [q]En-dor.[2]

8 And Saul [r]disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night; and he said, I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and [t]bring me him up whom I shall name unto thee.

9 And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, [u]how he hath cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: [v]wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die?

10 And Saul [w]sware to her by the LORD, saying, As the LORD liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing.

11 Then said the woman, Whom shall I bring up unto thee? and he said, Bring me up Samuel.

12 And when the woman saw Samuel,[3] she cried with a loud voice: and the woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for [x]thou art Saul.

13 And the king said unto her, Be not afraid: for what sawest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I saw [y]gods ascending out of the earth.

14 And he said unto her, What form is he of?[4] And she said, An old man cometh up; and he is covered with [z]a mantle. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground, and bowed himself.

5 David meant one thing, but wished Achish to understand another. He meant the heathen tribes living near (or perhaps within) the south of Judah; but he wished Achish to suppose he meant the Israelites themselves, especially the descendants of Jerahmeel, the great grandson of Judah, (1 Ch. 2. 25,) and also the friends of Israel, the Kenites, (ch. 15. 6). Though this equivocation had the desired effect of making Achish suppose David had entirely broken with his own countrymen, and is by some defended as an act of prudent policy, yet it cannot be defended, nor is it defended, by the historian. 8 The first two verses of this chapter should be joined to the end of the last. Boothroyd translates, 'Hence, when in those days the Philistines, &c., Achish, said to David,' It is certain that what encouraged them to attack Israel, was their persuasion that David's predatory inroads had always been upon his own country.

3 'Was the appearance of Samuel real or imaginary?' That it was a real appearance, and not an artful imposition, practised by the woman, can admit of little doubt. Her surprise and amazement at seeing things she did not expect, and that she had never seen before, (ver. 12, 13,) the express assertion of the historian, that Saul knew that it was 'Samuel himself' who spake to him, (ver. 14, 15, 20,) the allusion to certain passages in Saul's history, known only to himself and Samuel, (ver. 17, 18,) the delivery of a message from the prophet so perfectly in character, and including predictions that were speedily verified; all these are circumstances which clearly point to the reality of the apparition. Besides, on the supposition of its being a deception practised by the woman, she would certainly have put into Samuel's mouth tidings of good fortune rather than bad, according to the wonted custom of persons of her profession; more especially as she had every possible inducement for conciliating the favour of one who had her life at his disposal. In short, any interpretation which proceeds on the idea that the person was other than Samuel, is not only harsh and incongruous, but impeaches the veracity of the sacred historian, as if he could have recorded as actually occurring what only entered into a heated and disordered fancy, first excited, and then deceived, by the juggling tricks of an adroit ventriloquist.

15 ¶ And Samuel said to Saul, [a]Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring me up?[1] And Saul answered, [b]I am sore distressed; for [c]the Philistines make war against me, and [d]God is departed from me, and [e]answereth me no more, neither by prophets,[2] nor by dreams: therefore [f]I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do.

16 Then said Samuel, [g]Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?[3]

17 And the LORD hath done to him[4] as [h]he spake by me:[5] for the LORD hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and given it to [i]thy neighbour, even to David:

18 Because thou [k]obeyedst not the voice of the LORD, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath the LORD done this thing unto thee this day.

19 Moreover, [l]the LORD will also deliver Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines; and [m]to-morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me: the LORD also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.

20 Then Saul fell[6] straightway all along on the earth, and was [n]sore afraid, because of the words of Samuel:[7] and there was no strength in him; for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.

21 ¶ And the woman came unto Saul, and saw that he was sore troubled, and said unto him, Behold, thine handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and [o]I have put my life in my hand, and have hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me:

22 Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also unto the voice of thine handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee; and eat, that thou mayest have strength when thou goest on thy way.

23 But he refused, and said, [p]I will not eat. But his servants, together with the woman, [q]compelled him; and he hearkened unto their voice: so he arose from the earth, and sat upon the bed.

7 Here was another proof of the reality of the appearance. The question as to the more immediate agency by which it was effected, presents greater difficulties. That the woman seemed to arrogate the power to herself, (ver. 21,) proves nothing. Yet it might be conceded that diabolical agency was enabled and permitted to effect such a result in this particular instance, without its following that demons were vested with any such power at other times. But the simpler view is to suppose that before the woman had time to employ her usual incantations, the Almighty, for wise and important ends, sent back Samuel for a short season from the world of spirits. This was the belief of the ancient Jewish church. 'After his death he prophesied, and showed the king his end, and lift up his voice in prophecy to blot out the wickedness of the people,' Ecclus.46.20. Various great purposes were served by the transaction, e.g. Saul's crime in 'asking counsel of Ob,' was made the means of his punishment, 1 Ch. 10. 13, 14; the superiority of the oracle of Jehovah, to the real or imaginary oracles of Satan, was clearly evinced; and the doctrines of a future state, and a resurrection of the dead, received an awfully solemn confirmation, which was very necessary in that age of darkness.

3 Not the Aphek mentioned in ch. 4. 1, which was in Judah, but Aphek of Issachar, in, or near, the plain of Jezreel. There was a third Aphek in Asher, on the northern boundary of Canaan, towards Sidon, Jos. 13. 4.
4 It was of great importance to an army to be pitched near a copious spring of water. In the time of the Crusades, there stood on the site of this same Jezreel, a village, called by William of Tyre, 'Little Gerin:' and he says there was a fountain near it, beside which, in the year 1183, the camp of the Christians was pitched, opposite that of the famous Saladin. Bohaeddin, the biographer of Saladin, calls it, 'Ain-Djeluth,' and the Arabic geographers place it between Nablous and Beisan, (Scythopolis). Brochard (who travelled in the 13th century) also mentions this fountain, remarking that he saw, at a short distance, on a rising ground, the remains of Jezreel, in a village of scarce 20 houses, called Zarain. Richardson, at 4 hours from Gennyn, and 2 from Beisan, found in the same locality a copious fountain, called El Gelced, or the cold.

25 And she brought it before Saul, and before his servants; and they did eat. Then they rose up, and went away that night.

CHAPTER XXIX.

David marcheth with the Philistines; their princes are offended therewith, 1—5. Achish dismisseth him with commendations of his fidelity, 6—11.

NOW [a]the Philistines gathered together all their armies to [b3]Aphek: and the Israelites pitched by a fountain[4] which is in [c]Jezreel.

2 And [d]the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds and by thousands;[5] but [e]David and his men passed on in the rere-ward with Achish.

3 Then said the princes of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews[6] here? And Achish said unto the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David, the servant of Saul the king of Israel, which hath been with me [f]these days, or these years,[7] and I have [g]found no fault in him since he fell[8] unto me unto this day?

4 And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him; and the princes of the Philistines said unto him, [h]Make this fellow return, that he may go again to his place which thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to battle, lest in the battle he be an adversary to us: for wherewith should he reconcile himself unto his master? should it not be with the heads of these men?

5 Is [i]not this David, of whom they sang one to another in dances, saying, Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

6 ¶ Then Achish called David, and said unto him, Surely, as [k]the LORD liveth, [l]thou hast been upright, and [m]thy going out and thy coming in with me in the host is good in my sight: for I have not found evil in thee since the day of thy coming unto me unto this day: nevertheless the lords favour thee not.[9]

7 Wherefore now return, and go in peace, that thou displease[10] not the lords of the Philistines.[11]

8 And David said unto Achish, [n]But what have I done? and what hast thou found in thy servant, so long as I have been with[1] thee unto this day, [o]that I may not go fight against the enemies[2] of my lord the king?

9 And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, [p]as an angel of God: notwithstanding, the princes of the Philistines have said, He shall not go up with us to the battle.

10 Wherefore [q]now rise up early in the morning with thy master's servants that are come with thee; and as soon as ye be up early in the morning, and have light, depart.[3]

11 So David and his men rose up early to depart in the morning, to return into the land of the Philistines: and[r] the Philistines went up to Jezreel.[4]

CHAPTER XXX.

The Amalekites spoil Ziklag, 1, 2. David asking counsel is encouraged by God to pursue them, 3—10. By the means of a revived Egyptian he is brought to the enemies, and recovereth all the spoil, 11—21. David's law to divide the spoil equally between them that fight and them that keep the stuff, 22—25. He sendeth presents to his friends, 26—31.

AND it came to pass, when David and his men [a]were come to Ziklag on the third day, that [b]the Amalekites had invaded the south, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire;[5]

2 And had taken the women captives that were therein: they [c]slew not any, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.

3 ¶ So David and his men came to the city, and, behold, it was [d]burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken captives.

4 Then David and the people that were with him [e]lifted up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep.

5 And David's [f]two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite.

6 And David [g]was greatly distressed: for [h]the people spake of stoning him; because the soul of all the people was grieved,[6] every man for his sons and for his daughters: but [i]David encouraged himself in the LORD his God.

20 And David took all the flocks and the herds, which they drave before those other cattle, and said, [c]This is David's spoil.

21 ¶ And David came to the [d]two hundred men, which were so faint that they could not follow David, whom they had made also to abide at the brook Besor; and they went forth to meet David, and to meet the people that were with him: and when David came[e] near to the people, he saluted[3] them.

22 Then answered all the [f]wicked men, and men of Belial, of those[4] that went with David, and said, [g]Because they went not with us, we will not give them ought of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart.[5]

23 Then said David, Ye shall not do so, [h]my brethren, with that [i]which the LORD hath given us,[6] [k]who hath preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us into our hand.

24 For who will hearken unto you in this matter? [l]but as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that [m]tarrieth by the stuff: they shall part alike.

25 And it was so from that day forward,[7] that he made it a statute and an ordinance[8] for Israel unto this day.

26 ¶ And when David came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoil unto the elders of Judah, even [n]to his friends, saying, Behold a present[9] for you of the spoil of the enemies of the LORD;

27 To them which were in [o]Beth-el,[10] and to them which were in [p]south Ramoth,[1] and to them which were in [q]Jattir,[2]

28 And to them which were in [r]Aroer, and to them which were in Siphmoth,[3] and to them which were in [s]Eshtemoa,[4]

29 And to them which were in Rachal,[5] and to them which were in the cities of the [t]Jerahmeelites,[6] and to them which were in the cities of the [u]Kenites,

30 And to them which were in [v]Hormah, and to them which were in Chorashan,[7] and to them which were in Athach, 31 And to them which were in [w]Hebron, and to all the places where David himself and his men were wont to haunt.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Saul having lost his army, and his sons slain, he and his armour-bearer kill themselves, 1—6. The Philistines possess the forsaken towns of the Israelites, 7. They insult over the dead bodies of Saul and his sons, 8—10. The men of Jabesh-Gilead, recovering the bodies by night, burn them, and bury their bones at Jabesh, 11—13.

NOW [a]the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and [b]fell down slain[8] in mount [c]Gilboa.[9]

2 And the Philistines [d]followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew [e]Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchi-shua, [f]Saul's sons.

3 And the battle [g]went sore against Saul, and the archers[10] hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.

4 Then said Saul unto his armour-bearer, [h]Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith, lest these [i]uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse[11] me. But his armour-bearer would not; for [k]he was sore afraid. therefore [l]Saul took a sword,[12] and fell upon it.

5 And when [m]his armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.

6 So [n]Saul died, and his three sons, and his armour-bearer, and all his men, that same day together.

7 ¶ And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were on the other side Jordan,[13] saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, [o]they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

8 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came [p] to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons[1] fallen in mount Gilboa.

9 And they [q] cut off his head, and stripped off his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to [r] publish it in the house of their idols, and among the people.

10 And [s] they put his armour in the house of [t] Ashtaroth;[1] and they fastened his body to the wall of [u] [2]Beth-shan.

11 ¶ And when the inhabitants of [v] Jabesh-gilead heard of[3] that which the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh, and [w] burnt them there.

13 And they took [x] their bones, and buried them under a tree at [4] Jabesh, and [y] fasted seven days.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL.

THE materials for a correct Chronology of the events recorded in this book, are very scanty, the emendations of Hales being chiefly conjectural. Stackhouse, and others, suppose Eli to have been cotemporary with Samson, but Josephus (Antiq. V. 9. 1,) says he was his successor. Samuel's prophetic call is mentioned by St Paul (Acts xiii. 19, 20,) as having taken place 450 years after the division of the lands, when (says Josephus) he was twelve years of age. Upon the basis of these and other data, Hales proposes the following arrangement:

	B. C.
Samson dies, and is succeeded by Eli, (then in his 58th year,)	1182.
Samuel born, (in the 19th year of Eli's administration,)	1163.
Samuel called to be a prophet, (in the 12th year of his age, and 31st of Eli's administration.)	1152.
Eli dies in his 98th year,	1142.
Philistine servitude for 20 years, at the end of which Samuel becomes judge,	1122.
Samuel is sole judge for twelve years, when Saul is chosen king,	1110.
Saul defeats the Ammonites,	1110.
Saul's first offence in offering the burnt-sacrifice without waiting for Samuel,	1108.
Jonathan defeats the Philistines,	1106.
Saul's second offence in sparing the Amalekites,	1100.
David born,	1100.
—— anointed by Samuel,	1085.
—— kills Goliath,	1080.
—— marries Michal,	1075.
—— first flight to Gath,	1074.
Death of Samuel in his 92d year,	1072.
David's second flight to Gath,	1071.
Saul's third offence, (in consulting the necromancer,) and his death,	1070.

The most important event during the period here embraced, was the change in the Israelitish constitution from a pure theocracy to a theocratic monarchy. It may be ultimately traced to the frequent idolatries of the people, by which, in forsaking their allegiance to their heavenly king, they became disunited among themselves, and unable to combine with vigour against their common enemies. Samson, their last military hero, was succeeded by Eli and Samuel, men of peace; and while Eli's sons brought things sacred into contempt by their rapacity and licentiousness, the sons of Samuel disgraced the civil administration of affairs by 'taking bribes and perverting judgment.' The selfishness and jealousies of the different tribes continued. Those beyond Jordan were threatened by the Ammonites; those in the south by the Philistines, yet the other tribes either kept themselves aloof from their neighbours, or failed to assist them with the requisite alacrity. These circumstances, along with Samuel's advanced age, and the prospect of increasing anarchy after his death, induced the people, by their elders, to ask that a king should be appointed to reign over them, 'that they might be like all the nations.'

'But as the invisible king Jehovah would necessarily be obscured by a subordinate visible king, he, by means of Samuel, gave them to understand his disapprobation of their wish. When they, notwithstanding this, persisted in the request, it was granted them; probably because the desired change was sought for in a lawful manner of God himself, and that in the present disposition of the nation, it could be more peaceably brought about now, than at a future period. By this alteration of the constitution, the theocracy was indeed thrown somewhat into the shade; yet as that principle was interwoven with the fundamental law of the state, its influence did not entirely cease; for the elected king was to act as the viceroy and vassal of Jehovah.'—See Jahn's Hist. of the Hebrew Commonwealth, chap. iv. § 24—27.

Attention to these remarks is very necessary to an intelligent perusal of this first book of Samuel, where the principles of this theocratic monarchy begin to be developed in practice. It will thence be seen, that the cause of God's rejection of Saul, and his approbation of David, was not on account of the private vices of the one, or the private virtues of the other, but solely by reason of their public conduct. The one entirely mistook his position, the other as entirely comprehended it; the one acted as if absolute and independent, the other never forgot that he was only the vice-gerent of God. It was this which procured David the high distinction of being 'the man after God's own heart;' for in other respects there was much in his conduct which God could not, and did not, approve. Yet, even in his private character, (at least in this the earlier part of his history,) how much is there to admire and imitate!—his wisdom, his courage, his modesty, his piety, and prudence; his patience in persecution, his forgiveness of enemies, his faithfulness to friends, his unfailing trust in God. Nor is David's the only character this book offers for our instruction. The fond, foolish indulgence, and culpable remissness of Eli, are exhibited in impressive contrast with the early and entire devotedness, the unyielding firmness, and unbending integrity of Samuel. If we are shocked at the impious profanity of Eli's sons, let us set against it the ardent piety of his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, the account of whose death-bed (ch. 4. 19—22,) presents to the mind a scene, the pathos and sublimity of which have never been surpassed. And if it be painful to watch the downward career of the unhappy Saul, let us the more gladly turn from it to the contemplation of the portrait of his son Jonathan, one of the most lovely and perfect characters the world ever saw, and whose pure, disinterested friendship, and generous, self-denying magnanimity, find no parallel in fiction. The beautiful song of Hannah breathes the holy effusions of a devout mind, deeply impressed with a sense of God's kindness to herself, and of his providential government of the universe; and while it bears a close resemblance to the hymn of Mary, the mother of the Lord, it contains an illustrious prophecy of His advent and glory, as the MESSIAH, God's anointed king. 'We cannot,' says Hales, 'but admire that gracious dispensation of spiritual gifts to Hannah, (whose name signifies grace,) in ranking her among the prophets, who should first unfold a leading title of the blessed Seed of the Woman.'

THE SECOND BOOK OF

SAMUEL,

OTHERWISE CALLED THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS.

THIS book is a continuation of the preceding history, and contains an account of the events which occurred from the death of Saul, and the accession of David to the throne of Judah, till a period very near the close of that monarch's reign over Judah and Israel. It may be viewed as consisting of the 'Biography of David,' both as a man and a monarch; and it neither exaggerates his virtues nor conceals his faults. 'His heinous sins,' says St Augustine, (when commenting on the fifty-first Psalm), 'and his sincere repentance are both propounded, in order that, at the fall of such great men, others may tremble and know what to avoid; and that, at their rising again, those who have fallen may know what to follow and imitate, though many will fall with David, who will not rise with David.'

Though this book bears the name of Samuel, that prophet was dead some time before the period when it commences; but the reason of its being so entitled, has been noticed in the preface to the former book. The most general and probable opinion is, that it was the joint production of the prophets Gad and Nathan; and that it corresponds to the books said to have been composed by them in 1 Chron. xxix. 29. But whoever was the writer, the divine authority of the book is not to be questioned, since that is spoken of as undoubted in every subsequent part of scripture. It contains several remarkable prophecies, especially one regarding the Messiah the son of David, and his divine sonship,—a passage which is expressly quoted in proof of that doctrine, by the apostle Paul. Compare ch. vii. 14, with Heb. i. 5. The Psalms abound in allusions to events here recorded; and indeed, there are perhaps more references, directly or indirectly, made to this book in other parts of the Bible, than to any other portion of the sacred narrative. The contents may be arranged under three principal heads, viz. I. David's triumphs, ch. i.—x; II. David's troubles, ch. xi.—xix; III. David's restoration to his throne, and subsequent transactions, ch. xx.—xxiv. According to the common chronology, the events here detailed occupied the space of about forty years, viz. from the year A. M. 2949 to 2989. Hales reduces it to thirty-eight years, or (according to his system of computation), from the year B. C. 1070 to 1032.

CHAPTER I.

The Amalekite, who brought tidings of the Israelites' defeat, and accused himself of Saul's death, is slain, 1—10. David and his men mourn thereat, 11—16. David's lamentation over Saul and Jonathan, 17—27.

NOW it came to pass after the death of Saul, [a]when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag;[b]

2 It came even to pass on [c]the third day, that, behold, [d]a man came out of the camp from Saul, with [e]his clothes rent, and [f]earth upon his head; and so it was, when he came to David, that he[g] fell to the earth, and did obeisance.

3 And David said unto him, [h]From whence comest thou? And he said unto him, Out of the camp of Israel [i]am I escaped.

4 And David said unto him, How[1] went the matter?[2] I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, That [k]the people are fled from the battle, and many of the people also are fallen and dead; and Saul and Jonathan his son are dead also.

5 And David said unto the young man that told him, [l]How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son be dead?

6 And the young man that told him said, As [m]I happened by chance upon mount[n] Gilboa, behold, [o]Saul leaned upon his spear; and, lo, the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him.

7 And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called unto me: and I answered, Here am I.[1]

8 And he said unto me, Who art thou? And I answered him, I am [p]an Amalekite.

9 He said unto me again, Stand, I pray thee, upon me, and slay me; for anguish[2] is come upon me, because my life is yet whole in me.[3]

10 So I stood upon him, and [q]slew him, because I was sure that he could not live after that he was fallen: and I took [r]the crown[4] that was upon his head, and the bracelet[5] that was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord.

11 ¶ Then David took hold on his clothes, and [s]rent them; and [t]likewise all the men that were with him.

12 And they [u]mourned and wept,

2 Infidels have made much of the alledged discrepancies between the account of Saul's death given here, and that in the foregoing chapter; but the story of this young man appears to have been very much a fabrication got up for the purpose of ingratiating himself with David, as the next probable successor to the crown. There is nothing but his bringing Saul's crown and bracelets, as any evidence of his death; and these (as he appears to have been a plunderer of the slain,) he may have easily stripped from the dead body. Delany remarks, that Saul who had forfeited his crown by his ill-judged clemency to the Amalekites, was doomed to have the insignia of royalty stripped from his person by one of those very people.

16 And David said unto him, [z]Thy blood be upon thy head: for [a]thy mouth hath testified against thee, saying, I have slain the LORD's anointed.

17 ¶ And David [b]lamented with this lamentation over Saul, and over Jonathan his son:

18 (Also he bade them [c]teach the children of Judah the use of the bow:[1] behold, it is written in [d]the book of Jasher:)[2]

19 The [e]beauty[3] of Israel is slain upon thy high places: [f]how are the mighty fallen!

20 [g]Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; [h]lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the [i]daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

21 Ye [k]mountains of Gilboa, [l]let there be no dew, neither let there be rain upon you, nor fields [m]of offerings:[4] for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been [n]anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, [o]the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty.

23 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant[5] in their lives, and in their death [p]they were not divided: they were [q]swifter than eagles, they were [r]stronger than lions.

24 Ye [s]daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet,[6] with other delights; who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.

25 [t]How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, [u]thou wast slain in thine high places.

26 I am distressed[1] for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: [v]thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of [2]women.

27 How are the mighty fallen, and the [w]weapons of war perished!

CHAPTER II.

David, by God's direction, with his company goeth up to Hebron, where he is made king over Judah, 1—4. He commendeth the men of Jabesh-Gilead for their kindness to Saul, 5—7. Abner maketh Ishbosheth king of Israel, 8—11. A mortal skirmish between twelve of Abner's and twelve of Joab's men, 12—17. Asahel is slain, 18—24. At Abner's motion Joab soundeth a retreat, 25—31. Asahel's burial, 32.

AND it came to pass after this, that David [a]enquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah? And the LORD said unto him, Go up. And David said, Whither shall I go up? And he said, Unto [b]Hebron.

2 So David went up thither, and [c]his two wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail, Nabal's wife, the Carmelite.

3 And [d]his men that were with him did David bring up, every man with his household: and they dwelt in [e]the cities of Hebron.[3]

4 And [f]the men of Judah came, and there they [g]anointed David king over the house of Judah.[4] And they told David, saying, That [h]the men of Jabesh-gilead were they that buried Saul.

5 ¶ And David sent messengers unto the men of Jabesh-gilead,[5] and said unto them, [i]Blessed be ye of the LORD, that ye have shewed this kindness unto your lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him.

6 And now [k]the LORD shew kindness and truth unto you: and [l]I also will requite you this kindness, because ye have done this thing.

7 Therefore now [m]let your hands be strengthened, and be ye [6]valiant: for your master Saul is dead, and also the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

8 ¶ But [n]Abner the son of Ner, captain of Saul's host,[7] took [o]Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and brought him over to [p]Mahanaim;

9 And he made him king over [q]Gilead, and over the [r]Ashurites, and over Jez-

1 Lowth and others think that 'Kasheth,' or 'the Bow,' was the title of the following elegy, and that it was so called, in the oriental style, either because Saul's death was occasioned by that weapon, or because the bow of Jonathan is celebrated at ver. 22. Others again think that the word kasheth here denotes 'metre,' or a poetical measure. But if the late victory of the Philistines had been chiefly gained by the bow (as is hinted in 1 Sa. 31. 3;) and if it was not as yet a regular military weapon of the Israelites, (and we read of no 'body of archers' till the time of David,) then our own translation presents a very good sense. David's residence among the Philistines had taught him thoroughly both the use and value of the bow as a weapon of war, and the Psalms are full of allusions to it.

reel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all Israel.

10 Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years:[1] but the house of Judah followed David.

11 (And [s]the time[2] that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.)

12 ¶ And Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to [t]Gibeon.

13 And [u]Joab the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out, and met together[3] by the [v]pool of Gibeon: and they sat down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool.

14 And Abner said to Joab, Let the young men now arise and [w]play[4] before us. And Joab said, Let them arise.

15 Then there arose, and went over by number, twelve of Benjamin, which pertained to Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David.

16 And they caught every one his fellow by the head,[5] and thrust his sword in his fellow's side; so they fell down together: wherefore that place was called Helkath-hazzurim,[6] which is in Gibeon.

17 And there was a very sore battle that day: and Abner was beaten, and the men of Israel, before the servants of David.

18 ¶ And there were [z]three sons of Zeruiah there, Joab, and Abishai, and Asahel: and Asahel [y]was as light of foot[7] as a wild roe.[8]

19 And Asahel pursued after Abner; and in going he [z]turned not to the right hand nor to the left from following[9] Abner.

20 Then Abner looked behind him, and said, Art thou Asahel? And he answered, I am.

21 And Abner said to him, Turn thee aside to thy right hand or to thy left, and lay thee hold on one of the young men, and take thee his armour.[10] But Asahel would not turn aside from following of him.

22 And Abner said again to Asahel, Turn thee aside from following me: wherefore[a] should I smite thee to the ground? [b]how then should I hold up my face to Joab thy brother?

23 Howbeit he refused to turn aside: wherefore Abner, with the hinder end of the spear,[1] smote him under [c]the fifth rib,[2] that the spear came out behind him; and he fell down there, and died in the same place: and it came to pass, that as many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died [d]stood still.[3]

24 Joab also and Abishai pursued after Abner: and the sun went down when they were come to the hill of Ammah, that lieth before Giah, by the way of the wilderness of Gibeon.

25 ¶ And the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together after Abner, and became one troop, and stood on the top of an hill.

26 Then Abner called to Joab, and said, [e]Shall the [f]sword devour for ever? knowest thou not that it will be bitterness in the latter end? [g]how long shall it be then ere thou bid the people return from following their [4]brethren?

27 And Joab said, As [h]God liveth, [i]unless thou hadst spoken, surely then in the morning[5] the people had [6]gone up every one from following his[7] brother.

28 So Joab blew a trumpet, and all the people stood still, and pursued after Israel no more, neither fought they any more.

29 And Abner and his men walked all that night through the plain, and passed over Jordan, and went through all [k]Bithron,[8] and they came to Mahanaim.[9]

30 ¶ And Joab returned from following Abner: and when he had gathered all the people together, there lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asahel.

31 But the servants of David had smitten of Benjamin, and of Abner's men, so that [l]three hundred and threescore men died.[10]

32 ¶ And they took up Asahel, and [m]buried him in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Beth-lehem: and Joab and his men [n]went all night, and they came to Hebron at break of day.

1 That Ish-bosheth reigned longer than two years, appears evident from ch. 3. 1; he reigned, indeed, as long as did David in Hebron, which was seven years and six months. Houbigant proposes to read here, 'six years' instead of two, but the latter number is found in every MS. yet collated, as well as in the ancient versions. But the meaning probably is, that Ish-bosheth reigned two years before there was any rupture between his men and David's, like that which the historian proceeds to describe.

4 The leaders, no doubt, met with hostile intent, but the men on each side felt they were countrymen, and were reluctant to fight. The two generals, therefore, thought of a device which has often been employed in the East and elsewhere, to excite them to battle, when relationship or other causes made them unwilling to engage. Twelve men were matched to fight against each other, and so well matched, that they all fell by each others' hand, which exasperated the opposing forces into a general action.

5 Doubtless 'by the hair of the head, or the beard.' Plutarch in his Apothegms relates, that all things being ready for a battle, Alexander's generals asked him whether he had any further commands, 'Nothing,' said he, 'unless that the Macedonians shave their beards.' When Parmenio expressed surprise at this order; 'Dost thou not know,' said he, 'that in fight there is no better hold than the beard?'

CHAPTER III.

During the war David still waxeth stronger, 1. Six sons were born to him in Hebron. 2—5. Abner, displeased with Ish-bosheth, 6—11, revolteth to David, 12. David requireth a condition to bring him his wife Michal, 13—16. Abner, having communed with the Israelites, is feasted by David, and dismissed, 17—21. Joab, returning from battle, is displeased with the king, and killeth Abner, 22—27. David curseth Joab, 28—30; and mourneth for Abner, 31—39.

NOW there was [a]long war [b]between the house of Saul and the house of David: but [c]David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker.

2 ¶ And unto David were [d]sons born in Hebron: and his first-born was Amnon, [e]of [f]Ahinoam the Jezreelitess;

3 And his second, [g]Chileab, [h]of Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, [i]Absalom, the son of Maacah, the daughter of [k]Talmai, king of [l]Geshur;[1]

4 And the fourth, [m]Adonijah, the son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah, the son of Abital;

5 And the sixth, Ithream, by Eglah, David's wife. These were born to David in Hebron.[2]

6 ¶ And it came to pass, while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, that [n]Abner made himself strong for the house of Saul.

7 And Saul had a concubine,[3] whose name was [o]Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah: and Ish-bosheth said to Abner, Wherefore hast thou [p]gone in unto my father's concubine?

8 Then was Abner [q]very wroth for the words of Ish-bosheth, and said, Am I[r] a dog's head,[4] which against Judah do[s] shew kindness this day unto the house of Saul thy father, to his brethren, and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David, that thou chargest me to-day with a fault concerning this woman?

9 [t]So do God to Abner, and more also, except, [u]as the LORD hath sworn to David,[5] even so I do to him;

10 To translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and to set up the throne of David over Israel, and over Judah, [v]from Dan even to Beer-sheba.[6]

11 And he could not answer Abner a word again; [w]because he feared him.

12 ¶ And Abner sent messengers to David on his behalf, saying, [x]Whose is the land?[1] saying also, [y]Make thy league with me, and, behold, [z]my hand shall be with thee, to bring about all Israel unto thee.

13 ¶ And he said, Well; I will make a league with thee: but one thing I require of thee, that is,[2] [a]Thou shalt not see my face, except thou first bring [b]Michal, Saul's daughter,[3] when thou comest to see my face.

14 And David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth, Saul's son,[4] saying, Deliver me my wife Michal, which I espoused to me for a hundred foreskins of the Philistines.

15 And Ish-bosheth sent, and took her from her husband, even from [c]Phaltiel the son of Laish.

16 And her husband went with her along weeping[5] behind her to [d]Bahurim.[6] Then said Abner unto him, Go, return. And he returned.[7]

17 ¶ And Abner had communication with the elders of Israel, saying, Ye sought for David in times[8] past to be king over you.[9]

18 Now then do it: [e]for the LORD hath spoken of David, saying, [f]By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel out of the hand of the Philistines, and out of the hand of all their enemies.[10]

19 And Abner also spake in the ears of [g]Benjamin:[11] and Abner went also to speak in the ears of David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel, and that seemed good to the whole house of Benjamin.

20 So Abner came to David to Hebron, and twenty men with him: and [h]David made Abner, and the men that were with him, a feast.

21 And Abner said unto David, I will arise and go, and [i]will gather all Israel unto my lord the king, that they may make a league with thee, and that thou mayest [k]reign over all that thine heart desireth. And David sent Abner away; and he went in peace.

22 ¶ And, behold, the servants of David and Joab came from pursuing a troop,[12] and brought in a great spoil with them: but Abner was not with David in Hebron; for he had sent him away, and he was gone in peace.

2 As these enumerations are chiefly for genealogical uses, it seems likely that the first-born son only of these several wives is mentioned; for during the seven years David was at Hebron they had all probably more sons as well as daughters. Tamar (who is not named here) was sister of Absalom.

3 As Michal was not legally divorced, but violently separated from David, he had a clear right to demand her, and was justified in receiving her again. It is probable also, that her marriage with Phaltiel was a force upon her inclinations, & whatever affection he might have for her, it was highly criminal for him to take another man's wife. David required Michal probably both out of affection for her, and to strengthen his interest, by asserting his affinity to the house of Saul. Prudence & policy required that he should not leave a princess in the possession of a man who might, in her right, have made pretensions to the throne.

4 There was deep policy in David & Abner secretly concerting this plan of getting Michal back by Ish-bosheth's own order, before openly breaking with him. There was thus a formal acknowledgment, on his part, of David's lawful relationship to his family, and proximity to his throne, which would not so readily have been given had he been aware of Abner's intrigues.

23 When Joab and all the host that was with him were come, they told Joab, saying, Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace.

24 Then Joab came to the king, and said, [l]What hast thou done?[1] behold, Abner came unto thee; why is it that thou hast sent him away, and he is quite gone?

25 Thou knowest Abner the son of Ner, [m]that he came to deceive thee, and [n]to know thy going out, and thy coming in, and to know all that thou doest.

26 And when Joab was come out from David, [o]he sent messengers after Abner, which brought him again from the well of Sirah: but David knew it not.

27 And when Abner was returned to Hebron, Joab [p]took him aside in the gate, to speak with him quietly,[2] and smote him there [q]under the fifth rib, that he died, [r]for the blood of Asahel his brother.[3]

28 ¶ And afterward, when David heard it, he said, I and my kingdom are [s]guiltless before the LORD for ever from the blood[4] of Abner the son of Ner:

29 Let it [t]rest on the head of Joab, and on all his father's house; and [u]let there not fail[5] from the house of Joab one that hath [v]an issue, or that is a leper,[w] or that leaneth on a staff, or that falleth on the sword, or that lacketh bread.

30 So Joab and Abishai his brother slew[x] Abner, [y]because he had slain their brother Asahel at Gibeon in the battle.

31 ¶ And David said to Joab, and to all the people that were with him, Rend[z] your clothes, and gird you with sackcloth, and mourn before Abner. And king David himself followed the bier.[6]

32 And they buried Abner in Hebron; and the king [a]lifted up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept.

33 And the king lamented over Abner, and said, Died Abner [b]as a fool dieth?

1 Joab and his brother Abishai, David's nephews, had been very faithful, and highly useful to him in his distresses; and from gratitude and natural affection, he had inadvertently permitted them to assume almost as much ascendency over him as Abner had over the pusillanimous Ish-bosheth. He trusted and feared them too much, and allowed them all the importance they claimed, which had emboldened them (especially Joab,) to a high degree of presumption.

3 This was what Abner himself dreaded when he killed Asahel, ch. 2. 22. Among the Arabs the claim of revenge for blood extends even to persons killed in battle, when the slayer is known. Burckhardt thinks this may have somewhat influenced their mode of warfare, since it is much easier to recognize opponents in skirmishes than in the confusion of a general action. Joab, besides, may have had his fears that Abner's intentions to David were not friendly; or, in the event of their negotiation being concluded, he was afraid that Abner, after rendering such essential service to David, would be made the general of the army, and acquire great influence and authority in the state. He therefore treacherously assassinated the unsuspecting, and too confiding Abner; and such was the power of this cold-blooded murderer, that the king dared not to bring him to justice for his crime. But while Joab's conduct cannot be too severely reprobated, the justice of God is apparent in the punishment of Abner, who, from motives of ambition, pertinaciously opposed the declared will of God, and was induced by base resentment, to desert Ish-bosheth, & offer his services to David.

The hands of malefactors were secured with cords, and their feet with chains; but that had not been done to Abner, yet he suffered death like a criminal, though unconvicted of any crime. 1 The Greek version is, 'Now, behold, the doorkeeper of his house had been cleaning wheat, & being heavy had fallen asleep. So Rechab & Baanah the brothers, escaped notice and went into the house.' &c. The narrative of Josephus is the same. It is customary in the East to give grain to soldiers as part of their pay. And as it was the custom also to grind the corn, as needed, at the break of day, these two men naturally went the day before to the palace, where the king's stores appear to have been kept, to fetch wheat, in order to distribute it to the soldiers under them. They came in the heat of the day, when they knew the king would be resting on his bed; and as it was necessary to have the corn before the hour for grinding next morning, their coming at that time, though it might be unusual, excited no suspicion.

One of these was the suspension of the corpse upon a gallows or tree, and the person thus suspended was called 'the accursed of God.' 2 Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that [c] leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the LORD said to thee, [d] Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be [e] a captain over Israel.[1]

3 So [f] all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; and king David [g] made a league[2] with them in Hebron [h] before the LORD: and they [i] anointed David king over Israel.

4 ¶ David was [k] thirty years old when he began to reign; and he reigned [l] forty years.

5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah [m] seven years and six months; and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah.

6 ¶ And the king and his men [n] went to [o] Jerusalem unto [p] the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land; which spake unto David, saying, [q] Except thou take away the blind and the lame,[3] thou shalt not come in hither: thinking,[4] David cannot come in hither.

7 Nevertheless David took the strong hold of [r] Zion: [s] the same is the city of David.

8 And David said on that day, [t] Whosoever getteth up to the gutter,[5] and smiteth the Jebusites, and the lame and the blind, that are hated of David's soul, he shall be chief and captain.[6] Wherefore they said, The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.

9 So David dwelt in the fort, and called it, The city of David: and David built round about, from [u] Millo and inward.

10 And David went on,[7] and grew great; and [v] the LORD God of hosts was with him.

11 ¶ And [w] Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar-trees, and carpenters, and masons:[8] and [x] they built David an house.

12 And [y] David perceived that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for [z] his people Israel's sake.

13 ¶ And [a] David took him more concubines and wives out of Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron: and there were yet sons and daughters born to David.

14 And these be [b]the names of those that were born unto him in Jerusalem; Shamuah,[1] and Shobab, and [c]Nathan, and [d]Solomon,

15 Ibhar also, and [e]Elishua, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

16 And Elishamah, and [f]Eliada, and [g]Eliphalet.

17 ¶ But [h]when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David; and David heard of it, and went down to [i]the hold.[2]

18 The Philistines also came and spread themselves in [k]the valley of Rephaim.

19 And David [l]enquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up to the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into mine hand? And [m]the LORD said unto David, Go up; for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

20 And David came to [n]Baal-perazim, and David smote them there, and said, The LORD hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, as the breach of waters. Therefore he called the name of that place Baal-perazim.[3]

21 And there they left their images,[4] and [o]David and his men burned[5] them.

22 ¶ And the Philistines [p]came up yet again, and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

23 And when David [q]enquired of the LORD, he said, Thou shalt not go up; but fetch a compass behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry-trees.[6]

24 And let it be, when thou hearest the[s] sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry-trees, that then [t]thou shalt bestir thyself: for then shall the LORD go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines.[7]

25 And David did so, as the LORD had commanded him; and smote the Philistines from [u]Geba until thou come to [v]Gazer.

CHAPTER VI.

David fetcheth the ark from Kirjath-jearim on a new cart, 1—5. Uzzah is smitten at Perez-uzzah, 6—8. God blesseth Obed-edom for the ark, 9—11. David bringing the ark into Zion with sacrifices, danceth before it, for which Michal despiseth him, 12—16.

6 David was to approach the enemy from behind, in the direction of these trees, but not to attack them till he should hear a rustling in the tops. What species of tree is intended is very doubtful. The 'mulberry' is merely the translation of the Rabbies; the Gr. has, in the parallel passage in 1 Ch.14. 14, 15, 'pear trees,' and so the Lat. in both places. Celsius, Michaelis, and Gesenius, think the Heb. denotes the Baca, a shrub which grows round Mecca, and is not unlike that which yields the famous balm. But it is very uncertain whether it was found in Palestine; and the mention of 'rustling,' points to large trees rather than shrubs.

7 Though God promised to go before him, to smite the Philistines, yet, when he heard the sound of the going, he must bestir himself, and be ready to pursue the victory. God's grace must quicken our endeavours, and it is comforting and assuring to go out to the conflict when we know that God goes before us. The noise among the trees might be an alarm to the enemy, and throw them into confusion; for of those against whom God fights, it is said (Le. 26. 36,) 'the sound of a shaken leaf shall chase them.'

He must have heard of what had happened both to the Philistines & Bethshemites, (1 Sa. v. vi.) but he had allowed himself to become too familiar with this sacred symbol; he might presume, too, on the services which he and his family had rendered in taking care of it, when generally neglected; as if that could give him a sanctity superior to that of the priests. He placeth it in a tabernacle with sacrifices and feasting, 17—19. Michal reproving David for his religious joy, is childless to her death, 20—23.

AGAIN, David [a]gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand.

2 And David arose, and went with all the people that were with him from [b]Baale[1] of Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God, [2]whose name is called by the name of the LORD of hosts, that [c]dwelleth between the cherubims.

3 And they set[3] the ark of God upon [d]a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in Gibeah;[4] and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drave the new cart.[5]

4 And they brought it out of [e]the house of Abinadab which was at Gibeah, accompanying[6] the ark of God; and Ahio went before the ark.[7]

5 And [f]David, and all the house of Israel, played before the LORD on all manner of instruments[8] made of firwood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals.

6 ¶ And when they came to [g]Nachon's thrashing-floor, Uzzah [h]put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen shook[9] it.

7 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; and [i]God smote him there for his error;[10] and there he died by the ark of God.[11]

8 And David was [k]displeased, because the LORD had made[12] a breach upon Uzzah: and he called the name of the place Perez-uzzah[13] to this day.

9 And David was [l]afraid of the LORD that day, and said, [m]How shall the ark of the LORD come to me?

10 So David would not remove the ark of the LORD unto him into the city of David; but David carried it aside into the house of [n]Obed-edom the [o]Gittite.

11 And the ark of the LORD continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months: and [p]the LORD blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.

12 ¶ And it was told king David, saying, The LORD hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that per- taineth unto him, because of the ark of God. [q]So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness.

13 And it was so, that, [r]when they that bare the ark of the LORD had gone six paces,[1] he sacrificed [s]oxen and fatlings.

14 And David [t]danced[2] before the LORD [u]with all his might; and David was [v]girded with a linen ephod.

15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with[w] shouting, and with [x]the sound of the trumpet.

16 And as the ark of the LORD came into the city of David, [y]Michal, Saul's daughter, looked through a window, and saw king David leaping and dancing before the LORD; and she despised[z] him in her heart.

17 ¶ And [a]they brought in the ark of the LORD, and set it in his place, in the midst of the tabernacle that David had pitched[3] for it: and David [b]offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD.

18 And as soon [c]as David had made an end of offering burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, [d]he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts.

19 And [e]he dealt among all the people, even among the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to every one a cake of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine.[4] [f]So all the people departed every one to his house.

20 ¶ Then David returned to [g]bless his household.[5] And [h]Michal, the daughter of Saul, came out to meet David, and said, How [i]glorious was the king of Israel to-day, who [k]uncovered himself[6] to-day in the eyes of the handmaids of his servants, as one of the [l]vain fellows shamelessly[7] uncovereth himself!

21 And David said unto Michal, It was [m]before the LORD, which [n]chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of the LORD, over Israel: therefore will I [o]play before the LORD.

22 And I will yet be [p]more vile

3 And Nathan said to the king, [g]Go, do [h]all that is in thine heart; [i]for the LORD is with thee.

4 ¶ And it came to pass [k]that night, that the word of the LORD came unto Nathan, saying,

5 Go and tell my[4] servant David, Thus saith the LORD, [l]Shalt thou build me an house for me to dwell in?[5]

6 Whereas [m]I have not dwelt in any house since the time that I brought up the children of Israel out of Egypt, even to this day, but have [n]walked in a [o]tent and in a tabernacle.

7 In all the places wherein I have walked with all the children of Israel spake I a word with any of the [p6]tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to [q]feed my people Israel, saying, Why build ye not me an house of cedar?

8 Now therefore so shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, [r]I took thee from the sheep-cote, from following[7] the sheep, to be [s]ruler over my people, over Israel.

9 And [t]I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have [u]cut off all thine enemies out[8] of thy sight, and have made thee [v]a great name, [w]like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth.

10 Moreover, I will appoint[9] a place for my people Israel, and will [x]plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; [y]neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, [z]as before-time,

11 And as [a]since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and [b]have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies. Also the LORD telleth thee, that [c]he will make thee an house.

12 ¶ And [d]when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt [e]sleep with thy fathers, [f]I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom.

13 [g]He shall build an house for my name; and [h]I will stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever.

14 [i]I will be his father, and he shall be my son. [k]If he commit iniquity,[1] I[l] will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men:

15 But [m]my mercy shall not depart away from him, [n]as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee.

16 And [o]thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee:[2] thy throne shall be established for ever.

17 [p]According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

18 ¶ Then went king David in, and sat[q][3] before the LORD, and he said, Who[r] am I, O Lord GOD? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

19 And [s]this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord GOD; but [t]thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come: [u]and is this the manner[4] of man,[5] O Lord GOD?

20 And what can David say more unto thee? for thou, Lord GOD, [v]knowest thy servant.

21 For [w]thy word's sake, and according[x] to thine own heart, hast thou done all these great things, to make thy servant know them.

22 Wherefore [y]thou art great, O Lord GOD: for there is [z]none like thee, neither is there any god besides thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears.

23 And [a]what one nation in the earth is like thy people, even like Israel, whom God [b]went to redeem for a people to himself, and to [c]make him a name, and to do for you[1] [d]great things, and terrible, for thy land, before [e]thy people, which thou redeemedst to thee from Egypt, from the nations and [f]their gods?

24 For thou hast [g]confirmed to thyself thy people Israel to be a people unto thee for ever: and thou, LORD, [h]art become their God.

25 And now, O Lord GOD, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, [i]establish it for ever, and do as thou hast said.

26 And [k]let thy name be magnified for ever, saying, The LORD of hosts is the God over Israel: and let the house of thy servant David be established [l]before thee.

27 For thou, O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed[2] to thy servant, saying, [m]I will build thee an house; therefore hath thy servant [n]found in his heart to pray this prayer unto thee.

28 And now, O Lord GOD, thou art that God, and [o]thy words be true, and thou hast promised this goodness unto thy servant:

29 Therefore now let[3] it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue for ever before thee: for thou, O Lord GOD, hast spoken it: and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed [p]for ever.[4]

David subdueth the Philistines, and maketh the Moabites tributory, 1, 2. He smiteth Hadadezer and the Syrians, 3—8. Toi sendeth his son with presents to bless him, 9, 10. The presents and the spoil David dedicateth to God, 11—13. He putteth garrisons in Edom, 14, 15. A list of his principal officers, 16—18.

AND [a]after this it came to pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them: and David took Methegammah[5] out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And [b]he smote Moab, and [c]measured them with a line, casting them down to the ground; even with two lines measured he to put to death, and with one full line to keep alive:[6] [d]and so the Moabites became David's servants, and [e]brought gifts.

4 The two leading petitions in this sublime and affecting prayer, are 1st. That the crown might remain in David's family, and that none of his children might ever forfeit it by misconduct. 2d. That his kingdom might have its chief perfection, and its lasting perpetuity in Him who was 'David's Son and David's Sire,' at once his root and his offspring, the Messiah now again promised.

6 We must not judge of the laws of war that prevailed in those ages and countries, by the usages of civilized warfare among Christian nations. David's act seems one of severity, and yet (comparing it with the conduct of his enemies round about,) it was one of lenity. He might have followed the invariable custom of putting all his captives to death; but causing those taken in battle (for it is to them only the verse applies) to lie down, he marked off a certain proportion to be spared. What that proportion was is not very evident from the Hebrew, but the best ancient versions make it to be one-half.

4 And David took from[1] him a thousand chariots, and seven hundred horsemen,[2] and twenty thousand footmen: and [i]David houghed[3] all the chariot-horses, but [k]reserved of them for an hundred chariots.

5 And [l]when the Syrians of Damascus [m]came to succour Hadadezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then David put [n]garrisons in Syria of Damascus; and the Syrians became servants to David, and brought gifts. And [o]the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the [p]shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 And from [q]Betah,[4] and from Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, king David took [r]exceeding much brass.

9 ¶ When [s]Toi king of [t]Hamath[5] heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadadezer,

10 Then Toi sent [u]Joram his son unto king David, to salute[6] him, and to[v] bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer, and smitten him: (for Hadadezer had[7] wars with Toi:) and Joram brought[8] with him vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and vessels of brass:

11 Which [w]also king David did dedicate unto the LORD, with the silver and gold that he had dedicated of all nations which he subdued;

12 Of [x]Syria, and of Moab, and of the children of Ammon, and of the Philistines, and of Amalek, and of the spoil of Hadadezer, son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

13 And David [y]gat him a name when he returned from smiting[9] of the Syrians[10] in [z]the valley of Salt, being[11] eighteen thousand men.

14 ¶ And he put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom put he garrisons: and [a]all they of Edom became David's servants. And [b]the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

15 ¶ And David reigned [c]over all Israel; and [d]David executed judgment and justice unto all his people.

AND David said, Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul, that I may shew him kindness for [a]Jonathan's sake?

2 And there was of the house of Saul [b]a servant, whose name was [c]Ziba: and when they had called him unto David, the king said unto him, Art thou Ziba? And he said, Thy servant is he.

3 And the king said, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may shew [d]the kindness of God[5] unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath [e]yet a son, which is lame on his feet.

4 And the king said unto him, Where is he? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he is in the house of [f]Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lodebar.

5 ¶ Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lodebar.[6]

6 Now when [g]Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, was come unto David, [h]he fell on his face, and did reverence. And David said, Mephibosheth! And he answered, Behold thy servant!

3 It is generally admitted that the Cherethites and Pelethites formed David's body guard, but various opinions are held concerning the origin of their names. The Chaldee calls them 'archers and slingers,' which they very probably were, but that describes merely the arms they used, & not the reason of their being so designated. It is quite consistent with that explanation, to regard the Cherethites as a portion of a Philistine tribe of that name, who had attached themselves to David during his exile, (Comp. 1 Sa. 30. 14-16; Eze. 25. 16; Zep. 2. 5,) & the Pelethites as the followers of Peleth, one of the 'mighty men, helpers of the war,' who went out to David at Ziklag, 1 Ch. 12. 3. The Philistines were famous as archers, and David desired to teach the Hebrews the use of the bow, 1 Sa.31.3; 2 Sa. 1. 18.

9 ¶ Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said unto him, [n]I have given unto thy master's son all that pertained to Saul, and to all his house.

10 Thou therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, shall till the land for him, and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have food to eat: but Mephibosheth thy master's son [o]shall eat bread alway at my table.[1] Now[p] Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.

11 Then said Ziba unto the king, According[q] to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so shall thy servant do. As for Mephibosheth, said the king, he shall eat at my table, as one of the king's sons.

12 And Mephibosheth had a young son,[r] whose name was Micah: and all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants[s] unto Mephibosheth.

13 So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem: for [t]he did eat continually at the king's table; and was lame on both his feet.

CHAPTER X.

David's messengers, sent to comfort Hanun the son of Nahash, are disgracefully entreated, 1—5. The Ammonites, strengthened by the Syrians, are overcome by Joab and Abishai, 6—14. Hadarezer sendeth a new army of Syrians under Shobach, which is defeated by David, 15—19.

AND it came to pass after this, that the [a]king of the children of Ammon died, and Hanun his son reigned in his stead.

2 Then said David, I will [b]shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, [c]as his father shewed kindness unto me. And David sent to comfort him by the hand of his servants for his father. And David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon.

3 And the princes of the children of Ammon said unto Hanun their lord, Thinkest[2] thou that David doth honour thy father, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? [d]hath not David rather sent his servants unto thee, to search the city, and to spy it out, and to overthrow it?

4 Wherefore Hanun took David's servants, [e]and shaved off the one half of their beards,[3] and [f]cut off their garments in the middle, even to their buttocks, and sent them away.

5 When they told it unto David, he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed: and the king said, Tarry at [g]Jericho[1] until your beards be grown, and then return.

6 ¶ And when the children of Ammon saw that they [h]stank[2] before David,[3] the children of Ammon sent and hired [i]the Syrians of Beth-rehob,[4] and the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thousand footmen, and of king [k]Maacah[5] a thousand men, and of Ish-tob[6] twelve thousand men.

7 And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and [l]all the host of the mighty men.

8 And the children of Ammon came out, and put the battle in array at the entering in of the gate: and the Syrians of Zoba, and of [m]Rehob, and Ish-tob, and Maacah, were by themselves in the field.[7]

9 When Joab saw that [n]the front of the battle was against him before and behind, he chose of all the choice men of Israel, and put them in array against the Syrians:

10 And the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abishai his brother, that he might put them in array against the children of Ammon.

11 And he said, [o]If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me; but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee.

12 Be [p]of good courage, and let us [q]play the men for our people, and for the cities of our God: and [r]the LORD do that which seemeth him good.[8]

13 And Joab drew nigh, and the people that were with him, unto the battle against the Syrians: and [s]they fled before him.

14 And when the children of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abishai, and entered into the city. So Joab returned from the children of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem.

15 ¶ And when the Syrians saw that they were smitten before Israel, they [t]gathered themselves together.

1 This eating at a king's table was of two kinds, the one public and ceremonious, the other private. Sir John Chardin understands these passages which speak of a right to eat at the royal table, as meaning only a right to a seat there when the repast was public and solemn. Thus in a MS. Note on 1 Kings 2.7, he tells us that it was to be understood of the majilis, (the term for an assembly of lords, and not of the daily and ordinary repast. Hence, tho' Mephibosheth was to eat at all public times at the king's table, yet he would require the produce of his own lands for food at other times. Sir John mentions a young Tartar prince as admitted by the king of Persia to his majilis; and along with his admission to these royal assemblies, a considerable pension was assigned for his maintenance.

The possessor considers it his greatest ornament, often swears by it; and in matters of great importance, pledges it, and nothing can be more secure than such a pledge, for the owner will redeem it at the hazard of his life. The beard was never cut off but in mourning, or as a sign of slavery. It is customary to shave the Ottoman princes, as a mark of their subjection to the reigning emperor. The beard is a mark of authority and liberty among the Mahomedans, as well as Turks; the Persians, who clip the beard, and shave above the jaw, are reputed heretics. They who serve in the seraglios have their beards shaven, as a sign of servitude, nor do they suffer it to grow till the sultan has set them at liberty. Among the Arabs, it is more infamous for one to appear with his beard cut off, than among us to be publicly whipped or branded, and many would prefer death to such a punishment.'-Greenfield.

16 And [u]Hadarezer sent, and brought out the Syrians that were beyond the river;[1] and they came to Helam: and Shobach,[2] the captain of the host of Hadarezer, went before them.

17 And when it was told David, [v]he gathered all Israel together, and passed over Jordan, and came to Helam:[3] and the Syrians set themselves in array against David, and fought with him.

18 And the Syrians [w]fled before Israel; and David slew the men of seven hundred chariots of the Syrians, and forty thousand [x]horsemen,[4] and smote [y]Shobach, the captain of their host, who died there.

19 And when all the kings that were servants[z] to Hadarezer saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and served them. So the Syrians [a]feared to help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAPTER XI.

While Joab besieged Rabbah, 1, David committeth adultery with Bath-sheba, 2—5. Uriah, sent for by David to cover the adultery, cometh to David, but refuseth to go down to his house, 6—13. He carrieth to Joab the letter of his death, 14—17. Joab sendeth the news thereof to David, 18—25. David taketh Bath-sheba to wife, 26, 27.

AND it came to pass, after[5] the year [a]was expired,[6] at the time when kings go forth to battle, that [b]David sent Joab, and his servants with him, and all Israel; and they destroyed the children of Ammon, and besieged Rabbah:[c] but David tarried still at Jerusalem.

2 ¶ And it came to pass in an evening-tide, that David [d]arose from off his bed,[7] and walked upon [e]the roof[8] of the king's house: and from the roof he[f] saw a woman washing herself; and the woman was [g]very beautiful to look upon.

3 And David [h]sent and enquired after the woman. And one said, Is not this Bath-sheba,[9] the daughter of Eliam,[10] the wife of [i]Uriah the Hittite?

4 And David [k]sent messengers, and took her:[11] and she came in unto him, and [l]he lay with her; (for she[12] was purified[m] from her uncleanness;) and she returned unto her house.

5 ¶ And the woman conceived, and sent and told David, and said, [n]I am with child.

7 And when Uriah was come unto him, David demanded of him [1]how Joab did, and how the people did, and how the war prospered.

8 And David said to Uriah, [p]Go down to thy house, and [q]wash thy feet.[2] And Uriah departed out of the king's house, and [r]there followed[3] him [s]a mess of meat from the king.

9 But [t]Uriah slept at the door of the king's house with all the servants of his lord, and went not down to his house.

10 And when they had told David, saying, Uriah went not down unto his house, David said unto Uriah, Camest thou not from thy journey? why then didst thou not go down unto thine house?

11 And Uriah said unto David, [u]The ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in tents; and [v]my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open fields: shall I then go into mine house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? 13 And when David had called him, he did eat and drink before him; and he [y]made him drunk: and at even he went out to lie on his bed with the servants of his lord,[5] but went not down to his house.

14 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning, that David [z]wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah.

David; and Uriah the Hittite died also.[1]

18 ¶ Then Joab sent and told David all the things concerning the war;

19 And charged the messenger, saying, When thou hast made an end of telling the matters of the war unto the king,

20 And if so be that the king's wrath[2] arise, and he say unto thee, Wherefore approached ye so nigh unto the city when ye did fight? knew ye not that they would shoot from the wall?

21 Who smote [e]Abimelech the son of [f]Jerub-besheth? did not a woman cast a piece of a mill-stone upon him from the wall, that he died in Thebez?[3] why went ye nigh the wall? Then say thou, [g]Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

22 ¶ So the messenger went, and came and shewed David all that Joab had sent him for.

23 And the messenger said unto David, Surely the men prevailed against us, and came out unto us into the field, and we were upon them even unto the entering of the gate.

24 And the shooters shot from off the wall upon thy servants; and some of the king's servants be dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

25 Then David said unto the messenger, Thus shalt thou say unto Joab, Let not this thing displease[4] thee; [h]for the sword devoureth one[5] as well as another:[6] [i]make thy battle more strong against the city, and overthrow it; and encourage thou him.

26 ¶ And when the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, [k]she mourned for her husband.

27 And when the mourning was past, David sent and [l]fetched her to his house, and she became his wife, and bare him a son. [m]But the thing that David had done displeased the LORD.[7]

Nathan's parable of the ewe-lamb causeth David to be his own judge, 1—6. David, reproved by Nathan, confesseth his sin, and is pardoned, 7—14. The new-born child being stricken of God, David mourneth and prayeth for him while living, 15—23. Solomon is born, and named Jedidiah, 24, 25. David taketh Rabbah, and tortureth the people thereof, 26—31.

AND [a]the LORD sent Nathan [b]unto David: and [c]he came unto him, and said unto him,[1] [d]There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor.

2 The rich man had [e]exceeding many flocks and herds;

3 But the poor man had nothing, save [f]one little ewe-lamb, which he had bought, and nourished up; and it grew up together with him, and with his children: it did eat of his own [2]meat, and drank of his own cup, and [g]lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter.

4 And there came [h]a traveller[3] unto the rich man; and he spared to take of his own flock, and of his own herd,[4] to dress for the way-faring man that was come unto him; but [i]took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him.

5 And [k]David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, [l]As the LORD liveth, the man that hath done this thing shall surely die:[5]

6 And he shall [m]restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and [n]because he had no pity.

7 ¶ And Nathan said to David, [o]Thou art the man.[6] Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, [p]I anointed thee king over Israel, and [q]I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul;

8 And I gave thee thy master's house,[7] and thy [r]master's wives into thy bosom, and [s]gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, [t]I would moreover have given unto thee such and such [8]things.

9 Wherefore hast thou [u]despised the commandment of the LORD, [v]to do evil in his sight? [w]thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon.

10 Now therefore [x]the sword shall never depart from thine house; [y]because thou hast despised me, and [z]hast taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy wife.

11 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, [a]I will raise up evil[9] against thee out of thine own house, and [b]I will take thy wives before thine eyes, and give them

A.M.2969. B.C.1035

1 'David would not kill Uriah with his own hands, nor order his servants to assassinate him, nor put him to death under colour of law; for his reputation must have been ruined by such means; nay, perhaps the direct injustice and murder would have disquieted his conscience, insensible as it was become. But he devised a more plausible method of getting rid of him, which seemed at the time less atrocious, tho' in reality it was unspeakably more complicated and heinous. The known valour, fidelity, and zeal for his country, of this gallant officer, suggested the method of murdering him! David had such confidence in this much injured man, that he did not hesitate to entrust him with the letter which decreed his death; and whatever else Uriah suspected, he did not betray his trust. Joab, and those "who retired from Uriah," were thus made accomplices in the murder; and the soldiers who were slain with Uriah, were no less murdered by David, than he.'—Scott.

2 Some suppose that by some rash attack on the enemy, Joab had suffered loss about this time; and that he contrived to get rid of the odium, by connecting the transaction with Uriah's death, which he knew would be so pleasing to the king. But the whole detail here seems rather to describe the stratagem Joab had laid for cutting Uriah off.

1 This exquisitely beautiful parable has extorted universal admiration. It does not indeed carry out the comparison to the full extent, for David had not only seized the pet-lamb, but killed its owner. But Nathan was perhaps interrupted by the king's expression of anger against the oppressor, or a more exact resemblance might have defeated the prophet's purpose.

The more a man spends on his guest, the greater is his reputation, and any who pursue an opposite course are despised.

unto thy neighbour,[1] and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun.

12 For thou didst it [c]secretly; but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun.

13 And [d]David said unto Nathan, I[e] have sinned against the LORD. And Nathan said unto David, [f]The LORD also hath put away thy sin; [g]thou shalt not die.[2]

14 Howbeit, because [h]by this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the LORD to blaspheme,[3] the[i] child also that is born unto thee shall surely die.

15 ¶ And Nathan departed unto his house: and the LORD [k]struck the child that Uriah's wife bare unto David, and it was very sick.

16 David therefore [l]besought God for the child; and David fasted,[4] and went in, and [m]lay all night upon the earth.[5]

17 And [n]the elders[6] of his house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the earth: but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them.

18 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that the child died. And the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead; for they said, Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spake unto him, and he would not hearken unto our voice; how will he then vex[7] himself, if we tell him that the child is dead?

19 But when David saw that his servants whispered, David perceived that the child was dead: therefore David said unto his servants, Is the child dead? And they said, He is dead.

20 Then David [o]arose from the earth, and washed, and [p]anointed himself, and changed his apparel, and came into [q]the house of the LORD, and worshipped:[8] then he came to his own house; and when he required, they set bread before him, and he did eat.

21 Then said his servants unto him, What[r] thing is this that thou hast done? thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive; but when the child was dead thou didst rise and eat bread.

22 And he said, While the child was yet alive, [s]I fasted and wept: for I said, Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, that the child may live?

23 But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? [t]I shall go to him, but [u]he shall not return to me.[1]

24 ¶ And David comforted Bath-sheba, his wife, and went in unto her, and lay with her: and [v]she bare a son, and he called his name Solomon: and the LORD loved him.

25 And he sent by the hand of [w]Nathan the prophet; and he called his name Jedidiah, because of the LORD.[2]

26 ¶ And [x]Joab fought against Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and took the royal city.

27 And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, I have fought against [y]Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters.[3]

28 Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it; lest I take the city, and it[4] be [z]called after my name.

29 And David gathered all the people together, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took it.

30 And he [a]took their king's crown from off his head, (the weight whereof was a talent[5] of gold with the precious stones,) and it was set on David's head: and he brought forth the spoil of the city in[6] great abundance.

31 And he brought forth the people that were therein, and [b]put them under saws,[7] and under harrows of iron, and under axes of iron, and made them pass through the brick-kiln: and thus did he unto all the cities of the children of Ammon. So David and all the people returned unto Jerusalem.

5 If this talent was only 7lbs. weight, (as Whiston says), David might have worn the crown for a little; but a talent, according to common computation, amounted to 125 lbs. Some therefore think, that the Hebrew word rendered weight should be taken for a talent's value, & then the worth of the crown with the jewels would be about £6000. The ancients often mention these large crowns, made more for ornament than use. Athenæus describes one that was twenty-four feet in circumference, & others that were so much as five feet deep. Besides the crown usually worn, it was customary for some kings to have these enormous ones either hung or supported over the throne. The state crown of Persia, from its excessive weight, was suspended by chains of gold, so contrived as to be at a little distance imperceptible. In other cases, crowns were supported by slaves.

fair sister, whose name was [c]Tamar; and Amnon the son of David [d]loved her.

2 And Amnon was so [e]vexed, that he fell sick for his sister Tamar; for she was a virgin: and Amnon[1] thought it hard[2] for him to do any thing to her.

3 But Amnon had [f]a friend, whose name was Jonadab, the son of [g]Shimeah, David's brother:[3] and Jonadab was a very [h]subtle man.

4 And he said unto him, [i]Why art thou, being the king's son, lean[4] from[5] day to day? wilt thou not tell me? And Amnon said unto him, [k]I love Tamar, [l]my brother Absalom's sister.

5 And Jonadab said unto him, [m]Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thyself sick; and when thy father cometh to see thee, say unto him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come and give me meat, and dress the meat in my sight, that I may see it, and eat it at her hand.

6 ¶ So Amnon lay down, and made himself sick;[6] and when the king was come to see him, Amnon said unto the king, I pray thee, let Tamar my sister come and [n]make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat at her hand.

7 Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and dress him meat.[7]

8 So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house; and he was laid down. And she took flour,[8] and kneaded it, and made cakes[9] in his sight, and did bake the cakes.

9 And she took a pan, and poured them out before him: but he refused to eat. [o]And Amnon said, Have out all men from me. And they went out every man from him.

10 And Amnon said unto Tamar, Bring the meat into the chamber,[10] that I may eat of thine hand. And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother.

11 And when she had brought them unto him to eat, he took hold of her, and said unto her, [p]Come lie with me, my sister.

12 And she answered him, Nay, my brother, do not force[11] me; for [12]no such thing ought to be done in Israel: do not thou this [q]folly.[1]

13 And I, whither shall I cause my shame to go? and as for thee, thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel. [r]Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the king; for he will not withhold me from thee.

14 Howbeit he would not hearken unto her voice; but, being stronger than she, [s]forced her, and lay with [2]her.

15 ¶ Then Amnon [t]hated her exceedingly;[3] so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love wherewith he had loved her: and Amnon said unto her, Arise, be gone.[4]

16 And she said unto him, There is no cause: this evil in sending me away is greater than the other that thou didst unto me. But he would not hearken unto her.

17 Then he called his servant that ministered unto him, and said, Put now this woman out from me, and bolt the door after her.

18 And she had [u]a garment of divers colours upon her; for with such robes were the king's daughters that were virgins apparelled. Then his servant brought her out, and bolted the door after her.

19 ¶ And Tamar [v]put ashes on her head, and rent her garment of divers colours that was on her, and [w]laid her hand on her head, and went on crying.

20 And Absalom her brother said unto her, Hath Amnon[5] thy brother been with thee? [x]but hold now thy peace, my sister: he is thy brother; regard[6] not this thing. So Tamar remained desolate[7] in her brother Absalom's house.[8]

21 ¶ But when king David heard of all these things, [y]he was very wroth.[9]

22 And Absalom [z]spake unto his brother Amnon [a]neither good nor bad: for Absalom [b]hated Amnon, because he had forced his sister Tamar.

23 ¶ And it came to pass after two full years, that Absalom had [c]sheepshearers in Baal-hazor, which is beside Ephraim: and Absalom [d]invited all the king's sons.

'They have a small place built with clay, between two and three feet high, having a hole at the bottom for the convenience of drawing out the ashes; something similar to that of a brick kiln. The oven is usually about fifteen inches wide at the top, and gradually grows wider to the bottom. It is heated with wood, and when sufficiently hot, and perfectly clear from smoke, having nothing but clear embers at bottom, which continue to reflect great heat, they prepare the dough in a large bowl, and mould the cakes to the desired size on a board or stone placed near the oven. After they have kneaded the cake to a proper consistence, they pat it a little, then toss it about with great dexterity in one hand, till it is as thin as they choose to make it. They then wet one side of it with water, at the same time wetting the hand and arm with which they put it into the oven.'

1 Folly is here 'wickedness,' and fools 'wicked men.' There is something exceedingly tender and affecting in her remonstrance, but Amnon was a mere brute, and it was all lost upon him. See how David began to be punished in his ungodly children! Adultery & murder had been his own sins, & these sins among his children form the beginning of his chastisement. He would feel it the more keenly, as no doubt his own example had encouraged them to such enormities.

2 The diabolical plot had been artfully laid. Amnon's real sickness gave plausibility to his pretended illness: persons, when indisposed, are capricious as to their diet; David's well known love to his children would make him visit Amnon, & indulge him in all his innocent wishes. As to the poor victim of his treachery, her compassionate attention to the pretended invalid, and all her answers & behaviour, are fitted to give us a very favourable opinion of her character, and to increase our detestation of the criminal.

and said, Behold now, thy servant hath sheep-shearers; [e]let the king, I beseech thee, and his servants, go with thy servant.

25 And the king said to Absalom, Nay, my son, let us not all now go, lest we be chargeable unto thee. And he [f]pressed him: howbeit he would not go, but [g]blessed[1] him.

26 Then said Absalom, if not, I pray thee, [h]let my brother Amnon[2] go with us. And the king said unto him, Why should he go with thee?

27 But Absalom pressed him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

28 ¶ Now Absalom had [i]commanded his servants, saying, Mark ye now when Amnon's [k]heart is merry with wine, and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon; then kill him, [l]fear not: have[3] not I commanded you? be courageous, and be valiant.[4]

29 And the [m]servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as Absalom had commanded:[5] then all the king's sons arose, and every man gat[6] him up upon his [n]mule,[7] and fled.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, while they were in the way, that tidings came to David, saying, Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left.

31 Then the king [o]arose, and tare his garments, and lay on the earth; and [p]all his servants stood by with their clothes rent.

32 And [q]Jonadab[8] the son of [r]Shimeah, David's brother, answered and said, Let not my lord suppose that they have slain all the young men the king's sons; for Amnon only is dead: for by the appointment[9] of Absalom this hath been determined,[10] from the day that he forced his sister Tamar.[11]

33 Now therefore let not my lord the king take the thing to his heart, to think that all the king's sons are dead: for Amnon only is dead.

34 But [t]Absalom fled. And the young man that kept the watch lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there came much people by the way of the hill-side behind him.

35 And Jonadab said unto the king, Behold, the king's sons come! as[1] thy servant said, so it is.

36 And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of speaking, that, behold, the king's sons came, and lifted up their voice and wept; and the king also and all his servants wept very sore.[2]

37 ¶ But Absalom fled, and went to [u]Talmai, the son of Ammihud,[3] king of Geshur: and David mourned for his son every day.

38 So Absalom fled, and went to [v]Geshur, and was there three years.

39 And [w]the soul of king David longed[4] to go forth unto Absalom: for he was [x]comforted concerning Amnon, seeing he was dead.

NOW [a]Joab the son of Zeruiah perceived that the king's heart was [b]toward Absalom.

2 And Joab sent [c]to Tekoah,[5] and fetched thence a wise woman, and said unto her, I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on now [d]mourning apparel, and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman that had a long time mourned for the dead;

3 And come to the king, and speak on this manner unto him. So Joab [e]put the words in her mouth.

4 ¶ And when the woman of Tekoah spake to the king, she [f]fell on her face to the ground, and did obeisance, and said, Help, O king![6]

5 And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, [g]I am indeed a widow woman, and mine husband is dead.[7]

6 And thy handmaid had two sons, [h]and they two strove together in the field, and there was none[8] to part them, but the one smote the other, and slew him.

7 And, behold, [i]the whole family is risen against thine handmaid, and they said, Deliver him that smote his brother, that we may kill him, for the life of his brother whom he slew;[9] and we will destroy the heir also: and [k]so they shall [l]quench my coal[10] which is left, and shall not leave to my husband neither name nor remainder upon[1] the earth.

8 And the king said unto the woman, Go to thine house, and [m]I will give charge concerning thee.

9 And the woman of Tekoah said unto the king, My lord, O king, [n]the iniquity be on me, and on my father's house; [o]and the king and his throne be guiltless.

10 And the king said, Whosoever saith ought unto thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more.

11 Then said she, I pray thee, [p]let the king remember[2] the LORD thy God, that thou[3] wouldest not suffer [q]the revengers of blood to destroy any more, lest they destroy my son. And he said, As [r]the LORD liveth, there shall [s]not one hair of thy son fall to the earth.

12 Then the woman said, [t]Let thine handmaid, I pray thee, [u]speak one word unto my lord the king. And he said, [v]Say on.

13 And the woman said, [w]Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing against the [x]people of God?[4] for the king doth speak this thing as one which is faulty, [y]in that the king doth not fetch home again his banished.

14 For [z]we must needs die, and are [a]as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again: neither[5] doth [b]God respect any person;[6] yet doth he [c]devise means, that his banished be not expelled from him.

15 Now therefore[7] that I am come to speak of this thing unto my lord the king, it is because the people have made me afraid: and thy handmaid said, I will now speak unto the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his handmaid.

16 For the king will hear, to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of the man that would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of God.

17 Then thine handmaid said, The word of my lord the king shall now be comfortable:[8] for [d]as an angel of God,[9] so is my lord the king, to [e]discern[10] good and bad; therefore the LORD thy God will be with thee.

18 Then the king answered and said unto the woman, [f]Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I shall ask thee. And the woman said, Let my lord the king now speak.

19 And the king said, Is not the hand [g]of Joab with thee in all this? And the woman answered and said, [h]As thy soul liveth, my lord the king, none can [i]turn to the right hand or to the left from ought that my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he bade me, and [k]he put all these words in the mouth of thine handmaid:

20 To [l]fetch about this form of speech[1] hath thy servant Joab done this thing: and my lord is wise, [m]according to the wisdom of an angel of God, [n]to know all things that are in the earth.

21 ¶ And the king said unto Joab, Behold now, [o]I have done this thing: go therefore, bring the young man Absalom again.

22 And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed himself, and thanked[2] the king: and Joab said, To-day thy servant knoweth that [p]I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king, in that the king hath fulfilled the request of his[3] servant.

23 So Joab arose, and went to [q]Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem.

24 And the king said, Let him turn to his own house, and [r]let him not see my face. So Absalom returned to his own house, and saw not the king's face.

25 ¶ But[4] in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty: [s]from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.

26 And [t]when he polled his head, (for it was at every year's end[5] that he polled it; because the hair was heavy on him, therefore he polled it:) he weighed the hair of his head at [u]two hundred shekels[6] after the king's weight.

27 And unto Absalom there were [v]born three sons, and one daughter, whose name was [w]Tamar: she was a woman of a fair countenance.

But the addition of 'after the king's weight,' probably points to what was called the king's shekel, which is said to have been about the fourth of an ounce; and this reduces the amount to 3 lbs. 2 oz. If that be still thought excessive, it is to be borne in mind, that not only was much oil and ointment used in dressing the hair, but it was the fashion to powder it with gold dust. Some think the words refer to the value of the hair; but as there is no proof of wigs or false hair being as yet in use, it is difficult to see to what purpose it could be applied when sold. After all, there may be a mistake in the numerical letter.

32 And Absalom answered Joab, Behold, I sent unto thee, saying, Come hither, that I may send thee to the king, to say, Wherefore am I come from Geshur? [a]it had been good for me to have been there still: now therefore let me see the king's face; and [b]if there be any iniquity in me, let him kill me.

33 So Joab came to the king, and told him: and when he had called for Absalom, he came to the king, and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king: and the king kissed[c] Absalom.

CHAPTER XV.

Absalom, by fair speeches and courtesies, stealeth the hearts of the men of Israel, 1—6. Under pretence of a vow he obtaineth leave to go to Hebron, 7—9. He maketh there a dangerous conspiracy, 10—12. David upon the news fleeth from Jerusalem, 13—18. Ittai would not leave him, 19—23. Zadok and Abiathar are sent back with the ark, 24—29. David and his company go up mount Olivet weeping, 30. He prayeth God to defeat Ahithophel's counsel, 31. Hushai is sent back with instructions, 32—37.

AND it came to pass after this, that [a]Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him.

2 And Absalom [b]rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate:[4] and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy came[5] to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, Of what city art thou? And he said, Thy servant is of one of the tribes of Israel.

3 And Absalom said unto him, See, thy[c] matters are good and right; but there[6] is no man deputed of the king to hear thee.

4 Absalom said moreover, [d]Oh that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and [e]I would do him justice!

5 And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, and [f]took him, and [g]kissed him.[1]

6 And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment. So Absalom [h]stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after [2i]forty years, that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, [k]let me go and [l]pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the LORD, in Hebron.

8 For [m]thy servant vowed a vow while I abode at [n]Geshur in [3]Syria, saying, If the LORD shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then [o]I will serve the LORD.

9 And the king said unto him, Go in peace. So he arose, and went to Hebron.

10 ¶ But Absalom sent [p]spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom [q]reigneth in [r]Hebron.[4]

11 And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were [s]called; and they went in [t]their simplicity, and they knew not any thing.

12 And Absalom sent for [u]Ahithophel the Gilonite, [v]David's counsellor, from his city, even from [w]Giloh, [x]while he offered sacrifices: and the conspiracy was strong; for [y]the people increased continually with Absalom.

13 ¶ And there came a messenger to David, saying, [z]the hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.

14 And David said unto all his servants that were with him at Jerusalem, [a]Arise, and let us flee; for we shall not else escape from Absalom: make speed to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly, and bring[5] evil upon us, [b]and smite the city with the edge of the sword.

15 And the king's servants said unto the king, [c]Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall appoint.[6]

16 And the king went forth, and all his household after[7] him. And the 3 This vain & ambitious young man now began to prosecute those rebellious designs, which he had probablybeenhatching in his banishment at Geshur. The first step was to obtain a full reconciliation with David, and the manner in which he procured that through Joab, shows at once the depth of his policy, and the violence of his temper. He then began to assume much state in public which would enhance his condescension and affability to the people. Ch. 15. 5, 6.

4 The gate of the palace, where, or in the apartment over it (ch. 18. 33.) the king was expected to administer judgment; and as the public business in eastern courts is transacted very early in the morning, Absalom repaired thither betimes, that he might ingratiate himself with all who attended this morning levee. As they were from every part of the country, they would carry home the favourable impressions they had received of his attentions. It would seem that from old age, sickness, or some other cause, David had become remiss in giving judgment in person. Absalom would not be slow in taking advantage of all this. In the eyes of the people too, he had many personal attractions. His admired beauty, his rich and luxuriant hair, his stately presence, his splendid equipages, his fascinating manners, his condescending and assiduous attentions—all tended to win adherents to his cause. He, moreover, could boast of being maternally descended from a line of kings, which could not be said of David himself or of any other of his sons.

1 Never were the low arts of an unprincipled demagogue more graphically described than in this account of the conduct of Absalom,—in his pandering to the worst passions of the people, paying them assiduous court, basely flattering their vanity, exciting in their minds discontentment with the constituted authorities, and the established order of things, and all on the score of the purest patriotism and philanthropy.

4 David being old, it might be thought Absalom would have been content to await his death, as he was (since Amnon and Chileab were removed,) the eldest surviving son. But he might already suspect that he was to be passed over by the appointment of Solomon; and, indeed the law of primogeniture had not yet been applied to the succession to the crown. Besides, in his present unnatural attempt he had but one rival, and that was his fondly attached father; whereas, had he waited for David's death he might have had several formidable competitors in his brothers.

king left [d]ten women, which were concubines, to keep the house.[1]

17 And the king [e]went forth, and all the people after him, and tarried in a place that was far off.[2]

18 And all his servants passed on beside him; and all the [f]Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites,[g][3] six hundred men which came after him from Gath, passed on before the king.

19 ¶ Then said the king to [h]Ittai the Gittite, Wherefore goest thou also with us? return to thy place, and abide with the king:[4] for thou art a stranger, and also an exile.

20 Whereas thou camest but yesterday, should I this day make thee go[5] up and down with us? [i]seeing I go whither I may, return thou, and take back thy brethren: [k]mercy and truth be with thee.

21 And Ittai answered the king, and said, [l]As the LORD liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, [m]surely in what place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also will thy servant be.

22 And David said to Ittai, Go and pass over. And Ittai the Gittite passed over, and all his men, and all the little ones[6] that were with him.

23 And all the country wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over: the king also himself passed over the brook [n]Kidron,[7] and all the people passed over, toward the way of the wilderness.[o]

24 ¶ And lo [p]Zadok also, and all the Levites were with him, [q]bearing the ark of the covenant of God: and they set down the ark of God; and Abiathar went up,[8] until all the people had done passing out of the city.

25 And the king said unto Zadok, Carry[r] back the ark of God into the city: if I shall find favour in the eyes of the LORD, [s]he will bring me again, and shew me both it and his [t]habitation.

26 But if he thus say, I [u]have no delight in thee; behold, here am I, [v]let him do to me as seemeth good unto him.[9]

27 The king said also unto Zadok the priest, Art not thou [w]a seer?[10] [x]return into the city in peace, and your two sons with you, Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar.

28 See, [y]I will tarry in the plain of the wilderness, until there come word from you to certify me.

29 Zadok therefore and Abiathar carried the ark of God again to Jerusalem; and they tarried there.

30 ¶ And David went up by [z]the ascent of mount Olivet,[1] and wept[2] as he went up, and had [a]his head covered; and he went [b]barefoot: and all the people that was with him covered every man his head,[3] and they went up, [c]weeping as they went up.

31 ¶ And one told David, saying, [d]Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, [e]O LORD, I pray thee, [f]turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.[4]

32 ¶ And it came to pass, that when David was come to [g]the top of the mount, where [h]he worshipped God, behold, [i]Hushai the [k]Archite came to meet him with his [l]coat rent, and earth upon his head;

33 Unto whom David said, If thou passest on with me, [m]then thou shalt be a burden[5] unto me:

34 But if thou [n]return to the city, and say unto Absalom, I will be thy servant, O king; [o]as I have been thy father's servant hitherto, so will I now also be thy servant: [p]then mayest thou for me defeat the counsel of Ahithophel.

35 And hast thou not there with thee Zadok and Abiathar the priests? therefore it shall be, that what thing soever thou shalt hear out of the king's house, [q]thou shalt tell it to Zadok and Abiathar the priests.

36 Behold, they have there with them [r]their two sons, Ahimaaz, Zadok's son, and Jonathan, Abiathar's son; and by them ye shall send unto me every thing that ye can hear.

37 So Hushai, David's [s]friend, came into the city, and [t]Absalom came into Jerusalem.

AND when David was a [a]little past the top of the hill, behold, [b]Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth, met him, [c]with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them two hundred loaves[1] of bread, and an hundred bunches of raisins, and an hundred of [d]summer-fruits,[2] and [e]a bottle of wine.[3]

2 And the king said unto Ziba, What[f] meanest thou by these? And Ziba said, [g]The asses be for the king's household[4] to ride on; and the bread and summer-fruit [h]for the young men to eat; and the wine, [i]that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink.

3 And the king said, And [k]where is thy master's son? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he abideth at Jerusalem: for he said, [l]To-day shall the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father.

4 Then said the king to Ziba, [m]Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth.[5] And Ziba said, I[6] humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king.

5 ¶ And when king David came to Bahurim,[n] behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose[o] name was Shimei, the son of Gera: he[7] came forth, and [p]cursed still as he came.

6 And he cast stones at David, and at all the servants of king David: and all the people, and all the mighty men, were on his right hand and on his left.

7 And thus said Shimei, when he cursed, Come out, come out,[8] thou bloody[9] man, and thou [q]man of Belial:

8 The LORD hath [r]returned upon thee all [s]the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; and the LORD hath delivered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son: and, behold,[10] thou art taken in thy mischief,[11] because thou art a bloody man.

9 ¶ Then said [t]Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, unto the king, Why should this [u]dead dog [v]curse my lord the king? [w]let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head.

10 And the king said, [x]What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? so let him curse, because [y]the LORD hath said unto him, Curse David. [z]Who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?

11 And David said to Abishai, and to all his servants, [a]Behold, my son, which [b]came forth of my bowels, [c]seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite do it? Let him alone, and let him curse; [d]for the LORD hath bidden[1] him.

12 It may be that [e]the LORD will look on mine affliction,[2] and that the LORD will [f]requite me good for his cursing this day.

13 And as David and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, and [g]cursed as he went, and threw stones at him, and cast dust.[3]

14 And the king, and all the people that were with him, came weary, and refreshed themselves [h]there.

15 ¶ And [i]Absalom, and all the people, the men of Israel, came into Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him.

16 And it came to pass, when Hushai the Archite, David's friend, was come unto Absalom, that Hushai said unto Absalom, God save the king, God save the king.

17 And Absalom said to Hushai, Is this thy kindness to thy friend? why wentest thou not with thy friend?

18 And Hushai said unto Absalom, Nay; but [m]whom the LORD, and this people, and all the men of Israel, choose, his will I be, and with him will I abide.

19 And again, Whom should I serve? [n]Should I not serve in the presence of his son? As I have served in thy father's presence, so will I be in thy presence.

20 ¶ Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, [o]Give counsel among you what we shall do.

21 And Ahithophel said unto Absalom, [p]Go in [q]unto thy father's concubines, which he hath left to keep the house; and all Israel shall hear that thou art [r]abhorred of [s]thy father: then shall [u]the hands of all that are with thee be strong.[5]

22 So they spread Absalom a tent upon [v]the top of the house; and

To throw dust in the air, therefore, while a person was passing was a mark of great disrespect; to do so before a sovereign prince, an indecent outrage. But it is probable that Shimei meant more than disrespect and outrage to this afflicted king. Chardin informs us, that in the East those who demand justice against a criminal 'throw dust upon him,' signifying that he ought to be put in the grave; and hence the common imprecation among the Turks & Persians, 'Be covered with earth,' or, 'Earth be on thy head;' and among the Hindoos, (as related by Roberts,) 'Soon shalt thou be as that (dust,) thy mouth shall be full of it.' 5 He advised this shameless measure in order as a means of establishing Absalom in the kingdom, and to preclude the possibility of a reconciliation with David; for the wives of a conquered king were the property of the conqueror, and in possessing them, possessed a new & peculiar right to the kingdom. salom went in unto his father's concubines [w]in the sight of all Israel.

23 And the counsel of Ahithophel, which he counselled in those days, was [x]as if a man had enquired at the oracle[1] of God: so was [y]all the counsel of Ahithophel, [z]both with David and with Absalom.

CHAPTER XVII.

Ahithophel's counsel is overthrown by Hushai's, according to God's appointment, 1—14. Secret intelligence is sent unto David, 15—22. Ahithophel hangeth himself, 23, 24. Amasa is made captain, 25, 26. David at Mahanaim is furnished with provisions, 27—29.

MOREOVER, Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Let me now choose out twelve thousand men, and [a]I will arise and pursue after David [b]this night:

2 And I will come upon him while he is [c]weary and weak-handed, and will make him afraid: and all the people that are with him shall flee; and I[d] will smite the king only.

3 And [e]I will bring back all the people unto thee; the man whom thou seekest is as if all returned:[2] so all the people [f]shall be in peace.

4 And [g]the saying pleased[3] Absalom well,[4] and all the elders of Israel.

5 Then said Absalom, Call now Hushai[h] the Archite also, and let us hear likewise what he[5] saith.

6 And when Hushai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake unto him, saying, Ahithophel hath spoken after this manner: shall we do after his saying?[6] if not, speak thou.

7 And Hushai said unto Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath given[7] is [i]not good at this time.

8 For, said Hushai, thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty[k] men, and they be chafed[8] in their minds, [l]as a bear robbed of her whelps in the field:[9] and [m]thy father is a man of war, and will not lodge with the people.[10]

9 Behold, [n]he is hid now in some pit, or in some other place: and it will come to pass, when [o]some of them[11] be overthrown[12] at the first, that whosoever heareth it will say, There is a slaughter among the people that follow Absalom.

10 And he also that is valiant, whose heart[p] is as the heart of a lion, shall [q]utterly melt: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and they which be with him are valiant men.

11 Therefore I counsel, that [r]all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, [s]as the sand that is by the sea for [1]multitude, and that thou[2] go to battle [t]in thine own person.

12 So shall we come upon him [u]in some place where he shall be found, and [v]we will light upon him as the dew[3] falleth on the ground: and of him, and of all the men that are with him, there shall not be left so much as one.

13 Moreover, if he be gotten into a city, then shall all Israel bring ropes to that city, and we will draw it into the river,[4] until there be not [w]one small stone found there.

14 And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better[5] than the counsel of Ahithophel: for [x]the LORD had appointed[6] [y]to defeat the [z]good counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that the LORD might bring evil upon Absalom.

15 ¶ Then said Hushai unto [a]Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and thus have I counselled.

16 Now therefore send quickly, and tell David, saying, [b]Lodge not this night in the plains of the wilderness, [c]but speedily pass over; lest the king [d]be swallowed up, and all the people that are with him.

17 Now [e]Jonathan and Ahimaaz stayed by [f]En-rogel; (for they might not be seen to come into the city;) and a wench went and told them; and they went and told king David.

18 Nevertheless a lad saw them, and told Absalom: but they went both of them away quickly, and came to a man's house in [g]Bahurim, which had a well in his court; whither they went down.

19 And the woman took and [h]spread a covering over the well's mouth, and spread ground corn thereon; and the thing was not known.

2 The meaning seems to be: 'Only secure David and all is safe. He is the soul of the whole; destroy him and the rest will submit.' Yet the original is very obscure. 9 Or, 'as a bear of the forest.' The danger of pressing too close on a defeated army, has given rise to the maxim, 'Build a bridge of gold to a flying foe.' The Syrian bear (ursus Syriacus) of Ehrenberg, is here intended; it seems to have been in ancient times very common in Palestine, and to have been much dreaded for its ferocity. At present it is almost confined to Lebanon. The fierce rage the she-bear manifests when her cubs are killed or taken from her, is often noticed in voyages and travels.

1 This love of hyperbole (so well adapted to the taste of a vain-glorious youth like Absalom,) prevails throughout the East. In one of Wilkins' translations from the Sanscrit, there is mention of a king, 'whose innumerable army, when it moved, so filled the heavens with the dust of their feet, that the birds could not rest upon it.'

3 An apt and beautiful emblem, descriptive of the sudden appearance, and unexpected attack, of a hostile army. The reader of history will recall the manner in which David Leslie surprised Montrose at Philiphaugh, and Napoleon the Austrians at Aosta, after crossing the Great St Bernard. The dew in warm countries falls fast, sudden, and heavy. The Romans called their light-armed soldiers rorarii. dew-beaters.
4 The ditch by which fortresses are surrounded. In the same style of exaggeration Hushai boasts that the mere manual strength of Absalom's troops could raze the strongest town to the ground. It was an ancient mode of besieging cities, to fix iron hooks in the battlements, and pull them down piecemeal. Tavernier mentions a Javanese prince, who 'proposed to demolish a tower of the Dutch, by making his people and elephants pull at a number of chains and ropes of cocoa nut bark thrown round it.
w Mat. 24. 2.
5 To raise a large army which he would command in person, and to claim all the honour of success in suddenly crushing his opponents, was a plan much better suited to a man of Absalom's limited capacity, and ambitious, revengeful disposition, and to the temper of the unthinking multitude, than the good (i. e. sagacious and politic,) counsel of Ahithophel.

20 And when Absalom's servants came to the woman to the house, they said, Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathan? And the woman said unto them, They[i] be gone over the brook of water. And [k]when they had sought and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21 And it came to pass, after they were departed, that they came up out of the well, and went and told king David, and said unto David, [l]Arise, and pass quickly over the water: for thus[m] hath Ahithophel counselled against you.

22 Then David arose, and all the people that were with him, [n]and they passed over Jordan: by the morning light [o]there lacked not one of them that was not gone over Jordan.

23 ¶ And when Ahithophel [p]saw that his counsel was not followed,[1] he saddled his ass, and arose, and gat him home to his house, to [q]his city, and put[2] his household in order, [r]and hanged himself,[3] and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father.

24 Then David came to [s]Mahanaim:[4] and Absalom passed over Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him.

25 ¶ And Absalom made [t]Amasa captain of the host instead of Joab: which Amasa was a man's son whose name was [u]Ithra, an Israelite,[5] that went in to Abigail[6] the daughter of Nahash,[7] sister to Zeruiah, Joab's mother.[8]

26 So Israel and Absalom pitched in the [v]land of Gilead.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, when David was come to Mahanaim, that Shobi, the[w] son of Nahash of Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and [x]Machir, the son of Ammiel of Lo-debar, and [y]Barzillai the Gileadite of Rogelim,

29 And honey, and butter, and sheep, and [a]cheese of kine,[10] [b]for David, and for the people that were with him, to[c] eat: for they said, [d]The people is hungry, and weary, and thirsty, [e]in the wilderness.

3 While he was still wise enough to set his affairs in order, he was mad enough to hang himself. To this awful end he was driven by mortified pride at the rejection of his counsel, and the fear of falling into David's hands, for he perceived that Absalom's cause would be lost. 8 Rosenmueller, in his Bibl. Geography, Winer, in his Bibl. Dictionary, and other German writers, maintain that this was in the tribe of Ephraim, on this side Jordan, but English writers hold it to have been beyond Jordan, near Mahanaim. It is certain that Absalom and his army did cross the Jordan, and pitch in the land of Gilead, (ch. 17. 26,) and as there is no mention of that river having been re-crossed either by them or by David's men, previous to the battle, the inference is, that it was fought beyond Jordan. If we suppose that the Ephraimites, who lived on the Jordan, were in the habit of sending their cattle over the river for pasture, that circumstance might give rise to the name.

CHAPTER XVIII.

David viewing the armies in their march giveth them charge of Absalom, 1—5. The men of Israel are sore smitten in the wood of Ephraim, 6—8. Absalom, hanging in an oak, is slain by Joab, and cast into a pit, 9—17. Absalom's place, 18. Ahimaaz and Cushi bring tidings to David, 19—32. David mourneth for Absalom, 33.

AND David [a]numbered[1] the people that were with him, and set [b]captains of thousands and captains of hundreds over them.

2 And David sent forth [c]a third part of the people under [d]the hand of Joab, and a third part under the hand of Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of [e]Ittai the Gittite. And the king said unto the people, [f]I will surely go forth with you myself also.

3 But the people answered, [g]Thou shalt not go forth: for [h]if we flee away, they will not care[2] for us; neither if half of us die, will they care for us: but now[3] thou art worth[4] ten thousand of us: therefore now it is better that thou succour[5] us out of the city.

4 And the king said unto them, What seemeth you best I will do.[6] And the king stood [i]by the gate-side, and all the people came out [k]by hundreds, and by thousands.

5 And the king commanded Joab, and Abishai, and Ittai, saying, [l]Deal gently[7] for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom. And [m]all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom.

6 ¶ So the people went out into the field against Israel: and the battle was in the [n]wood of Ephraim;[8]

7 Where [o]the people of Israel were slain before the servants of David: and there was there [p]a great slaughter that day of [q]twenty thousand men.

8 For the battle was there scattered over the face of all the country: and [r]the wood devoured[9] more people[10] that day than the sword devoured.

9 ¶ And Absalom met the servants of David. And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and [s]his head caught hold of the oak,[11] and he was [t]taken up between the heaven and the earth; and the mule that was under him went away.

10 And a certain man saw it, and told Joab, and said, Behold, I saw Absalom hanged[1] in an oak.

11 And Joab said unto the man that told him, And, behold, thou sawest him; and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle.[2]

12 And the man said unto Joab, Though I should receive[3] a thousand shekels of silver in mine hand, yet would I not put forth mine hand against the king's son: for [u]in our hearing the king charged thee, and Abishai, and Ittai, saying, Beware[4] that none touch[5] the young man Absalom.

13 Otherwise I should have [v]wrought falsehood against mine own life:[6] [w]for there is no matter hid from the king; and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me.

14 Then said Joab, I may not tarry thus with[7] thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and [x]thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the midst[8] of the oak.

15 And ten young men that bare Joab's armour compassed about and smote Absalom, and slew him.

16 And Joab [y]blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing after Israel: for Joab held back the people.

17 And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the wood, and [z]laid a very great heap of stones[9] upon him: and all Israel fled every one to his tent.

18 ¶ Now Absalom in his life-time had taken and [a]reared up for himself a pillar, which is in [b]the king's dale:[10] for he said, [c]I have no son to keep my name in remembrance; and [d]he called the pillar after his own name: and it is called unto this day [e]Absalom's place.[11]

19 ¶ Then said [f]Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, Let me now run and bear the king tidings, how that the LORD hath avenged[12] him of his enemies.

20 And Joab said unto him, Thou shalt not bear[13] tidings this day, but thou shalt bear tidings another day; but this day thou shalt bear no tidings, because[g] the king's son is dead.

21 Then said Joab to Cushi, Go tell the king what thou hast seen. And Cushi bowed himself unto Joab, and ran.

22 Then said Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok, yet again to Joab, But howsoever,[1] let me, I pray thee, also run after Cushi.[2] And Joab said, Wherefore wilt thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings ready?[3]

23 But howsoever, said he, let me run. And he said unto him, Run. Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and over-ran Cushi.

24 And David sat [h]between the two gates:[4] and [i]the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone.

25 And the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, If he be alone, there is tidings in his mouth.[5] And he came apace, and drew near.

26 And the watchman saw another man running; and the watchman called unto the porter, and said, Behold another man running alone. And the king said, He also bringeth tidings.

27 And the watchman said, Methinketh[6] the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok. And the king said, [k]He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings.[7]

28 And Ahimaaz called, and said unto the king, All[8] is well. And [l]he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, [m]Blessed be the LORD thy God, which hath delivered[9] up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king.

29 And the king said, Is[10] the young man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab sent the king's servant, and me thy servant,[11] [n]I saw a great tumult, but I knew not what it was.[12]

30 And the king said unto him, Turn aside, and stand here.[13] And he turned aside, and stood still.

31 And, behold, Cushi came; and Cushi said, Tidings,[14] my lord the king; for [o]the LORD hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee.

2 He had continued with David since bringing tidings from Hushai, and was present in the battle, perhaps sounding one of the sacred trumpets. Having accompanied David for the express purpose of conveying to him information, he was anxious to be the first to communicate the tidings of the victory. But Joab was unwilling, out of regard both to David and Ahimaaz, to make so respectable a person the bearer of the intelligence of Absalom's death. With a delicacy we should scarcely have expected from his character, he felt that to carry these sad tidings would have been unsuitable to the young priest's pious and friendly design, and made them doubly unwelcome to the afflicted father. He therefore selects for the message a man whose name intimates that he was perhaps an Ethiopian and a slave.

32 And the king said unto Cushi, Is the young man Absalom safe? and Cushi answered, [p]The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man[1] is.

33 ¶ And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate,[2] and wept; and, as he went, thus he said, [q]O my son Absalom! my son, my son Absalom! [r]Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son![3]

CHAPTER XIX.

Joab causeth the king to cease his mourning, 1—8. The Israelites are earnest to bring the king back, 9, 10. David sendeth to the priests to incite the men of Judah, 11—15. Shimei is pardoned, 16—23. Mephibosheth excused, 24—31. Barzillai dismissed; Chimham his son is taken into the king's family, 32—40. The Israelites expostulate with Judah for bringing home the king without them, 41—43.

AND [a]it was told Joab, Behold, the king weepeth and mourneth for Absalom.

2 And the victory[4] that day was turned[b] into mourning unto all the people: for the people heard say that day how the king was grieved for his son.

3 And the people gat them by stealth that day [c]into the city, as people being ashamed [d]steal away when they flee in battle.

4 But the king [e]covered his face,[5] and the king cried with a loud voice, O[f] my son Absalom! O Absalom, my son, my son!

5 And Joab came into the house to the king, and said, Thou hast shamed[6] this day the faces of all thy servants, which this day have [g]saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines;

6 In[7] that thou lovest thine enemies, and hatest thy friends: for thou hast declared this day, that thou regardest[8] neither princes nor servants; for this day I perceive, that if Absalom had lived, and all we had died this day, then[h] it had pleased thee well.

7 Now therefore arise, go forth, and speak comfortably[9] unto thy servants: for I swear by the LORD, if thou go not forth, [i]there will not tarry one with thee this night; and that will be worse unto thee than [k]all the evil that befell thee from thy youth until now.

8 Then the king arose, and [l]sat in the gate.[1] And they told unto all the people, saying, Behold, the king doth sit in the gate. And all the people came before the king; [m]for Israel had fled, every man to his tent.

9 ¶ And all the people were at [n]2strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, [o]The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now [p]he is fled out of the land for Absalom.

10 And Absalom, [q]whom we anointed over us, [r]is dead in battle: now therefore why speak[3] ye not a word of bringing the king back?[4]

11 ¶ And king David [s]sent to Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, saying, [t]Speak unto the elders of Judah,[5] saying, [u]Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his house? seeing the speech of all Israel is come to the king, even to his house.

12 Ye are my brethren, ye are [v]my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king?

13 And say ye to [w]Amasa, Art thou not of my bone, and of my flesh?[6] [x]God do so to me, and more also, if thou be not captain of the host before me continually in the [y]room of Joab.

14 And he bowed[7] the heart of all the men of Judah, [z]even as the heart of one man; so that they sent this word unto the king, Return thou, and all thy servants.

15 So the king returned, and came to Jordan. And Judah came to [a]Gilgal, to go to meet the king, to conduct the king over Jordan.

16 ¶ And [b]Shimei, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, which was of Bahurim, [c]hasted, and came down with the men of Judah to meet king David.

17 And there were a thousand men of Benjamin with him, and [d]Ziba, the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and his twenty servants with him; and they went over Jordan before the king.

18 And there went over a ferry-boat to carry over the king's household, and to do what[8] he thought good. And Shimei the son of Gera [e]fell down

1 There was both discretion and delicacy in this announcement. Without mentioning Absalom's name, or the tragical manner of his death, Cushi with much address does not deny its having occurred, but dwells solely upon the fact of its being the death of an enemy and a rebel.

3 This pathetic lamentation has been generally & justly admired. The brief and abrupt exclamations are so true to nature, that they express the bitterest and most poignant grief, in a manner infinitely more touching than would the most laboured elegy. Deeply grieved as David must previously have been by the unnatural conduct of his son, he possesses his soul in patience, till he hears of his awful fate; but then the iron enters into his soul. Who but a pious father can fully enter into his feelings? Let it be the anxious endeavour of parents, so to act, that if their child does come to an unhappy end, they may not have to reproach themselves with having contributed to it by precept or example, by the neglect of his education, or the indulgence of his vices.

25 And it came to pass, when he was come to Jerusalem[4] to meet the king, that the king said unto him, Wherefore[v] wentest not thou with me, Mephibosheth?

26 And he answered, My lord, O king, my servant deceived me: for thy servant said, [w]I will saddle me an ass, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king; because [x]thy servant is lame.

27 And he hath [y]slandered[5] thy servant unto my lord the king; but my lord the king is [z]as an angel of God:[6] do therefore what is good in thine eyes.

28 For all of my father's house were[a] but dead[7] men before my lord the king; yet [b]didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thine own table: what right therefore have I yet [c]to cry any more unto the king?

29 And the king said unto him, [d]Why speakest thou any more of thy matters? I have said, [e]Thou and Ziba divide the land.[1]

30 And Mephibosheth said unto the king, [f]Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is come again in peace unto his own house.

31 ¶ And [g]Barzillai the Gileadite came down from Rogelim, and went over Jordan with the king, to conduct him over Jordan.

32 Now Barzillai was a very [2]aged man, even [h]fourscore years old: and he had [i]provided the king of sustenance while he lay at Mahanaim; [k]for he was a very great man.

33 And the king said unto Barzillai, [l]Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me in Jerusalem.

34 And Barzillai said unto the king, How long[3] have I to live, that I should go up with the king unto Jerusalem?

35 I am this day fourscore years old; and [m]can I discern between good and evil? can thy servant [n]taste what I eat or what I drink? [o]can I hear any more the voice of singing-men and singing-women?[4] wherefore then should thy servant be yet a [p]burden unto my lord the king?

36 Thy servant will go a little way over Jordan with the king: and why should the king recompense it me with such a reward?

37 Let thy servant, I pray thee, turn back again, that [q]I may die in mine own city, and be buried [r]by the grave of my father and of my mother: but behold thy servant [s]Chimham;[5] let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him what shall seem good unto thee.

38 And the king answered, Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do to him that which shall seem good unto thee: and whatsoever thou shalt require[6] of me, that will I do for thee.

39 And all the people went over Jordan. And when the king was come over, the king [t]kissed Barzillai, and [u]blessed him; and [v]he returned unto his own place.

40 Then the king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham[7] went on with him: and all [w]the people of Judah conducted

It is customary to have as much care of the feet as the hands; the barbers cut and adjust the nails with a proper instrument, because the people often go barefoot.
3 This may mean clipping it slightly to improve the appearance, or give it a favourite shape, combing, curling, anointing, and perfuming it. Morier says, that in Persia they almost universally dye the beard black by the successive use of henna and indigo.

He now complains of Ziba his servant, who should have been his friend, but had been his enemy. How much mischief is it in the power of a wicked servant to do to the best of masters, more especially in the way of defaming their characters.

The venerable and loyal Barzillai was fourscore years old; his eye was dim of seeing, and his ear dull of hearing; his relish for even royal dainties was gone. Let the aged learn from him to be dead to the delights of sense, & to listen to the voice which says, 'Arise and depart, for this is not your rest.'

4 As might be expected in so enthusiastic a lover of music, David had attached to his court a band of singers, whose performances were one of the regular entertainments there; and it appears from Barzillai's language, that this was one of those attractions of a residence at court, which were talked of in the remoter parts of the country. 41 ¶ And, behold, all the men of Israel came to the king, and said unto the king, [x]Why have our brethren the men of Judah [y]stolen[1] thee away, and have brought the king and his household, and all David's men with him, over Jordan?

42 And all the men of Judah answered the men of Israel, [z]Because the king is near of kin to us: wherefore then be ye angry for this matter? have we eaten at all of the king's cost? or hath he given us any gift?

43 And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, and said, [a]We have ten[b] parts in the king, and we have also more right in David than ye: why then did ye despise[2] us, that [c]our advice should not be first had in bringing back our king? By occasion of the quarrel, Sheba maketh a party in Israel, 1, 2. David's ten concubines are shut up in perpetual prison, 3. Amasa, made captain over Judah, is slain by Joab, 4—13. Joab pursueth Sheba unto Abel, 14, 15. A wise woman saveth the city by Sheba's head, 16—22. David's great officers, 23—26.

AND [a]there happened to be there [b]a man of Belial, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjamite, and [c]he blew a trumpet, and said, [d]We have no part in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: every man to his tents, O Israel.[3]

2 So [e]every man of Israel went up from after David, and followed Sheba the son of Bichri: but [f]the men of Judah clave unto their king, [g]from Jordan even to Jerusalem.

3 ¶ And David came to his house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten[h] women his concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in ward,[4] and fed them, but went not in unto them: so they were shut[5] up unto the day of their death, living[6] in widowhood.

4 ¶ Then said the king to [i]Amasa, Assemble[7] me the men of Judah within three days, and be thou here present.

5 So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah: but he [k]tarried longer than the set time which he had appointed him.

1 That is, 'they have in a secret and furtive manner brought about the king's restoration,withoutmaking us parties, or even consulting us.' To judge by the result, we may doubt the wisdom of the separate appeal which David had made,(ver.11,) to his own tribe of Judah; for his more intimate connection with it, both by birth & having reigned over it separately for seven years, required the most cautious policy to prevent the jealousies of the other tribes who might be tempted to regard him as merely the king of a party. The menof Judah, by now acting independently in the matter of his recall, put the others in a false and unfavourable position towards him: & in consequence of the haughty and provoking replies of the Judahites to the remonstrances addressed to them, they so strengthened the previous disinclinationsof the Israelites, as that only a slight impulse was required to induce them to abandon David, and this was supplied by Sheba.

18 Then she spake, saying, They[2] were wont to speak in old time, saying, They shall surely ask counsel at Abel; and so they ended the matter.[3]

THEN there was [a]a famine in the days of David three years, year after year; and David enquired[1] [b]of the LORD. And the LORD answered, [c]It is for [d]Saul, and for his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites.[2]

2 And the king called the Gibeonites, and said unto them: (now [e]the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, but of the remnant of the Amorites,[3] and the children of Israel had sworn unto them; and Saul sought to slay them [f]in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah:)

3 Wherefore David said unto the Gibeonites, What shall I do for you? and [g]wherewith shall I make the atonement, that ye may [h]bless the inheritance of the LORD?

4 And the Gibeonites said unto him, We[4] will have [i]no silver nor gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel. And he said, What ye shall say, that will I do for you.

3 The woman expressed herself briefly and obscurely, perhaps for fear of giving either party offence. She delicately alludes to the ancient law in De. 20. 10, which required, that before siege was laid even to a foreign city (much more to a mother-city or metropolis in Israel) peace should be offered if the inhabitants would submit. She hints that at the 'beginning' of the siege (see marg. read.) the people of Abel fully expected, & openly said, that before their city was attacked they would be asked whither they stood by Sheba or not, and that, if they were willing to give him up, the siege would be 'at an end.' Others think that Abel was so famed for the wisdom of its inhabitants, that 'to ask counsel at Abel' had become a proverb: but the word 'counsel' is not in the Heb. and the interpretation is otherwise strained.

6 Some suppose that the slaughter of the Gibeonites took place along with the massacre of the priests at Nob, seeing they were servants to the priests. But the charge here implies a much more systematic & deliberate attempt to extirpate not a portion only, but the whole tribe. Hales thinks it was done when Saul embarked in a crusade against diviners & wizards; or perhaps, seeing the offence he had committed in sparing the Amalekites, he thought he would atone for it by destroying the Gibeonites. To this he would be the more readily incited because they were unable to resist him, and he probably gave their lands to his own relatives.

harvest, in the first days, [r]in the beginning of barley-harvest.

10 ¶ And [s]Rizpah the daughter of Aiah [t]took sackcloth, and spread it for her upon the rock, [u]from the beginning of harvest [v]until water dropped upon them out of heaven, and suffered neither the[w] birds of the air to rest on them by day, nor the beasts of the field by night.

11 And it was [x]told David what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done.

12 ¶ And David went and took [y]the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan his son, from the men of Jabesh-gilead, which had stolen them from the street of [z]Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hanged them, when the Philtines had slain Saul [a]in Gilboa:

13 And he brought up from thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan his son; and they gathered the bones of them that were hanged.

14 And the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son [b]buried they in the country of Benjamin in [c]Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father:[1] and they performed all that the king commanded: and after that [d]God was entreated for the land.[2]

15 ¶ Moreover, [e]the Philistines had yet war again with Israel; and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines: [f]and David waxed faint.

16 And Ishbi-benob, which was [g]of the sons of the giant,[3] (the weight of whose spear[4] weighed three hundred shekels of brass in weight,) he, being girded with a new sword, [h]thought to have slain David.

17 But [i]Abishai the son of Zeruiah succoured[k] him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David sware unto him, saying, Thou[l] shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou [m]quench not the light[5] of Israel.

18 And it came to pass after this, that there was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob:[6] then [n]Sibbechai the Hushathite slew Saph,[7] which was of the sons of the giant.[8]

19 And there was again a battle in Gob with the Philistines, where [o]Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim,[1] a Bethlehemite, slew the brother of [p]Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

20 And there was [q]yet a battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers,[2] and on every foot six toes, four and twenty in number; and he also was born to the giant.[3]

21 And when he defied[4] Israel, [r]Jonathan the son of [s]Shimeah, the brother of David, slew him.

22 These [t]four were born to the giant[5] in Gath, and [u]fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

2 Clarke blames David for having left the choice of retribution to the Gibeonites, and says, he ought to have consulted God; but it is evident from the removal of the judgment, that the whole was 'of the Lord.' Besides, the law of blood-revenge entitled the Gibeonites to hold the relatives responsible, if the actual blood-shedders could not be reached. From the bloody house of Saul being mentioned (ver. 1.) it is probable these persons had taken part in the massacre. None of them pretended to the throne, and David had no interest in their death, of which he was only the instrument.

CHAPTER XXII.

A psalm of thanksgiving for God's mighty deliverances, and manifold blessings.

AND [a]David spake unto the Lord [b]the words of this song,[6] [c]in the day that the Lord had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and [d]out of the hand of Saul:

2 And he said, [e]The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer;

3 The God of my rock; [f]in him will I trust: he is my [g]shield, and [h]the horn of my salvation, [i]my high tower, and [k]my refuge, [l]my saviour; [m]thou savest me from violence.

4 I [n]will call on the Lord, who is [o]worthy to be praised: [p]so shall I be saved from mine enemies.

5 When the waves[7] of death compassed me, [q]the floods of ungodly[8] men made me afraid;

6 [r]The sorrows[9] of hell compassed me about; the [s]snares of death prevented[10] me.

7 In [t]my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried to my God; and [u]did hear my voice [v]out of his temple, and [w]my cry did enter into his ears.

8 Then [x]the earth shook and trembled; [y]the foundations of heaven moved and shook, because he was wroth.

9 There [z]went up a smoke out[11] of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured: [a]coals[12] were kindled by it.

10 He [b]bowed the heavens also, and came down; and [c]darkness was under his feet.

11 And he rode upon [d]a cherub, and did fly; and he was seen [e]upon the wings of the wind.

12 And he made darkness [f]pavilions round about him, dark[1] waters, and thick clouds of the skies.

13 Through the brightness before him were [g]coals of fire kindled.

14 The LORD [h]thundered from heaven, and the most High uttered his voice.

15 And he sent out [i]arrows, and scattered them; lightning, and discomfited them.

16 And [k]the channels of the sea appeared, the foundations of the world were discovered,[2] at the [l]rebuking of the LORD, at the blast of the breath of his nostrils.[3]

17 He [m]sent from above, he took me; [n]he drew me out of many[4] waters:

18 He [o]delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them that hated me: for they were too strong for me.

19 They [p]prevented[5] me in the day of my calamity; but [q]the LORD was my stay.

20 He [r]brought me forth also into a large place;[6] he delivered me, because he [s]delighted in me.

21 The LORD [t]rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the [u]cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.

22 For [v]I have kept [w]the ways of the LORD, and [x]have not wickedly departed from my God.

23 For [y]all his [z]judgments were before me; and as for his statutes, [a]I did not depart from them.

24 I was also [b]upright before[7] him, and have [c]kept myself from mine iniquity.[8]

25 Therefore the LORD hath [d]recompensed me according to my righteousness; according to my cleanness in[9] his eye-sight.

26 With [e]the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful, and with the upright man thou wilt show thyself upright.

27 With [f]the pure thou wilt show thyself pure; and with [g]the froward thou wilt show[10] thyself unsavoury.[11]

28 And [h]the afflicted people thou wilt save: [i]but thine eyes are upon the haughty, that thou mayest bring them down.

29 For thou art my lamp,[1] O LORD; and the LORD will [k]lighten my darkness.

30 For by thee I have run[2] through a troop: by my God have I leaped over a wall.

31 As for God, [l]his way is perfect; [m]the word of the LORD is tried:[3] he is [n]a buckler to all them that trust in him.

32 For [o]who is God, save the LORD? and who is [p]a rock, save our God?

33 God is my [q]strength and power; and he maketh[4] [r]my way [s]perfect.

34 He maketh[5] my feet [t]like hinds' feet;[6] and [u]setteth me upon my high places.

35 He [v]teacheth my hands to[7] war; so that [w]a bow of steel[8] is broken by mine arms.

36 Thou hast also given me [x]the shield of thy salvation; and thy [y]gentleness hath made[9] me great.

37 Thou hast [z]enlarged my steps under me; so that [a]my feet[10] did not slip.

38 I have [b]pursued mine enemies, and destroyed them; and turned not again until I had consumed them.

39 And I have [c]consumed them, and wounded them, that they could not arise; yea, they are fallen under my feet.

40 For thou hast [d]girded me with strength to battle: [e]them that rose up against me hast thou subdued[11] under me.

41 Thou hast also given me the [f]necks of mine enemies, that [g]I might destroy them that hate me.

42 They looked, but there was none to save; even [h]unto the LORD, but he answered them not.

43 Then did I beat them [i]as small as the dust of the earth, I did stamp them [k]as the mire of the street, and [l]did spread them abroad.

44 Thou also hast [m]delivered me from the strivings of my people, thou hast kept me to be [n]head of the heathen: [o]a people which I knew not shall serve me.

45 Strangers[12] shall submit[13] them-

49 And that bringeth me forth from mine enemies: [u]thou also hast lifted me up on high above them that rose up against me: thou hast delivered me from [v]the violent man.

CHAPTER XXIII.

David, in his last words, professeth his faith in God's promises to be beyond sense or experience, and the different state of the wicked, 1—7. A catalogue of David's mighty men, 8—39.

NOW these be [a]the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, and the man who was [b]raised up on high, [c]the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the [d]sweet psalmist of Israel, said,

2 The [e]Spirit of the LORD spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

3 The [f]God of Israel said, [g]the Rock of Israel spake to me, He[2] that ruleth over men [h]must be just, [i]ruling in the fear of God.

4 And he shall be [k]as the light of the[l] morning when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as [m]the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain.

5 Although [n]my house be not so with God, yet [o]he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, [p]and sure: for this is [q]all my salvation, and all my [r]desire, although he make it not to [s]grow.[3]

6 But [t]the sons of Belial shall be all of them as [u]thorns thrust away, because they cannot be taken with hands:

7 But the man that shall touch them must be fenced[4] with iron, and the staff of a spear; and [v]they shall be utterly burned with fire in the same place.

8 ¶ These be the names of the mighty men whom David had: The Tachmonite[1] that sat in the seat,[2] chief among the captains; the same was Adino the Eznite: he lift up his spear against eight hundred, whom he [3]slew at one time.

9 And after him was [w]Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three mighty men with David, when they [x]defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battle, and [y]the men of Israel were gone away:

10 He arose, and smote the Philistines, until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto the sword: and [z]the LORD wrought a great victory that day; and [a]the people returned after him only to spoil.

11 And after him was [b]Shammah the son of Agee the Hararite: and [c]the Philistines were gathered together into[4] a troop, where was a piece of ground full of lentiles; and the people fled from the Philistines.

12 But he stood in the midst of the ground, and defended it, and slew the Philistines: and [d]the LORD wrought a great victory.

13 And three[5] of the thirty chief went down, and came to David in the harvest-time unto [e]the cave of Adullam: and the troop of the Philistines pitched in [f]the valley of Rephaim.

14 And David was then in [g]an [6]hold, and the [h]garrison of the Philistines was then in Beth-lehem.

15 And David [i]longed, and said, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of [7]Beth-lehem, which is by the gate!

16 And [k]the three mighty men brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David: nevertheless he would not drink thereof, but [l]poured it out unto the LORD;

17 And he said, [m]Be it far from me, O LORD, that I should do this:[8] is not this [n]the blood of the men that went in [o]jeopardy of their lives? therefore he

3 Pye Smith's translation is, 'Ruling over man is a Righteous One, ruling in the fear of God; even as the light of the morning shall he arise; Jehovah the Sun, a morning without clouds for brightness, as after rain the herbage from the earth. Truly thus is my house with God, for an everlasting covenant he hath fixed with me, ordered in every thing and secured; for this is all my salvation and all my desire. But the wicked shall not grow, but shall be all of them,' &c. The internal characters of the passage appear evident proofs of its being a prophecy of the Messiah in his divine glory, his righteous reign, the punishment of his enemies, and his showering down blessings on the world.

8 David, upon recollection, being ashamed of his desire, poured the water out as a libation before the Lord. Thus he would show the tender regard he had to the lives of his soldiers, and how far he was from being prodigal of their blood, Ps. 72. 14. Thus he would cross his own foolish fancy and punish himself for entertaining and indulging in it, and show that he had sober thoughts to correct his rash ones, and knew how to deny himself even in that of which he was fond. Thus he would honour God and give glory to him; the water purchased at this rate, he thought too precious for his own drinking, and fit only to be poured out to God as a drink-offering. CHAPTER XXIV.

David, tempted by Satan, forceth Joab to number the people, 1—4 The captains, in nine months and twenty days, bring the muster of thirteen hundred thousand fighting men, 5—9. David, having three plagues propounded by God, repenteth, and chooseth the three days' pestilence, 10—14. After the death of threescore and ten thousand, David, by repentance, preventeth the destruction of Jerusalem, 15—17. David, by Gad's direction, purchaseth Araunah's thrashing-floor; where having sacrificed, the plague ceaseth, 18—25.

AND [a]again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he[2] [b]moved David against them to say, [c]Go, number Israel and Judah.

2 For the king said to [d]Joab the captain of the host, which was with him, Go[3] now through all the tribes of Israel, [e]from Dan even to Beer-sheba, and number ye the people, [f]that I may know the number of the people.

3 And Joab said unto the king, [g]Now the LORD thy God add unto the people, how many soever they be, an hundred-fold, and that the eyes of my lord the king may see it: but why doth my lord the king delight in this thing?

4 Notwithstanding [h]the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the captains of the host: and Joab and the captains of the host [i]went out from the presence of the king to number the people of Israel.

5 ¶ And they passed over Jordan, and pitched in [k]Aroer,[4] on the right side of the city that lieth in the midst of the river[5] of Gad, and towards [l]Jazer.

6 Then they came to [m]Gilead, and to the land[6] of Tahtim-hodshi; and they came to [n]Dan-jaan,[7] and about to [o]Zidon,

7 And came to the strong hold of [p]Tyre, and to all the cities of the Hivites, and of the Canaanites: and they went out to the south of Judah, even [q]to Beer-sheba.

2 Of the thirty-seven heroes mentioned, six were more distinguished than the rest; and of these six the first triumvirate was superior to the second. Some think it was a kind of order of military knighthood of different classes, and that, according to modern parlance, Jashobeam was the Grand-Master; or the reference may be to their rank & command in the army; for the frequent occurrence of the word Shalishim, i. e. 'third,' in the sense of 'captain,' intimates that the Hebrew army, like that of the Egyptians & Assyrians, was divided into three principal divisions, corresponding to the centre, right, and left wings of modern armies, and that the commander of each division was distinguished by that title.

It was the comparison of these texts that led Kennicott to engage in his great work of collating the Hebrew MSS. Perhaps the list here contains the names of the commanders who lived in the early part of David's reign; but it underwent various changes, which are noted in 1 Ch. xi.

1 'Were we but as much attached to the person & cause of the Captain of our salvation, and as much pleased to show our love and gratitude to him by doing his will and promoting his honour, as some soldiers have been to a beloved prince or commander, how self-denying and ready for suffering should we be, and how glad to spend and lay down our lives for his sake! Yet surely never ruler or captain was of so excellent a character as ours; his commands are all righteous & beneficial, his authority is an inexpressible blessing. The obligations that he has conferred on his soldiers and servants, the love he bears to them, and the honours that he has prepared for them, are beyond all computation or conception. The blessings which he freely bestows were dearly purchased by him, and for them "when rebels & enemies." He will expose them to no danger or loss but for their good; he will comfort them under every suffering, & finally present them and all their services as an oblation to the glory of God.'—Scott.

all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days.

9 And Joab gave up the sum of the number of the people unto the king: and there were in Israel [r]eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword; and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

10 ¶ And [s]David's heart smote him after that he had numbered the people. And David said unto the LORD, [t]I have sinned greatly in that I have done: and now, I beseech thee, O LORD, [u]take away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have done very [v]foolishly.

11 For when David was up in the morning, the word of the LORD came unto the prophet [w]Gad, David's [x]seer, saying, 12 Go and say unto David, Thus saith the LORD, [y]I offer thee three things; choose thee one of them, [z]that I may do it unto thee.

13 So Gad came to David, and told him, and said unto him, Shall [a]1seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land? or wilt thou [b]flee three months before thine enemies, while they pursue thee? or that there be [c]three days' pestilence in thy land? now advise, and see what answer I shall return to him that sent me.

14 And David said unto Gad, [d]I am in a great strait; let us fall now into the hand of the LORD, [e](for his mercies are great,)[2] and [f]let me not fall into the hand of man.

15 ¶ So [g]the LORD sent a pestilence upon Israel, from the morning even to the time appointed: and there died of the people, [h]from Dan even to Beersheba, [i]seventy thousand men.[3]

16 And when [k]the angel[4] stretched out his hand upon Jerusalem[5] to destroy it, the LORD [l]repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed the people, [m]It is enough; stay now thine hand. And the angel of the LORD was by the thrashing place of [n]Araunah [o]the Jebusite.

17 And David [p]spake unto the LORD when he saw the angel that smote the people, and said, [q]Lo, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly: but [r]these sheep, what have they done?[1] [s]let thine hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house.

18 ¶ And [t]Gad came that day to David, and said unto him, Go up, rear an altar unto the LORD in the thrashing-floor[2] of Araunah[3] the Jebusite.

19 And David, according to the saying of Gad, went up, [u]as the LORD commanded.

20 And Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming on toward him; and Araunah went out, and [v]bowed himself before the king with his face upon the ground.

21 And Araunah said, [w]Wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? and David said, [x]To buy the thrashing-floor of thee, to build an altar unto the LORD, that [y]the plague may be stayed from the people.

22 And Araunah said unto David, [z]Let my lord the king take and offer up what seemeth good unto him: behold, here be [a]oxen for burnt-sacrifice, and thrashing instruments and other instruments of the oxen for wood.

23 All these things did Araunah, as a king, give unto the king:[4] and Araunah said unto the king, [c]The LORD thy God accept thee.

24 And the king said unto Araunah, [d]Nay; but I will surely buy it of thee at a price: neither will I offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD my God of that which doth cost me [5]nothing. [e]So David bought the thrashing-floor and the oxen for fifty[6] shekels of silver.

25 And David [f]built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and peace-offerings. [g]So the LORD was entreated for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL.

The leading dates in this book are fixed by Hales thus: David's accession, B. C. 1070; his first offence, 1052; his second offence, 1032.

Behold here, at once the goodness and severity of God!—his severity in punishing David's sins, his goodness in leading him to repentance. While we admire his personal bravery, his military prowess, his tender and elevated strains as Israel's sweet Psalmist, and his wise and prosperous government as Israel's righteous king, let us chiefly mark, that we may carefully imitate, the depth of his contrition, the strength of his faith, the fervour of his love, the activity of his obedience. View his whole life before the occurrence of his "great transgression;" it is one continued course of piety and virtue. View his whole life from that fatal hour; it is one continued train of humiliation and grief; or, if he varies his conduct, it is only from lowly penance to lofty praise. Were David's latter days so clouded and embittered? Let us impressively teach us, how much God hates sin in his own people, and how, though he forgives their iniquities, he will "take vengeance on their inventions."

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE

KINGS,

COMMONLY CALLED THE THIRD BOOK OF THE KINGS.

In the oldest editions of the Hebrew Scriptures the two books of Kings form but one. Its Hebrew title was taken from the first words 'Vehammelech David,' i. e. 'Now king David;' though some of the early Christian fathers seem to have begun it more naturally with the reign of Solomon (ch. ii. 12); and in the Arabic version it is entitled 'The Book of Solomon.' In the Greek and Latin versions, these books are called respectively, the Third and Fourth Book of Kings or Reigns, the books of Samuel being the first and second.

These books continue the history of Judah and Israel, first as a united kingdom, under David and Solomon, and then as two independent states, down to the time of their successive subversion, the latter by the Assyrians, and the former by the Babylonians. They embrace, according to Dr Hales' chronology, a period of 469 years, or, if we reckon only to the destruction of Jerusalem, 444 years.

Much diversity of opinion has existed as to the author, or authors, of these books; but it is now generally admitted, that they were compiled and digested by Ezra or Jeremiah, from the records and other documents left by those prophets who had acted as the royal historiographers. Thus in 1 Kings xi. 41. there is reference to 'the Book of the Acts of Solomon,' which in 2 Chron. ix. 29. is described as consisting of three different compositions, viz. the 'Book (or words) of Nathan the prophet, the Prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and the Visions of Iddo the Seer.' This Iddo drew up, along with Shemaiah the prophet, a book 'concerning genealogies,' (or annals, as Dathe understands it) in which were found the acts of Rehoboam, 2 Chron. xii. 15. There is mention also of the book of Jehu the prophet, 2 Chron. xx. 34. part of which we find quoted in 1 Kings xvi. 1—4. Isaiah wrote the acts of Uzziah and Hezekiah; and both in his prophecy, and that of Jeremiah, we find entire chapters of history almost verbatim the same as what is recorded in the second book of Kings. The divine authority of these books has always been acknowledged in the Jewish and Christian churches, and they are frequently cited in the New Testament as part of the Old Testament Canon.

This first book of Kings embraces a period of 126 years, according to the common reckoning, but only 100 according to the system of Hales. Commencing with the last scenes of the life of David, it carries down the history to the end of Jehosaphat's reign over Judah, and of Ahab's reign over Israel, the intermediate reigns having been (after David and Solomon) in Judah, those of Rehoboam, Abijam, and Asa; and in Israel, those of Jeroboam I., Nadab, Baasha, Elah, Zimri, and Omri. The proper termination of the book is at ch. xxii. 50. for the last three verses belong to the reign of Ahab's successor Amaziah.

NOW king David was [a]old [b]and stricken[1] in years;[2] and they covered him with clothes, but he gat no heat.

2 Wherefore his servants said unto him, Let[3] there be sought for my lord the king a young virgin;[4] and let her stand[d] before the king, and let her cherish[5] him, and let her [e]lie in thy bosom, that my lord the king may get[f] heat.

3 So [g]they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the coasts of Israel, and found [h]Abishag a [i]Shunammite, and brought her to the king.

4 And the damsel was very fair, and cherished the king, and ministered to him: but the king [k]knew her not.

5 ¶ Then [l]Adonijah the son of Haggith [m]exalted himself, saying, [n]I will be king:[1] and [o]he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.

6 And his father [p]had not [2]displeased him at[3] any time in saying, Why hast thou done so? and he also was a [q]very goodly man; and his mother [r]bare him after Absalom.[4]

7 And he[5] [s]conferred with [t]Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with [u]Abiathar the priest: and they, [6]following Adonijah, helped him.

8 But [v]Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and [w]Nathan the prophet, and [x]Shimei, and Rei, and [y]the mighty men which belonged to David, were not with Adonijah.

9 And Adonijah [z]slew sheep, and oxen, and fat cattle, by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by En-rogel,[7] and [a]called all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Judah the king's servants.

10 But [b]Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and Solomon his brother, he called not.[1]

11 ¶ Wherefore [c]Nathan spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, hast thou not heard that [d]Adonijah the son of Haggith doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not?

12 Now therefore come, [e]let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest [f]save thine own life, and [g]the life of thy son Solomon.

13 Go and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear[2] unto thine handmaid, saying, [h]Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall [i]sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

14 Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, [k]I also will come in after thee, and confirm[3] thy words.

15 ¶ And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was [l]very old; and Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

16 And Bath-sheba [m]bowed, and did obeisance unto the king. [n]And the king said, What[4] wouldest thou?

17 And she said unto him, [o]My lord, [p]thou swarest by the LORD thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne:

18 And now, behold, [q]Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, thou[r] knowest it not:

19 And [s]he hath slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant hath he not called.

20 And thou, my lord, O king, [t]the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou[u] shouldest tell them who shall sit on the throne[5] of my lord the king after him.

21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall [v]sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted offenders.[6]

22 ¶ And, lo, [w]while she yet talked with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in.

1 This was a very significant exception, for he doubtless knew that the crown had been assigned to Solomon, though a younger brother. Feeling that this was his best opportunity of asserting his claim, he, in imitation of Absalom, set up a splendid retinue & courted popularity.

2 Though there is no record of such an oath, there doubtless was one, of which Nathan had knowledge. David, however, in nominating Solomon, had not acted from the mere impulse of paternal preference (otherwise he would perhaps have named Absalom) but he was under the direction of God, who had settled the succession in favour of Solomon. 5 It appears that David's right to nominate which of his sons he pleased to succeed him, was recognised by his subjects. Michaelis thinks that he had secured this right by the terms of his covenant with the people. But it rather seems to have been a right which needed no stipulation, being sanctioned by general usage, as we see exemplified in the case of Jacob, who deprived his eldest son Reuben of that priority which would otherwise have belonged to him. The right of the eldest son was in general recognised, but with a reserved right in the father to give the preference to a younger son if he saw occasion. Oriental kings still enjoy this power. The late king of Persia, for instance, publicly recognised his second son (Abbas Mirza) as his successor, to the exclusion of the eldest, who, however, took no pains to conceal his intention to put the matter to the arbitration of the sword.—Kitto.

23 And they told the king, saying, Behold Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, he[x] bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground.

24 And Nathan said, My lord, O king, [y]hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign[z] after me, and he shall sit upon my throne?

25 For he is gone down this day, and hath [a]slain oxen, and fat cattle, and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and, behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, God save king Adonijah.[1]

26 But me, even [b]me thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called.

27 Is this thing done by my lord the king, [c]and thou hast not shewed[2] it unto thy servant, who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?

28 ¶ Then king David answered and said, Call me Bath-sheba: and she came into[3] the king's presence, and stood before the king.

29 And the king sware, and said, [d]As the LORD liveth, that [e]hath redeemed my soul out of all distress,[4]

30 Even [f]as I sware unto thee by the LORD God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day.

31 Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the earth, and [g]did reverence to the king, and said, [h]Let my lord king David live for ever.[5]

32 ¶ And king David said, Call me [i]Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, Take with you the servants[6] of your lord, and cause Solomon my son [k]to ride[7] upon mine[8] own [l]mule, and bring him down to [m]Gihon:[9]

34 And let [n]Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, anoint him there king over Israel: and [o]blow ye with the trumpet, and say, [p]God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and [q]sit upon my throne;[1] for he shall be king in my stead: and [r]I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, [s]Amen: the [t]LORD God of my lord the king say so too.

37 As [u]the LORD hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, [v]and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.[2]

38 So [w]Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and [x]the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon [y]king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took [z]an horn of oil[3] [a]out of the tabernacle, and anointed[b] Solomon: and they blew the trumpet; and [c]all the people said, God save king Solomon.

40 And all the people came up after him; and the people piped with pipes,[4] and [d]rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent[5] with the sound of them.

41 ¶ And Adonijah, and all the guests that were with him, heard it as[e] they had made an end of eating.[6] And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, [f]Wherefore is this noise of [g]the city being in an uproar?

42 And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan[h] the son of Abiathar the priest came: and Adonijah said unto him, Come in; for thou art [i]a valiant[7] man, and bringest good tidings.

43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, [k]Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king.

44 And the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule:

45 And Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, have anointed him king in Gihon; and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that [l]the city rang again. [m]This is the noise that ye have heard.

46 And also Solomon [n]sitteth on the throne of the kingdom.

47 And moreover, the king's servants came to [o]bless our lord king David, saying, [p]God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne: and the king [q]bowed himself upon the bed.

48 And also thus said the king, [r]Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, [s]which hath given one to sit on my throne this day, [t]mine eyes even seeing it.

49 And [u]all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid, and rose up, and went every man his way.

50 ¶ And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, and arose, and went, and [v]caught hold on the horns of the altar.

51 And it was told Solomon, saying, Behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon: for, lo, he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar,[1] saying, Let king Solomon swear unto me to-day that he will not slay his servant with the sword.

52 And Solomon said, If he will shew himself a worthy man, [w]there shall not an hair of him fall to the earth: but if [x]wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die.

53 So king Solomon sent, and they brought him down from the altar. And he came and [y]bowed himself to king Solomon: and Solomon said unto him, [z]Go to thine house.

2 'Solomon could not at this time be more than twenty years of age; and, it is probable, he was not so much: an early period for him to enter upon so weighty a charge as the government of God's people. and his judgments, and his [h]testimonies, [i]as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper[1] in all that thou doest, and [k]whithersoever thou turnest thyself;

4 [l]That the LORD may continue [m]his word, which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to [n]walk before me in truth with[o] all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail[2] thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

5 Moreover, thou knowest also what Joab[p] the son of Zeruiah did to me, and what he did to the two captains of the host of Israel, unto [q]Abner the son of Ner, and unto [r]Amasa the son of [s]Jether, whom he slew, and [3]shed the blood of war in peace, and [t]put the blood of war upon his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet.

6 Do therefore [u]according to thy wisdom, and [v]let not his hoar head[4] go down to the grave [w]in peace.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of [x]Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that [y]eat at thy table: for so they came to me [z]when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

8 And, behold, thou hast with thee Shimei[a] the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, which cursed me with a grievous[5] curse in the day when I went to Mahanaim: but [b]he came down to meet me at Jordan, and I sware to him by the LORD, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword.

9 Now therefore [c]hold him not guiltless:[6] for thou art [d]a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but [e]his hoar head bring thou down[7] to the grave [f]with blood.

10 ¶ So [g]David slept with his fathers, and was buried in [h]the city of David.

11 And the days that David [i]reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 ¶ Then [k]sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and [l]his kingdom was established greatly.

13 ¶ And [m]Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon. And she said, [n]Comest thou peaceably? and he said, Peaceably.

14 He said moreover, [o]I have something to say unto thee. And she said, Say on.

15 And he said, [p]Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that they should reign: howbeit the kingdom is turned about, and is become my brother's: for [q]it was his from the LORD.

16 And now I ask one petition of thee, deny me not.[1] And she said unto him, Say on.

17 And he said, Speak, I pray thee, unto Solomon the king, (for he will not say thee nay,) that he give me [r]Abishag the Shunammite to wife.

18 And Bath-sheba said, [s]Well, I will speak for thee unto the king.

19 ¶ Bath-sheba therefore went unto king Solomon, to speak unto him for Adonijah. And the king [t]rose up to meet her,[3] and bowed himself unto her, and sat down on his throne, and caused a seat to be set for the king's mother; and [u]she sat on his right hand.

20 Then she said, [v]I desire[4] a small petition of thee: I pray thee, say me not nay. And the king said unto her, [w]Ask on, my mother; for I will not say thee nay.

21 And she said, [x]Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah thy brother to wife.

22 And king Solomon answered and said unto his mother, And [y]why dost thou ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? ask for him [z]the [5]kingdom also; (for he is mine elder brother;) even for him, and for Abiathar the priest, and for Joab the son of Zeruiah.

23 Then king Solomon sware by the LORD, saying, [a]God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not [b]spoken this word against his own life.

24 Now therefore, [c]as the LORD liveth, which hath established me, and [d]set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath [e]made me a house, [f]as he promised, Adonijah shall be [g]put to death[6] this day.

7 Some think the verse should be translated, 'Now therefore hold him not guiltless, (for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him,) but bring not down,' &c., the negative being supplied from the first clause. Solomon, they urge, so understood the charge, for he did not kill Shimei for his crimes against his father, but knowing that he ought to be well watched, confined him to a particular spot in Jerusalem. Others consider Solomon as not bound by his father's oath, and hence David left it to his prudence, to execute what in policy he had thought it not advisable for himself to do.

Bathsheba, however, might have suspected something from the manner in which Adonijah had spoken to her of the loss of the succession, 'when all Israel had set their faces on him that he should reign,' (ver. 15.) 5 We saw at 2 Sa. 16. 23. that the whole harem of an Eastern monarch was a part of the royal succession, and it was treason for a subject to claim any wife or virgin who had formed a part of it. Solomon evidently considered the request of Adonijah in this light, and was convinced that he was still aiming to seize the crown, to which he considered this as one step. He therefore punished it as a fresh overt act of treason.

and of Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; [h] and he fell upon him[1] that he died.

26 ¶ And unto [i]Abiathar the priest said the king, Get thee to [k]Anathoth,[2] unto thine own fields; for thou art worthy of death:[3] but I will not at this time put thee to death, [l]because thou barest the ark of the Lord God before David my father, and [m]because thou hast been afflicted in all wherein my father was afflicted.

27 So Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being priest[4] unto the Lord: that [n] he might fulfil the word of the Lord,[5] which he spake concerning the house of Eli[6] in [o]Shiloh.

28 ¶ Then tidings came to Joab; for [p]Joab had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom;) and Joab fled unto the tabernacle of the Lord, and [q]caught hold on the horns of the altar.

29 And it was told king Solomon that Joab was fled unto the tabernacle of the Lord; and, behold, he is by the altar: then Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, [r]Go, fall upon him.

30 And Benaiah came to the tabernacle of the Lord, and said unto him, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay; but I will die here. And Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.

31 And the king said unto him, [s]Do as he hath said, and fall upon him, and bury him; that thou [t]mayest take away the innocent blood, which Joab shed, from me, and [u]from the house of my father.

32 And the Lord shall [v]return his blood upon his own head, who fell upon [w]two men [x]more righteous and better than he, and slew them with the sword, [y]my father David not knowing thereof, to wit, Abner the son of Ner, captain of the host of Israel, and Amasa the son of [z]Jether, captain of the host of Judah.

33 Their blood shall therefore return [a]upon the head of Joab, and upon the head of his seed for ever: but upon [b] David, and upon his seed, and upon [c] his house, and upon his throne, shall there be peace for ever from the Lord.

34 So [d]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada went up, and fell upon him, and slew him;[1] [e]and he was buried in his own house [f]in the wilderness.[2]

35 ¶ And the king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in his room over the host; and [g]Zadok the priest did the king put in the room of Abiathar.

36 ¶ And the king sent and called for [h]Shimei, and said unto him, [i]Build thee an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and go not forth thence any whither.[3]

37 For it shall be, that on the day thou goest out, and passest [k]over the brook Kidron,[4] thou shalt know for certain that thou shalt surely die: [l]thy blood shall be upon thine own head.

38 And Shimei said unto the king, [m]The saying is good: as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days.[5]

39 And it came to pass, at the end of three years, that two of the servants of Shimei ran away unto [n]Achish son of Maachah king of Gath: and they told Shimei, saying, Behold, thy servants be in Gath.

40 And Shimei [o]arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to seek his servants: and Shimei went, and brought his servants from Gath.

41 And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again.

42 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, [p]Did I not make thee to swear by the Lord, and protested unto thee, saying, Know for a certain, that on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, that thou shalt surely die? and thou saidst unto me, The word that I have heard is good.

43 Why [q]then hast thou not kept the oath of the Lord, and [r]the commandment that I have charged thee with?

44 The king said moreover to Shimei, [s]Thou knowest all the wickedness[6] which thine heart is privy to, that thou didst to David my father; there-

6 The high priesthood was in the first instance settled upon Eleazar the thirdson of Aaron; but in the beginning of 1 Sa.we find the priesthood held by Eli a descendant of Aaron's youngest son Ithamar, without any reason being assigned for the alteration. Now the effect of the deposition of Abiathar, and the appointment of Zadok, is that the priesthood is taken from this Ithamar branch of Aaron's family, and restored to the elder branch of Eleazar. In this line the dignity remained till after the return from the Babylonish captivity, the last high priest of the house of Eleazar being Joshua the son of Josedech.

These terms Shimei readily agreed to, & solemnly aware to observe, & for three years helived unmolested and in affluence. 45 And king Solomon shall be blessed,[u] and the throne of David[w] shall be established before the LORD for ever.

46 So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; which went out, and fell upon him, that he died: and the[w] kingdom was established in the hand[1] of Solomon.

CHAPTER III.

Solomon marrieth Pharaoh's daughter, 1. High places being in use, Solomon sacrificeth at Gibeon, 2—4. Solomon at Gibeon, in the choice which God gave him, preferring wisdom, obtaineth wisdom, riches, and honour, 5—15. His judgment between the two harlots maketh his wisdom renowned, 16—28.

AND Solomon [a]made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt, [b]and took Pharaoh's daughter,[2] and brought her into [c]the city of David, until he had made an end of building [d]his own house, and [e]the house of the LORD, and the[f] wall of Jerusalem round about.

2 Only [g]the people sacrificed in high places, because there [h]was no house built unto the name of the LORD, until those days.

3 And Solomon [i]loved the LORD, walking[k] in the statutes of David his father: [l]only he sacrificed and burned incense in high places.[3]

4 And the king went to [m]Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that was the great high place: [n]a thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

5 ¶ In Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon [o]in a dream by night: and God said, [p]Ask what I shall give thee.

6 And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto [q]thy servant David my father [r]great mercy,[4] [s]according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that [t]thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day.

7 And now, O LORD my God, [u]thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father; and I am but [v]a little child:[5] I know not how [w]to go out or come in.[6]

8 And thy servant is in the midst of [x]thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that [y]cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

5 A Hebraism for 'I am as a little child,'—an Eastern expression, now employed in like cases by men even advanced in years; compare Je. 1. 6. Josephus has been misled by it to assert that Solomon was at his accession only twelve years of age, but Hales makes it evident, from various incidental circumstances, that he must at least have been about twenty years old.

6 This is another Hebraism for 'to conduct affairs,' & there is a peculiar emphasis in it here from its connection with the phrase that precedes it. The whole expresses a sense of ignorance and inexperience (and consequent inaptitude for business) like that of a little child, who is unable to walk without support, and cannot be trusted out of doors alone.

4 Solomon had asked (ver. 9) not wisdom in general, but the knowledge of the true science of government, & that was given him. If we find that in after life he showed himself devoid of much practical wisdom in his personal conduct, it was because he was unfaithful to the condition now stipulated at ver. 14.

7 Perhaps this difficult case was referred to the king, on account of its having proved too hard for the inferior judges to decide. Solomon, in his wisdom, adopted the only rational method of discovering the truth, by making an ingenious appeal to the self-denying tenderness of a mother. The murder of illegitimate infants by their mothers, to conceal their shame, so often occurring in this country, is not so much as intimated in anyway in the Scriptures. Nor is it met with in ancient history. The practice, however, with the ancients, of exposing their children, whether spurious or not, might remove the temptation to take away their lives by secret murder.

9 [z]Give therefore thy servant understanding[1] heart [a]to judge people, that I may [b]discern between good and bad: for [c]who is able judge this thy so great a people?

10 And the speech [d]pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing.

11 And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life;[2] neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern[3] judgment;

12 Behold, [f]I have done according to thy words: lo, [g]I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither [h]after thee shall any arise like unto thee.

13 And [i]I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both [k]riches and honour: so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.

14 And [l]if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, [m]as thy father David did walk, then [n]I will lengthen thy days.

15 And Solomon [o]awoke; and, behold, it was a dream: and he came to Jerusalem, and stood [p]before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt-offerings, and offered [q]peace-offerings, and made [r]a feast to all his servants.

16 ¶ Then came there [s]two women, that were harlots[6] unto the king, and [t]stood before him.[7]

17 And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

18 And it came to pass, the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

19 And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.

20 And she arose at [v]midnight, and [w]took my son from beside me, when thine handmaid slept, and laid her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

21 And when I arose in the morning to [z]give my child suck, behold, it was dead; but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son which I did bear.

22 And the other woman said, [y]Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

23 Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

24 And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

25 And the king said, [z]Divide the living child in two,[1] and give half to the one, and half to the other.

26 Then spake the woman, whose the living child was, unto the king, (for [a]her bowels yearned[2] upon her son,) and she said, O my lord, [b]give her the living child, and in no wise slay it:[3] but the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

27 Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof.

28 And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged; and they [c]feared[4] the king: for they saw that [d]the wisdom of God was in him[5] to do judgment.

CHAPTER IV.

Solomon's princes, 1—6. His twelve officers who provided for his household, 7—19. The peace and largeness of his kingdom, 20, 21. His daily provision, 22—25. His stables, 26—28. His extraordinary wisdom, 29—34.

SO king Solomon was king [a]over all Israel.

2 And these were [b]the princes[6] which he had; [c]Azariah the son of Zadok the priest;[7]

3 Elihoreph and Ahiah the sons of Shisha,[d] scribes;[8] Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud, the recorder.[9]

4 And [e]Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the host; and [f]Zadok and Abiathar were the priests;[10]

5 And Azariah the [g]son of Nathan was over the officers;[11] and Zabud the son of Nathan was principal officer, and [h]the king's friend;

6 And Ahishar was over the household; and [i]Adoniram the son of Abda was over the tribute.[1]

7 ¶ And Solomon had twelve [2]officers over all Israel, which provided victuals for the king and his household: [k]each man his month in a year made provision.

8 And these are their names: The son of Hur,[3] in [l]mount Ephraim.

9 The son of Dekar,[4] in Makaz, and in [m]Shaalbim, and [n]Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan.

10 The son of Hesed,[5] in Aruboth; to him pertained [o]Sochoh, and all the land of [p]Hepher.

11 The son of Abinadab,[6] in all the region of [q]Dor; which had Taphath the daughter of Solomon to wife.

12 Baanah the son of Ahilud; to him pertained [r]Taanach and [s]Megiddo, and all [t]Beth-shean, which is by [u]Zartanah, beneath [v]Jezreel, from Beth-shean to [w]Abel-meholah, even unto the place that is beyond Jokneam.

13 The son of Geber,[7] in [x]Ramoth-gilead: to him pertained [y]the towns of Jair the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead: to him also pertained the region of [z]Argob, which is in Bashan, threescore great cities, with walls and brazen bars.

14 Ahinadab the son of Iddo had Mahanaim.[8]

15 Ahimaaz was in [a]Naphtali; he also took Basmath [b]the daughter of Solomon to wife.

16 Baanah the son of Hushai was in [c]Asher and in Aloth.

17 Jehoshaphat the son of Paruah in [d]Issachar.

18 [e]Shimei the son of Elah in [f]Benjamin.

19 Geber the son of Uri was in the country of Gilead, in [g]the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og king of Bashan; and he was the only officer[9] which was in the land.

20 ¶ Judah and Israel were many, [h]as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, [i]eating and drinking, and making merry.[10]

21 And [k]Solomon reigned over all

1 This incidentally shows, that in judicial matters there was no limit to the royal power among the Hebrews; for were such an order given in a similar case by a magistrate with us, no alarm would be excited in the mother's mind, because she would know well, that he could not, and would not put the child to death.

They furnished food for all that belonged to the king; and the having provisions for themselves & their attendants, seems to have been all the ordinary gratification his ministers of state, as well as his meaner servants, received. Silver and gold, horses, armour, precious vestments, and other things of value, came to Solomon as tribute from the surrounding princes, (ch.10.25,) & from merchants whom he allowed to pass through his territory, (ch. 10. 15;) also from his own commerce by the Red sea, (ch. 10. 22.) Out of these precious articles, he made presents to those who distinguished themselves in his service, (ch. 10. 26, 27.) 5 Zidon was the first settlement of the Canaanites, Ge. 10. 15, and hence the name of that city was sometimes given to the whole of Phœnicia. In Jos. 11. 8; 19. 28; it is called Zidon the great or the chief city. The name of Tyre does not occur till the time of David, but Zidon is mentioned in the earliest genealogy of the nations in the 10th chapter of Genesis. Even Homer takes no notice of Tyre, but he speaks of the Zidonians as rich merchants, trading in curious wares, and mariners skilled in astronomy and navigation. It sometimes had its own princes, but in the time of Solomon, was under the same government as Tyre. It is now called Saida, and on the 27th Sept. 1840, was captured by a brilliant coup-de-main of Commodore Napier, at the head of a body of British, Austrians, and Turks.

7 This portion of the assistance rendered by Hiram was of the utmost importance; every thing else Solomon required for the temple he might have got from Egypt, but that country was so far from being able to supply timber, that it wanted it more than any other. In the Egyptian Antiquities there is the view of a curious piece of sculpture, representing an invasion of Lebanon by an Egyptian king, and the inhabitants are seen felling trees to form entrenchments, their costume & physiognomy being carefully preserved.

34 And [h]there came of all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, which had heard of his wisdom.

CHAPTER V.

Hiram, sending to congratulate Solomon, is certified of his purpose to build the temple, and desired to furnish him with timber for that purpose. 1—6. Hiram, blessing God for Solomon, requesteth food for his family, furnisheth him with timber, 7—12. The number of Solomon's workmen and labourers, 13—18.

AND [a]Hiram king of Tyre [b]sent his servants unto Solomon; (for he had heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father:) for Hiram was [c]ever a lover of David.

2 And [d]Solomon sent to Hiram, saying,

3 Thou knowest[2] how that David my father [e]could not build an house unto the name of the LORD his God, [f]for the wars which were about him on every side, until the LORD [g]put them under the soles of his feet.

4 But now the LORD my God [h]hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent.

5 And, [i]behold, I purpose[3] to build an house unto the name of the LORD my God, [k]as the LORD spake unto David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name.

6 Now therefore command thou that they hew me [l]cedar-trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants: and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants, according to all that thou shalt appoint:[4] for thou knowest [m]that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the [o]Zidonians.[5]

7 ¶ And it came to pass, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly, and said, [p]Blessed be the LORD this day, [q]which hath given unto David [r]a wise son over this great people.

8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have considered[6] the things which thou sentest to me for: and I will do all thy desire[7] concerning timber of cedar, and concerning timber of fir.

9 My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea; and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place that thou shalt appoint me, and will cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt accomplish my desire, in giving food for my household.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar-trees, and fir-trees, according to all his desire.

11 And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand measures[2] of wheat for food to his household, and twenty measures of pure oil:[3] thus gave Solomon to Hiram year by year.[4]

12 And the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as he promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and they two made a league together.

13 ¶ And king Solomon raised a levy[5] out of all Israel; and the levy was thirty thousand men.

14 And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month by courses: a month they were in Lebanon, and two months at home: and Adoniram was over the levy.

15 And Solomon had threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains;

16 Besides the chief of Solomon's officers which were over the work, three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people that wrought in the work.

17 And the king commanded, and they brought great stones,[6] costly stones, and hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house.

18 And Solomon's builders and Hiram's builders did hew them, and the stonesquarers:[7] so they prepared timber and stones to build the house.

AND it came to pass,[8] in the four hundred and eightieth year[9] after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that he began to build the house of the LORD.

2 And the house which king Solomon built for the LORD, the length thereof was [d]threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits.

3 And the porch before the temple of the house, twenty cubits was the length thereof, according to the breadth of the house; and ten cubits was the breadth thereof before the house.

4 And for the house he made windows of narrow lights.[2]

5 And against[3] the wall of the house he built chambers[4] round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple and of the oracle: and he made chambers[5] round about:

6 The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

7 And the house, when it was in building, was [h]built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer, nor axe, nor any tool of iron, heard in the house while it was in building.

8 The door for the middle chamber was in the right side[8] of the house: and they went up with winding [i]stairs into the middle chamber, and out of the middle into the third.

9 So he built the house, and finished it; and covered the house with beams and boards[10] of cedar.

10 And then he built chambers against all the house five cubits high: and they rested on the house with timber of cedar.

11 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying,

12 Concerning this house which thou art in building, [m]if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments to walk in them; then will I perform my word with thee, which I spake unto David thy father:

13 And [o]I will dwell among the 6 The stones were quarried & hewn with the aid of the Phœnicians, but it seems doubtful, whether they were brought from Lebanon, since good stones, of the same quality as those of Lebanon, could be got much nearer. Stones of immense size were used in ancient buildings; witness one in the foundation of the great temple of Baalbec, (ascribed by tradition to Solomon,) sixty-six feet long, twelve broad, and twelve thick.

8 Bardwell in his 'Temples, Ancient and Modern,' (Lond. 1837,) gives the most scientific description of Solomon's temple, on architectural principles, that has yet appeared. Adopting Sir Isaac Newton's opinion, that the temple cubit was 23¼ inches, he estimates the length at 116 ft. 3 in. (exclusive of the porch,) breadth 37 ft. 6 in., height 58 ft. 1½ in.

1 These symbolical figures are described at length in the tenth chapter of Ezekiel. It may be doubted whether they were intended to represent angels; they were rather emblems designed to intimate the manifestation of God's presence as a God of mercy & grace, 'shining forth from between the cherubim.' Ps. 80. 1. The colossal cherubim described here, (19 feet 4½ inches in height) were distinct from those which covered the mercy-seat, and were inseparably united to it. The former stood erect, with their 'faces towards the wall, 2 Ch. 3. 13, and they covered with their outspread wings the whole breadth of the 'oracle.' The smaller ones were of solid gold; these of the gilded wood of the wild olive-tree.

When the vail was drawn aside, there were doors that took up a fifth of that partition, or about four cubits. 11 The whole time was seven years and six months, but the round number only is given.

26 The height of the one cherub was ten cubits, and so was it of the other cherub.

27 And he set the cherubims[1] within the inner house: [a] and they [2] stretched forth the wings of the cherubims, so that the wing of the one touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house.

28 And he overlaid the cherubims with gold.

29 And he carved all the walls of the house round about with [b] carved figures of cherubims, and [c] palm-trees, and open[3] flowers, within and without.

30 And [d] the floor of the house he overlaid with gold within and without.

31 ¶ And for the entering[4] of the oracle he made [e] doors of olive-tree: the lintel and side-posts were a fifth[5] part of the wall.

32 The two[6] doors also were of olive-tree; and he carved upon them carvings of cherubims, and palm-trees, and open[7] flowers, and overlaid them with gold, and spread gold upon the cherubims, and upon the palm-trees.

36 ¶ And he built [h] the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar-beams.

37 ¶ In [i] the fourth year was the foundation of the house of the LORD laid, in the month Zif:

38 And in the eleventh year, in the month Bul, (which is the eighth month,) was the house [k] finished throughout[10] all the parts thereof, and according to all the fashion of it. So was he [l] seven years[11] in building it.

CHAPTER VII.

The building of Solomon's house, 1. Of the house of Lebanon, 2—5. Of the porch of pillars, 6. Of the porch of judgment, 7. Of the house for Pharaoh's daughter, 8—12. Hiram's work of the two pillars, 13—22. Of the molten sea, 22—26. Of the ten bases, 27—37. Of the ten lavers, 38, 39; and all the other vessels, 40—51.

BUT Solomon was building his own house [a]thirteen years, and he finished all his house.

2 ¶ He built also [b]the house of the forest of Lebanon;[1] the length thereof was an hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits, upon four rows of cedar-pillars, with cedar-beams upon the pillars.

3 And it was covered with cedar above upon the beams,[2] that lay on forty-five pillars, fifteen in a row.

4 And there were [c]windows in three rows, and light[3] was against light in three ranks.

5 And all the doors[4] and posts were square with the windows: and light was against light in three ranks.

6 ¶ And he made a porch of pillars; the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof thirty cubits: and the porch was before[5] them; and the other pillars and the thick beam were before them.[6]

7 ¶ Then he made [d]a porch [e]for the throne where he might judge, even the porch [f]of judgment: and it was covered with cedar from[7] one side of the floor to the other.

8 ¶ And his house where he dwelt had another[g] court within the porch, which was of the like work. Solomon made also an[h] house for Pharaoh's daughter, whom he had taken to wife, like unto this porch.[8]

9 All these were of [i]costly stones, according to the measures of hewed stones, sawed with saws, within and without, even from the foundation unto the coping, and so on the outside toward the great court.

10 And [k]the foundation was of costly stones, even great stones, stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits.

11 And [l]above were costly stones, (after the measures of hewed stones,) and cedars.

12 And the great court round about was with [m]three rows of hewed stones, and a row of cedar-beams, both for the inner court of the house of the LORD, and for [n]the porch of the house.

1 So called most probably from the great quantity of cedar (ver. 2, 3, 7,) employed in its construction. Ikenius, a German writer, labours hard to show that it was a pleasure-house on Lebanon. But since it is said, ch. 10. 17, that Solomon preserved there a large collection of targets and shields of gold, and caused his throne in it to be constructed in the most curious and costly fashion, all that points rather to a palace in or near the residence-city, than to a mere villa, or place of summer retreat. The fact of Shishak king of Egypt having seized these golden shields when 'he came up against Jerusalem,' (2 Ch. 12. 9,) seems decisive of the point. See the Notes at 2 Ch. iii.

8 Lamy supposes that the three houses here described, viz. the king's own house, (ver. 1,) the house of the forest of Lebanon, (ver. 2,) and the house for Pharaoh's daughter, (ver 8,) were only different portions of the same great edifice; and the idea does agree with the architecture and arrangement of palaces in the East, which commonly consist of a series of open quadrangles, with each its distinct and appropriate buildings, one for public business, another for the males of the royal house, and a third for the females. The quadrangle into which the principal gate opens, usually contains the place where the sovereign gives audience, and sits in judgment, & hence the court is so often called 'the gate,' of which we have a familiar instance in the phrase of the 'Sublime Porte.' The porch of judgment here, (ver. 7,) was analogous to the 'gate of judgment' of the splendid Moorish palace of the Alhambra at Granada in Spain.

3 In 2 Ch. 3. 15, it is said these two pillars were 35 cubits high. Tremellius reconciles the statements, by observing that the common cubit was but one half of the cubit of the sanctuary; so that 18 of the one would make 36 of the other, from which, if we deduct one cubit for the plinth or base, there would remain 35. But as much difficulty exists regarding the distinction between the common and sacred cubit, perhaps the simplest mode of reconciling the passage is that proposed by Abarbanel, namely, that the writer here speaks of the length of the pillars singly, whereas the writer in Chronicles speaks of them together. In this case, as on the former supposition, a cubit must be allowed for the base.

4 Bardwell has made it very probable that these famous pillars did not, as has been commonly supposed, stand out detached, but supported the entablature of the pronaos. He says, 'The two great columns of the pronaos were of the usual proportions of Egyptian columns, being five and a half diameters high, and as these gave the great characteristic feature to the building, Solomon sent an embassy to fetch the architect from Tyre, to superintend the moulding & casting of them in brass; and observe how conspicuous is the idea of the vase (the bowl of our translation,) rising from a cylinder ornamented with lotus flowers. The bottom of the vase was partly hidden by the flowers, the belly of it was overlaid with net-work, ornamented by seven wreaths, (the Hebrew number of happiness,) and beneath the lip of the vase were two rows of pomegranates, one hundred in each row. These superb pillars were 8 feet diameter, and 44 feet high, supporting a noble entablature 14 feet high.' See at 2 Ch. iii.

13 ¶ And king Solomon sent and fetched [o]Hiram out of Tyre.

14 He was a widow's son[1] of the tribe of [p]Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass: and [q]he was filled with wisdom and understanding, and cunning to work all works in brass. And he came to king Solomon, and wrought all his work.

15 For he cast[2] [r]two pillars of brass, of eighteen cubits[3] high a piece; and a line of twelve cubits did compass either of them about.

16 And he made [s]two chapiters of molten brass, to set upon the tops of the pillars: the height of the one chapiter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapiter was five cubits:

17 And nets of checker-work, and [t]wreaths of chain-work, for the chapiters which were upon the top of the pillars: seven for the one chapiter, and seven for the other chapiter.

18 And he made the pillars,[4] and two rows round about upon the one net-work, to cover the chapiters that were upon the top with pomegranates: and so did he for the other chapiter.

19 And the chapiters that were upon the top of the pillars were of [u]lily-work in the porch, four cubits.

20 And the chapiters upon the two pillars had pomegranates also above, over against the belly which was by the net-work; and the [v]pomegranates were two hundred, in rows round about upon the other chapiter.

21 And [w]he set up the pillars in [x]the porch of the temple: and he set up the right pillar, and called the name thereof Jachin;[5] and he set up the left pillar, and called the name thereof Boaz.[6]

22 And upon the top of the pillars was lily-work: so was the work of the pillars finished.

23 ¶ And [y]he made [z]a molten sea, ten cubits from the one brim[7] to the other: it was round all about, and his height was five cubits; and a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about.

24 And under the brim of it round about there were [a]knops compassing it, ten in a cubit, [b]compassing the sea round about: the knops were cast in two rows when it was cast.

25 It stood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east: and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

26 And it was [c] an hand-breadth thick, and the brim thereof was wrought like the brim of a cup, with flowers of lilies: it contained [f] two thousand baths.

27 ¶ And he made ten [g] bases of brass; four cubits was the length of one base, and four cubits the breadth thereof, and three cubits the height of it.

28 And the work of the bases was on this manner: they had borders, and the borders were between the ledges:

29 And on the borders that were between the ledges were [h] lions, oxen, and cherubims: and upon the ledges there was a base above: and beneath the lions and oxen were certain additions made of thin work.[1]

30 And every base had four brazen wheels, and plates of brass: and the four corners thereof had undersetters: under the laver were undersetters molten, at the side of every addition.

31 And the mouth of it within the chapiter and above, was a cubit: but the mouth thereof was round, after the work of the base, a cubit and a half: and also upon the mouth of it were gravings with their borders, four-square, not round.[2]

32 And under the borders were four wheels; and the axle-trees of the wheels were joined[3] to the base: and the height of a wheel was a cubit and half a cubit.

33 And [k] the work of the wheels was like the work of a chariot-wheel: their axle-trees, and their naves, and their felloes,[4] and their spokes, were all molten.

34 And there were four undersetters to the four corners of one base: and the undersetters were of the very base itself.

35 And in the top of the base was there a round compass of half a cubit high: and on the top of the base, the

But now the numbers of the priests and Levites were multiplied, & the sacrifices were proportionably increased. Therefore Solomon prepared this brazen sea; and ten lavers besides, at which the sacrifices were to be washed. These were constantly supplied with water by the Nethinim, or the Gibeonites, who were servants to the priests, Jos. 9. 27. The brazen sea was a very large reservoir, capable of holding three thousand baths, or about four hundred & fifty hogsheads; though no more than two thousand were generally put into it. The knops are supposed to have been in the form of an ox's head, (2 Ch. 4. 3,) and some think that the water flowed out at the mouths of them, or some of them. The oxen on which it was placed, might be intended as a protest against the absurd idolatry of worshipping God under an image in that form."—Scott.

l "The Rabbins conceive that the vessel was round for the two upper cubits of its height, and square below. This seems to have been devised for the purpose of giving a greater capacity to the sea, and also is somewhat sanctioned by the statement that the twelve oxen faced, by threes, the cardinal points of the compass. Josephus says, that the vessel was hemispherical, its bottom resting on a pillar a cubit in diameter, and on the hinder parts of the twelve oxen. The present text says (ver. 26) that it contained 2000 baths, which is about 16,000 gallons; but in 2 Ch. 4. 5, which is followed by Josephus, 3000 is the number given. Some suppose one of these texts corrupted, while others endeavour to account for the discrepancy by a difference of measures, or by relative explanations, such as that of some of the Rabbins, who suppose that the basin, or cup, could contain 3000 baths, but usually contained only 2000; or that of Calmet, who concludes that the cup held 2000, & the base or foot 1000 more."—Kitto.

4 "The Jewish writers say that it was supplied with water by a pipe from the well Etam, which seems more probable than that the Gibeonites performed the duty of keeping it full. It was kept continually flowing, according to the same accounts, there being spouts which discharged for use from the basin as much water as it received from the well Etam. As most, if not all, of the Jewish ablutions were performed in running water, this is highly probable; and we may suppose that the priests performed their ablutions at these flowing streams. This indeed the Jews say with respect to ordinary ablutions, but they add that, to complete ablutions of the whole person, the priests got into the basin, and to prevent their being drowned was the reason that it never contained more than 2000 baths, according to the above mentioned interpretation. Every one will see the absurdity of this notion. When a complete ablution was necessary the priest could stand under the running streams, or bathe in the hollow base which received & discharged water, and which also must have had an outlet. It is not clear whence the streams were discharged; but it may have been from the mouths of the oxen, or, as some properly conceive, from embossed heads in the sides of the vessels."—Pict. Bible.

36 For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on the borders thereof, graved cherubims, lions, and palm trees, according to the proportion[2] of every one, and additions round about.

37 After this manner he made the ten bases: all of them had one casting, one measure, and one size.

38 ¶ Then made he [m] ten lavers of brass: one laver contained forty baths: and every laver was four cubits: and upon every one of the ten bases a laver.

5 The temple was in a peculiar manner the residence of Jehovah in the midst of Israel, when the ark of the covenant was placed in it; and the want of the ark, after the Babylonish captivity, in the temple then built, intimated that that dispensation was ready to vanish away. Solomon's undertaking was therefore incomplete, and the temple lacked its chief glory, (notwithstanding all its gold and exquisite workmanship,) until the ark was removed thither, and fixed in the most holy place. This therefore he took care to perform, according to the law, and in the most public and solemn manner. Mount Moriah, on which the temple was built, was near to the city of David, on mount Zion, where the ark was before placed; but was distinct from it.—Scott.

1 The cherubim here do not mean those of solid gold, made in the days of Moses, & which overshadowed the ark, for they were inseparable from the mercy-seat, (Ex. 25. 10-21;) but those which Solomon had just prepared in the Most Holy Place. The end of the staves might be seen in the holy of holies, but not in the outer sanctuary.

4 The oracle was entirely dark. The staves being thus drawn out into the holy place, would guide the high priest when he entered, as well as be a testimony that the ark was there. The ark now came to its resting-place.

7 For the cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark and the staves thereof above.

8 And they drew out the staves, that the ends of the staves were seen out in the holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are unto this day.

9 There was nothing [n] in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses [r] put there at Horeb, when the LORD [s] made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place, that [t] the cloud filled the house of the LORD,

11 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of the LORD.

12 Then spake Solomon, [u] The LORD said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

13 I have [w] surely built thee an house to dwell in, [x] a settled place for thee to abide in for ever.

14 And the king turned his face about, and [y] blessed all the congregation of Israel: (and all the congregation of Israel stood:)

15 And he said, [z] Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which spake with his mouth unto David my father, and hath with his hand fulfilled it, saying,

16 Since [a] the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel to build an house, that [b] my name might be therein; but [c] I chose David to be over my people Israel.

17 And it was in the heart of David my father [d] to build an house for the name of the LORD God of Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto David my father, [e] Whereas it was in thine heart to build an house unto my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart:

19 Nevertheless [f] thou shalt not build the house; but thy son, that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.

20 And the LORD [l]hath performed his word that he spake; and I am risen up in the room of David my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built an house for the name of the LORD God of Israel.

21 And [m]I have set there a place for the ark, wherein is [n]the covenant of the LORD, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And Solomon [o]stood before the altar of the LORD, in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread[p] forth his hands toward heaven:

23 And he said, [q]LORD God of Israel, there is [r]no god like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who[s] keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that [t]walk before thee with all their heart;

24 Who hast kept with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him: [u]thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

25 Therefore now, LORD God of Israel, [v]keep with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him, saying, There[1] shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit on the throne of Israel; so[2] that [w]thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me.

26 And now, [x]O God of Israel, [y]let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

27 But [z]will God indeed dwell on the earth?[3] Behold, [a]the heaven, and heaven of heavens,[4] cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded!

28 Yet [b]have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to [c]hearken unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee to-day:

29 That [d]thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, [e]My name shall be there; that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make [1]toward this place.

30 And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, [f]when they shall pray toward[2] this place:[3] [g]and hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place; and when thou hearest, [h]forgive.

31 ¶ If any man[4] [i]trespass against his neighbour, and an oath[5] be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and [k]the oath come before thine altar[6] in this house:

32 Then [l]hear thou in heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, [m]condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and [n]justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

33 ¶ When thy people Israel be [o]smitten down before the enemy, [p]because they have sinned against thee, and shall [q]turn again to thee, and confess thy name, and [r]pray, and make supplication unto thee in[7] this house:

34 Then hear thou in heaven, and [s]forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land [t]which thou gavest unto their fathers.

35 ¶ When [u]heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; [v]if they pray toward this place, and [w]confess thy name, and [x]turn from their sin, when thou afflictest them:

36 Then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, that [y]thou teach them [z]the good way wherein they should walk, and [a]give rain upon thy land which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.

37 ¶ If there be [b]in the land famine, if there be pestilence, blasting,[8] mildew, locust, or if there be caterpillar; if their enemy besiege them in the land of their cities;[9] whatsoever plague, whatsoever sickness there be;

38 What [c]prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man [d]the plague of his own heart, and [e]spread forth his hands toward this house:

39 Then [f]hear thou in heaven thy

3 This question breathes the language of veneration and astonishment, not unmingled with holy, humble delight. He is struck with the immensity, the dignity, the surpassing grandeur of the Divine Being, but especially with his condescension indwelling with men. Yet when we think of 'God manifest in the flesh, we see this marvellous truth embodied, even in the person of Him who was 'Emmanuel, God with us.' Both the tabernacle & temple were types of him, and all prayer, to be acceptable, must be offered unto God through him alone.

4 All the words are plural, 'the heavens, even heavens of heavens,' which some consider as expressing a plurality of worlds, in the creation of which the infinite God may be perpetually engaged; an idea, which the sublime discoveries of modern astronomy invest with surpassing grandeur. The solemn testimony given by Solomon to the grand truth of the spirituality and omnipresence of Jehovah, was peculiarly appropriate on an occasion when the people, with their carnal notions, would be tempted to limit his presence to the gorgeous temple, where the symbol of it was henceforth to be enshrined.

dwelling-place, and forgive, and do, and [g]give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for [h]thou, even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men;)

40 That they may [i]fear thee all the days that they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

41 ¶ Moreover, concerning [k]a stranger, that is not of thy people Israel, but [l]cometh out of a far country for thy name's sake;

42 (For [m]they shall hear of thy [n]great name, and of [o]thy strong hand, and of thy stretched-out arm;) [p]when he shall come and pray toward this house:

43 Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for; [q]that all people of the earth may know thy name, to [r]fear thee, as do thy people Israel; and that they may know that this[1] house, which I have builded, is called by thy name.

44 ¶ If thy people [s]go out to battle against their enemy, [t]whithersoever thou shalt send them, and [u]shall pray unto the LORD toward[2] [v]the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name:

45 Then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their cause.[3]

46 If they sin against thee, (for [w]there is no man that sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives [x]unto the land of the enemy, far or near;

47 Yet [y]if they shall bethink[4] themselves in the land whither they were carried captives, and repent, and make supplication unto thee in the land of them that carried them captives, [z]saying, We have sinned, and have [a]done perversely, we have committed wickedness;

48 And so [b]return unto thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies which led them away captive, and [c]pray unto thee toward their land which thou gavest unto their fathers, [d]the city which thou hast chosen, and the house[5] which I have built for thy name:

49 Then [e]hear thou their prayer and their supplication in heaven thy dwelling-place, and maintain their cause,[1]

50 And forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee, [f]and give them compassion before them who carried them captive, that they may have compassion on them:

51 For they be [g]thy people, and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest forth out of Egypt, from the midst of [h]the furnace of iron:

52 That [i]thine eyes may be open unto the supplication of thy servant, and unto the supplication of thy people Israel, to hearken unto them [k]in all that they call for unto thee.[2]

53 For thou didst [l]separate them from among all the people of the earth, to be [m]thine inheritance, [n]as thou spakest by the hand of Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord GOD.

54 ¶ And it was so, that [o]when Solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication unto the LORD, he arose from before the altar of the LORD, from [p]kneeling on his knees [q]with his hands spread up to heaven.

55 And he stood, and [r]blessed all the congregation of Israel with a loud voice, saying,

56 [s]Blessed be the LORD, that [t]hath given rest unto his people Israel, according to all that he promised: [u]there hath not failed[3] one word of all his good promise, which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant.

57 The [v]LORD our God be with us, as he was with our fathers: let him not leave us, nor forsake us;

58 That he may [w]incline[4] our hearts unto him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep [x]his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, which he commanded our fathers.

59 And let these my words,[5] wherewith I have made supplication before the LORD, be [y]nigh unto the LORD our God day and night, that he maintain the cause of his servant, and the cause

5 In the East this is called the kebla, or point where the Deity is supposed to be peculiarly manifested. Among the Mahometans it is Mecca, among the ancient Magians it was the east, among the Sabians the meridian, &c. Perhaps it was with a view to prevent the identification of the worship of Jehovah with that of the sun in the east, that the Jewish kebla was fixed at the opposite point, for the sanctuary fronted the east, so that the worshipper there turned his back on the Magian kebla. In every Jewish synagogue the principal door is placed at, or near, the point of the compass supposed to be opposite to the direction of Jerusalem.

2 This intercession was answered in the restoration of the Jews from Babylonish captivity; for it was in this very way it was brought about, Da. 9. 1-19. But it will hereafter receive another more remarkable answer, when the remnant of Israel shall be gathered into the church of Christ. It is very instructive to compare the several parts of this prayer with the preceding prophecies and the subsequent history, which may be partly done by consulting the numerous marginal references.

4 'No blessing can be expected so long as men continue wilfully disobedient. No human heart is of itself inclined to obey the call to repentance, faith, and newness of life. The first benefit communicated to sinners, through the intercession of him whom Solomon typified, is "the inclining of the heart to this obedience." Yet Solomon afterwards (ver. 61) exhorted the people to be perfect with the Lord, and this is the scriptural method, though to many it appears inconsistent: but the exhortation reminds men of their duty; and the prayer or promise shows how they may be enabled to do it.'—Scott.

61 Let your heart therefore be [c]perfect[2] with the LORD our God, to walk in his statutes, and to keep his commandments, as at this day.

62 ¶ And [d]the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the LORD.

63 And Solomon offered [e]a sacrifice of peace-offerings, which he offered unto the LORD, two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep:[3] so the king and all the children of Israel [f]dedicated the house of the LORD.

64 The same day did the king [g]hallow the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and meat offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings; because [h]the brazen altar that was before the LORD was too little to receive the burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings.

65 ¶ And at that time Solomon [i]held a feast, and all Israel with him, [k]a great congregation, [l]from the entering in of Hamath unto [m]the river of Egypt, before the LORD our God, [n]seven days and seven days, even fourteen days.[4]

66 On [o]the eighth day he sent the people away: and they blessed[5] the king, and went unto their tents joyful[p] and glad of heart, for all the goodness that the LORD had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

5 As it is supposed Solomon could not have alienated any part of the national inheritance, these places were perhaps beyond its original boundaries, and one of the recent conquests of David in the neighbourhood of Tyre.

3 And the LORD said unto him, 'I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication that thou hast made before me: [f]I have hallowed this house which thou hast built, [g]to put my name there for ever; and [h]mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually.

4 And [i]if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments;

5 Then [k]I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel for ever, as I promised to David thy father, saying, There shall not fail thee a man upon the throne of Israel.

6 But [l]if ye shall at all turn[1] from following me, you or your children, and will not keep my commandments, and my statutes, which I have set before you, but [m]go and serve other gods, and worship them;

7 Then [n]will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them: and [o]this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight; and [p]Israel shall be a proverb and a by-word[2] among all people:

8 And at [q]this house, which is [3]high, every one that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss; and they shall say, [r]Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and to this house?

9 And they shall answer, [s]Because they forsook the LORD their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken [4]hold upon other gods, and have worshipped them, and served them; therefore hath the LORD brought upon them all this evil.

10 ¶ And it came to pass [t]at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD, and the king's house,

11 (Now [u]Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar-trees, and fir-trees, and with gold, according to all his desire,) that then [v]king Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land [w]of Galilee.

12 And Hiram came out from Tyre to see the cities which Solomon had given him; and they[1] pleased him[2] not.

13 And he said, What cities are these which thou hast given me, [z]my brother? And he called them the land of Cabul[3] unto this day.

14 And Hiram [y]sent to the king six-score talents of gold.[4]

15 ¶ And this is [z]the reason of the levy[5] which king Solomon raised; for to [a]build the house of the LORD, and his own house, and [b]Millo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and [c]Hazor, and Megiddo,[d] and [e]Gezer.

16 For Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and taken Gezer, and burnt it with fire, and slain the Canaanites that dwelt in the city, and given it for a present unto his [f]daughter, Solomon's wife.

17 And Solomon built Gezer, and Beth-horon[g] the nether,

18 And [h]Baalath, and [i]Tadmor in the wilderness, in the land,

19 And all [k]the cities of store that Solomon had, and cities for his chariots, and cities for his horsemen, and that[6] which Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion.

20 ¶ And all the people that were left[l] of the [m]Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel, 21 Their children [n]that were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel also were [o]not able utterly to destroy, upon those did Solomon [p]levy a tribute [q]of bond-service unto this day.

22 But [r]of the children of Israel did Solomon make no [s]bond-men: but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and his captains, and rulers of his chariots, and his horsemen.

23 These were the [t]chief of the officers that were over Solomon's work, five hundred and fifty,[7] which bare rule over the people that wrought in the work.

24 ¶But [u]Pharaoh's daughter came up out of [v]the city of David unto her house which Solomon had built for her: then did he build [w]Millo.

25 ¶ And [x]three times in a year did Solomon offer burnt-offerings and peace-offerings upon the altar which he built unto the LORD, and he [y]burnt incense upon[1] the altar that was before the LORD: [z]so he finished the house.

26 ¶ And king Solomon [a]made a navy of ships in [b]Ezion-geber,[2] which is beside [c]Eloth, on the shore[3] of the Red sea, in the land of Edom.

27 And Hiram sent in the navy [d]his servants, shipmen that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon.

28 And they came to [e]Ophir,[4] and fetched from thence gold, [f]four hundred and twenty talents, and brought it to king Solomon.

CHAPTER X.

The queen of Sheba admireth the wisdom of Solomon, 1—13. Solomon's yearly revenue in gold, 14, 15. His targets, 16, 17. The throne of ivory, 18—20. His vessels, 21—23. His presents, 24, 25. His chariots and horsemen, 26, 27. His tribute, 28, 29.

AND [a]when the queen of [b]Sheba [c]heard of the fame of Solomon, [d]concerning the name of the LORD, she came [e]to prove him with hard questions.

2 And she came to Jerusalem with [f]a very great train, with camels that bare [g]spices, and very much gold, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she [h]communed with him of all that was in her heart.

3 And Solomon [i]told her all her questions:[5] there was not any [k]thing hid from the king, which he told her not.

4 And when the queen of Sheba had seen all [l]Solomon's wisdom, and [m]the house that he had built,

5 And [n]the meat of his table, and the sitting of his servants,[6] and the attendance[7] of his ministers, and their apparel, and his cup-bearers,[8] and his [o]ascent by which he went up unto the house of the LORD; [p]there was no more spirit in her.

6 And she said to the king, It was a true report[9] that I heard in mine own land of thy acts,[10] and of thy wisdom.

7 Howbeit [q]I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it; and, behold, the half was not told me: thy wisdom[11] and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard.

Yet the precise meaning of 'Cabul' is doubtful. It is Josephus who says that in the Phœnician language it signified 'displeasing.' The Sept. has 'border-land.' Michaelis gives us an Arabic etymology, 'land given for a debt.'

4 After all that has been written regarding the precise locality of Ophir, there seems no good reason why it should not be identified with that district, in the south of Arabia, that fell to the descendants of Ophir, one of the sons of Joktan, Ge. 10. 29. If gold is not found there now, we have the testimony of Greek writers that it was found in ancient times; or by 'gold of Ophir,' we need only understand gold obtained there in the way of trade, just as we speak of 'Mocha coffee,' though no coffee is raised within many miles of that place. The three years' duration of the voyage is no where mentioned in connection with Ophir alone.

8 Happy are thy men, [q]happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and that hear thy wisdom.

9 [r]Blessed be the LORD thy God, which [s]delighted in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel: [t]because the LORD loved Israel for ever, therefore made he thee king, [u]to do judgment and justice.[1]

10 And [v]she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold,[2] and of [w]spices very great store, [x]and precious stones: there came no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon.

11 And the navy also of Hiram, that brought gold from [y]Ophir, brought in from Ophir great plenty of [z]almug-trees,[3] and precious stones.

12 And the king made of the almug-trees pillars[4] for the house of the LORD, and for the king's house, [a]harps also and psalteries for singers: there came no such almug-trees, nor were seen unto this day.

13 And king Solomon gave[5] unto the queen of Sheba [b]all her desire, whatsoever she asked, besides that which[6] Solomon gave her of his royal bounty: so she turned, and went to her own country,[7] she and her servants.

14 ¶ Now the weight of gold[8] that came to Solomon in one year [c]was six hundred threescore and six talents of gold,

15 Besides that he had of the merchant-men, and of the traffic of the spice-merchants, and of [d]all the kings of Arabia,[9] and of the governors[10] of the country.

16 ¶ And king Solomon made [e]two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hundred shekels of gold went to one target.

17 And he made three hundred shields of beaten gold; three pound of gold went to one shield: and the king put them [f]in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

18 ¶ Moreover, the king made [g]a great throne of [h]ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold.

19 The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round behind:[11] and there were stays[12] on either side on the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the stays.

20 And twelve [i]lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps: there was not the[1] like made in any kingdom.[2]

21 ¶ And all king Solomon's [k]drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of [l]the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; [3]none were of silver: it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

22 For the king had at sea a navy of [m]Tharshish with the navy of Hiram: once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, ivory,[4] and apes, and [n]peacocks.

23 So king Solomon [o]exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom.

24 ¶ And all the earth sought [5]to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, [p]which God had put in his heart.

25 And they brought [q]every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, [r]and mules, [s]a rate year by year.

26 ¶ And [t]Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen: and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he bestowed [u]in the cities for chariots, and with the king at Jerusalem.

27 And [v]the king made[6] silver to be in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars made he to be as the sycamore-trees that are in the vale, for abundance.

28 ¶ And Solomon[7] had [w]horses brought out of Egypt, [x]and linen[8] yarn: the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

29 And a chariot came up and went out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty: and so for all [y]the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, did they bring them out by [9]their means.

8 This is one of the most obscure places in the Bible. The translation of linen yarn' is held to be inadmissible, though it is not so easy to say what should be substituted. The Gr. and Lat. take it for the name of a place or district, 'Coa;' Bochart, for a 'toll or custom;' Dathe, for a purchased 'privilege;' Houbigant, (by a conjectural emendation,) for 'chariots.' The nearest sense to the original seems to be, that a caravan of the king's mercantile agents were in the habit of bringing from Egypt, troops or studs of horses, with chariots, which they received at a price fixed by contract, viz. about £18 15s. for a horse, and £75 for a chariot. After retaining what he required for himself, his factors sold (doubtless at a high profit,) the remainder to the neighbouring princes. Royal monopolies are very common in the East; and Solomon might more easily procure this privilege in Egypt, as the king's son-in-law.

9 Rezon or Hezion had deserted his master when he was attacked by David, 2 Sa. 8. 3. As David put a garrison in Damascus, (2 Sa. 8. 6,) the events now mentioned must have happened towards the end of Solomon's reign. Rezon had abhorred Israel from the first, but probably he did not appear as Solomon's adversary till he had provoked the Lord by his idolatries.

13 Howbeit [y]I will not rend away all the kingdom; but will give [z]one tribe to thy son [a]for David my servant's sake,[1] and [b]for Jerusalem's sake, which I have chosen.

14 ¶ And [c]the LORD stirred up [d]an adversary[2] unto Solomon, Hadad the Edomite: he was of the king's seed[3] in Edom.

15 For it came to pass, [e]when David was in Edom, and Joab the captain of the host was gone up to bury the [4]slain, [f]after he had smitten [g]every male in Edom,

16 (For six months did Joab remain there with all Israel, until he had cut off every male in Edom,)

17 That Hadad fled, he, and certain Edomites of his father's servants with him, to go into Egypt; [h]Hadad being yet a little child.[5]

18 And they arose out of [i]Midian, and came to [k]Paran: and they took men with them out of Paran, and they came to Egypt, unto Pharaoh king of Egypt; which gave him an house, and appointed him victuals, and gave him land.

19 And Hadad [l]found great favour in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him to wife the sister of his own wife, the sister of [m]Tahpenes the queen.

20 And the sister of Tahpenes bare him Genubath his son, whom Tahpenes [n]weaned in Pharaoh's house: and Genubath was in Pharaoh's household among the sons of Pharaoh.

21 And when Hadad [o]heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab the captain of the host was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, Let[6] me depart, that I may go to mine own country.

22 Then Pharaoh said unto him, [p]But what hast thou lacked with me, that, behold, thou seekest to go to thine own country? And he answered, Nothing:[7] howbeit [q]let me go in any wise.[8]

23 ¶ And [r]God stirred him up another adversary, Rezon the son of Eliadah, which fled from his lord [s]Hadadezer king of Zobah.[9]

24 And he gathered men unto him, and became captain over a band, when

David slew them of Zobah: and they went to [t]Damascus, and dwelt therein, and reigned in Damascus.

25 And he was an adversary to Israel [u]all the days of Solomon, besides the mischief that Hadad did: and he [v]abhorred Israel, and reigned over Syria.[1]

26 ¶ And [w]Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [x]an Ephrathite of Zereda, Solomon's[y] servant, (whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow woman,) even he lifted up his hand against the king.

27 And this was the cause that he lifted[z] up his hand against the king: Solomon[a] built Millo, and repaired[2] the[b] breaches of [c]the city of David his father.

28 And the man Jeroboam was a mighty man of valour: and Solomon seeing the young man that he [3]was industrious, [d]he made him ruler over all the charge[4] of [e]the house of Joseph.[5]

29 And it came to pass at that time, when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet [f]Ahijah the [g]Shilonite[6] found him in the way; and he had clad himself with a new garment: [h]and they two were alone in the field:

30 And Ahijah caught the new garment that was on him, and [i]rent it in twelve pieces.[7]

31 And he said to Jeroboam, Take thee ten pieces; for [k]thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee:

32 (But [l]he shall have one tribe for my servant David's sake, and [m]for Jerusalem's sake, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:)

33 Because that [n]they have forsaken[8] me, and have worshipped [o]Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the children of Ammon, and have not walked in my ways, to do that which is right in mine eyes, and to keep my statutes and my judgments, as did David his father.

5 Jeroboam, having been employed in superintending the builders at Jerusalem, so distinguished himself by capacity and industry, that Solomon preferred him to a post of considerable authority and influence. He either placed him over the tribute collected from the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, or made him superintendent of the levy sent from them by courses to assist in his works. This advancement, probably from a low situation, opened vast prospects to his ambitious mind: & he seems to have excited & encouraged the discontent of the people, on account of the burdens laid on them. Perhaps he was plotting an open revolt; at least he joined the disaffected party; and thus he might be said to 'lift up his hand against the king;' though his designs were not carried into effect till after Solomon's death.

which stood before him:

9 And he said unto them, [i]What counsel give ye, that we may answer this people who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter?

10 And the young men that were grown up with him spake unto him, saying, [k]Thus shalt thou speak unto this people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy,[5] but make thou it lighter unto us; thus shalt thou say unto them, [l]My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins.[6]

11 And now whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, [m]I will add to your yoke: my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with [n]scorpions.[7]

12 ¶ So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying, [o]Come to me again the third day.

The Rabbins think that the scorpion was a scourge composed of knotted and thorny twigs. Isidore, and after him Calmet, assert that it was a sort of severe whip, the lashes of which were armed with iron points, while others say it was a long bag of leather, filled with sand, and stuck full of spikes.

But the whole of this territory, which was now called the kingdom of Judah, included scarcely a fourth part of Solomon's dominion. Yet it would appear that the population of the two tribes that adhered to the house of David, was almost equal to that of the other ten.

13 And the king [p]answered the people roughly,[1] and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him;

14 And spake to them after [q]the counsel of the young men, saying, [r]My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

15 Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; for [s]the cause was from the LORD,[2] [t]that he might perform his saying, which the LORD spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

16 ¶ So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, [u]What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: [v]to your tents, O Israel. [w]Now see to thine own house, David. [x]So Israel departed unto their tents.

17 But as for [y]the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of [3]Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

18 Then king Rehoboam sent [z]Adoram,[4] who was over the tribute; and [a]all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died: therefore king Rehoboam made[5] speed to get him up to his chariot, to [b]flee to Jerusalem.

19 So [c]Israel rebelled[6] against the house of David [d]unto this day.

20 ¶ And it came to pass, when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they sent and called him unto the congregation, [e]and made him king over all Israel:[7] there was [f]none that followed the house of David but the tribe of Judah only.

21 ¶ And [g]when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah, with the tribe of Benjamin, [h]an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam the son of Solomon.

22 But the word of God came unto [i]Shemaiah [k]the man of God, saying,

23 Speak unto Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and unto all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the remnant of the people, saying,

24 Thus saith the LORD, [l]Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: return every man to his house; [m]for this thing is from me.[1] [n]They hearkened therefore to the word of the LORD, and returned to depart, according to the word of the LORD.

25 ¶ Then Jeroboam [o]built [p]Shechem in mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein; and went out from thence, and built Penuel.[2]

26 ¶ And Jeroboam [r]said in his heart, [s]Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David:

27 If this people [t]go up to do sacrifice in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, then shall the heart of this people turn again unto their lord, even unto Rehoboam king of Judah, [u]and they shall kill me, and go again to Rehoboam king of Judah.

28 Whereupon the king [v]took counsel, and made [w]two calves of gold,[2] and said unto them, [x]It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: [y]behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

29 And he set the one in [z]Beth-el, and the other put he in [a]Dan.

30 And this thing [b]became a sin: for the people went to worship before the one, even unto Dan.

31 And he made [c]an house of high places, and made [d]priests of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sons of Levi.

32 And Jeroboam ordained a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, [e]like unto the feast that is in Judah; and he offered[3] upon the altar, (so did he in Beth-el,) sacrificing[4] unto the calves that he had made: and [f]he placed in Beth-el the priests of the high places which he had made.

33 So he offered[5] upon the altar which he had made in Beth-el the fifteenth day of the eighth month, even in [g]the month which he had devised of his own heart; and ordained a feast unto the children of Israel: and [h]he offered upon the altar, and burnt[6] incense.

2 This was a piece of deep and insidious policy. Jeroboam was afraid, not without reason, that if his subjects went three times a year to Jerusalem, as the law required, they would soon return to their allegiance to the house of David. He therefore set up two golden calves, one at each extremity of his kingdom, with the declared view of saving them the trouble of so long a journey, and this alone proves that the symbols were intended for the accommodation of the worshippers of Jehovah, who alone could have any inducement to undertake such a journey. Jeroboam seems to have taken up many Egyptian ideas during his stay in Egypt, & by these he was influenced in the selection of this symbol. He probably thought this was the least offensive contrivance by which his object could be attained, and in that object his successors also were so much interested, that they took care to keep up this symbolical worship. Some think these calves were the Apis and Mnevis of the Egyptians, designed to represent the two cherubim.

CHAPTER XIII.

Jeroboam's hand, that offered violence to him that prophesied a his altar at Beth-el, withereth, 1—5; and at the prayer of the phet is restored, 6. The prophet, refusing the king's enter ment, departeth from Beth-el, 7—10. An old prophet, see him, bringeth him back, 11—19. He is reproved by God, 20. slain by a lion, 23—25; buried by the old prophet, 26—30; confirmeth his prophecy, 31, 32. Jeroboam still persisteth evil courses, 33, 34.

AND, behold,[1] there came [a]a m of God[2] out of Judah [b]by the w of the LORD unto Beth-el: and [c]Je boam stood by the altar to burn [3]ince

2 And he cried[4] against the alta the word of the LORD, and said, altar, altar! thus saith the Lo Behold, a child shall be born unto house of David, [e]Josiah by name;[5] upon thee shall he offer the priests the high places that burn incense u thee, and men's bones shall be bu upon thee.

3 And [f]he gave a sign the same saying, This is the sign which the L hath spoken, Behold, the altar s be rent, and the ashes that are u it shall be poured out.

4 ¶ And it came to pass, when k Jeroboam heard the saying of the of God, which had cried against altar in Beth-el, that he put forth hand from the altar, saying, [g]Lay on him. And [h]his hand, which he forth against him, dried up, so tha could not pull it in again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and ashes poured out from the altar, [i]acc ing to the sign which the man God had given by the word of LORD.

6 And the king answered and unto the man of God, [k]Entreat the face[6] of the LORD thy God, pray for me, that my hand may restored me again. [l]And the man God besought the LORD,[7] and the k hand was restored him again, became as it was before.

7 ¶ And the king said unto the of God, Come home with me, [m]refresh thyself, [n]and I will give th reward.

8 And the man of God said the king, [o]If thou wilt give me thine house, [p]I will not go in thee, neither will I eat bread nor d water in this place:

word of the LORD, saying, [r]Eat no bread, nor drink water,[1] nor turn again by the same way that thou camest.

10 So he went another way, and returned not by the way that he came to Beth-el.

11 ¶ Now there dwelt [s]an old prophet in Beth-el; and his sons[2] [t]came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Beth-el: the words which he had spoken unto the king, them they told also to their father.

12 And their father said unto them, What way went he? for his sons had seen what way the man of God went which came from Judah.

13 And he said unto his sons, [u]Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him the ass: and he rode thereon,

14 And went after the man of God, and found him [v]sitting under an oak: and he said unto him, [w]Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah? And he said, I am.

15 Then he said unto him, Come home with me, and eat bread.

16 And he said, [x]I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee; neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place:

17 For it was[3] said to me [y]by the word of the LORD, Thou shalt eat no bread nor drink water there, nor turn again to go by the way that thou camest.

18 He said unto him, I am a prophet also as thou art: and [z]an angel spake unto me by the word of the LORD, saying, Bring him back with thee into thine house, that he may eat bread and drink water. [a]But he lied unto him.

19 So [b]he went back with him, and did eat bread in his house, and drank water.

20 ¶ And it came to pass, as they sat at the table, that [c]the word of the LORD came unto the prophet that brought him back:[4]

21 And he cried unto the man of God that came from Judah, saying, Thus[d] saith the LORD, Forasmuch as thou[e] hast disobeyed the mouth of the LORD, and hast not kept the commandment which the LORD thy God commanded thee,

22 But camest back, and hast eaten bread and drunk water in the place of the which the LORD did say to thee, Eat no bread, and drink no water; thy carcase shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, after he had eaten bread, and after he had drunk, that he saddled for him the ass, to wit, for the prophet whom he had brought back.

24 And when he was gone, [g]a [1]lion met him by the way, and slew him; and his carcase was cast in the way, and the ass stood by it, the lion also stood by the carcase.

25 And, behold, men passed by, and saw the carcase cast in the way, and the lion standing by the carcase: and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt.

26 ¶ And when the prophet that brought him back from the way heard thereof, he said, It is [h]the man of God, who was disobedient unto the word of the LORD; therefore the LORD hath delivered him unto the lion,[2] which hath torn[3] him, and slain him, according to the word of the LORD which he spake unto him.

27 And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him.

28 And he went, and found his carcase cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcase: [i]the lion had not eaten the carcase, nor torn[4] the ass.

29 And the prophet took up the carcase of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back: and the old prophet came to the city to mourn, and to bury him.

30 And he laid his carcase in his own grave: and they [k]mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother![5]

4 'A great clamour has been raised against this part of the history, on account of God's denouncing sentence on the true by the mouth of the false prophet; but if we examine with attention the original words here, they will be found to signify, either he who brought him back, or whom he had brought back,—for the very same words occur again, ver. 23, where they are now translated, whom he had brought back,—and where they cannot be translated otherwise. This being the case, we are at liberty to consider the word of the Lord as delivered to the true prophet, thus brought back; and then the sentence is pronounced by God himself, calling out of heaven, as in Ge. 22. 11. And that this doom was thus pronounced by God, not by the false prophet, we are assured in ver. 26, 'The Lord hath delivered him unto the lion, according to the word of the Lord which He spake unto him. Josephus, [and also the Arabic,] expressly asserts, that the sentence was declared by God to the true prophet.' —Kennicott. This is very ingenious, yet it scarcely accords with what follows in ver. 21; but why may not God have employed a wicked man in denouncing his judgment? more especially as in so doing, he also published the shame of his own impious imposture.

1 In 2 Ki. 2. 24, we find that there was a wood near Bethel, out of which came two she-bears; and it is probable that this lion came from the same wood. All the circumstances of this transaction, 'the cluster of miracles,' (as Patrick calls them,) viz. that the lion did not devour the body, nor rend the ass, nor molest the passing travellers, nor the old prophet and his ass—all was calculated in the most striking manner, to direct the attention of the people to that divine power which thus authenticated its own message by the very destruction of the messenger; and all counteracted the inference which Jeroboam might otherwise have drawn from his death against the truth of his prophecy.

5 The final judgment of the disobedient prophet was not merely a personal punishment of the messenger, but was necessary to vindicate the character of the message, which had been compromised by his disobedience. Here we have at once a pattern and a warning to ministers. It is theirs to declare God's whole counsel without fear or favour. He will protect them, and his word shall not return to him void. But on the other hand, let us learn not to regard what men say in religious matters, without good evidence, especially when they pretend to extraordinary illuminations.

CHAPTER XIV.

Abijah, being sick, Jeroboam sendeth his wife disguised with presents to the prophet Ahijah at Shiloh, 1—4. Ahijah, forewarned by God, denounceth God's judgments, 5—16. Abijah dieth, and is buried, 17, 18. Nadab succeedeth Jeroboam, 19, 20. Rehoboam's wicked reign, 21—24. Shishak spoileth Jerusalem, 25—28. Abijam succeedeth Rehoboam, 29—31.

AT [a]that time Abijah [b]the son of Jeroboam fell sick.

2 And Jeroboam said to his wife, Arise, I pray thee, and [c]disguise thyself, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam, and get thee to Shiloh; behold, there is [d]Ahijah the prophet, which told me that I should be king over this people.

3 And [e]take with thee[4] ten loaves, and cracknels,[5] and a cruse[6] of honey, and go to him: [f]he shall tell thee what shall become of the child.

4 And Jeroboam's wife did so, and arose, and went to [g]Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah: but Ahijah could not see; [h]for his eyes were [7]set by reason of his age.

5 And [i]the LORD said unto Ahijah, Behold, the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son; for he is sick: thus and thus shalt thou say unto her; for it shall be, when she cometh in, that she shall feign herself to be another woman.

6 And it was so, when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, that he said, Come in, thou [k] wife of Jeroboam; [l]why feignest thou thyself to be another? [m]for I am sent to thee with heavy[8] tidings.

7 Go, tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel; [n]Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel,

8 And [o]rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it thee; and yet thou hast not been as [p]my servant David, who kept my commandments, and who followed me with all his heart, to do that only which was right in mine eyes;

9 But [q]hast done evil above all that were before thee: for [r]thou hast gone and made thee other gods, and molten images, [s]to provoke me to anger, and hast [t]cast me behind thy back;

10 Therefore, behold, [u]I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut off from Jeroboam [v]him that pisseth against the wall, and [w]him that is shut up and left[1] in Israel, and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, [x]as a man taketh away dung, till it be all gone.

11 Him [y]that dieth of Jeroboam in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat: for the LORD hath spoken it.

12 Arise thou therefore, get thee to thine own house: and [z]when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die.

13 And all Israel [a]shall mourn for him, and bury him; for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him [b]there is found some good thing[2] toward the LORD God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

14 Moreover, [c]the LORD shall raise him up a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam that day: [d]but what? even now.[3]

15 For [e]the LORD shall smite Israel, [f]as a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall [g]root up Israel out of [h]this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and [i]shall scatter them beyond the river, [k]because they have made their groves, [l]provoking the LORD to anger.

16 And [m]he shall give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, [n]who did sin, and who made Israel to sin.

17 ¶ And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, and came to [o]Tirzah: and [p]when she came to the threshold of the door, the child died;[4]

4 Heb. in thine hand. It was customary to carry a present to a prophet when he was inquired of; see Note on 1 Sa. 9. 7. Patrick thinks this was designedly a poor present, to conceal the feigned character she had assumed; yet D' Arvieux mentions that when he waited on an Arab Emir, his mother and sister sent him a present of 'pastry, honey, & fresh butter, with a bason of sweetmeats of Damascus,' a present not unlike that of Jeroboam's wife to the prophet. And presents of provisions are still made in the East by persons in good circumstances, to others whom they respect. We need not therefore suppose that the queen thought the affectation of a very low condition necessary for her purpose.

1 This is the literal Hebrew. That it denotes 'entire destruction,' is certain, though the precise idea is rather obscure. De Dieu renders 'the married and the single;' Venema, 'the mighty and the weak;' Rosenmuller and Gesenius, 'the bond and the free.' It was a proverbial phrase, founded on the similar sound of the two words atzur and azub, the separate meaning of which must not be pressed too far. The sense is, that all Jeroboam's family should perish: not one escaping however carefully shut up and hidden from calamity, till the last remaining fragment should be extirpated.

19 ¶ And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, [q]how he warred, and how he reigned, behold, they are written [r]in the book of the chronicles[2] of the kings of Israel.

20 And the days which Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty years: and [s]he slept[3] with his fathers; and Nadab[t] his son reigned in his stead.

21 ¶ And Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. [u]Rehoboam was forty and one[4] years old when he began to reign; and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, [v]the city which the LORD did choose out of all the tribes of Israel, [w]to put his name there: and his mother's name was Naamah,[x] an Ammonitess.

22 And [y]Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and [z]they provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they had committed, [a]above all that their fathers had done.

23 For they also [b]built them high places, and images,[5] and [c]groves, on every high hill, and under every green tree.

24 And [d]there were also sodomites in the land: and they did according to all the abominations of the nations which the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

25 ¶ And it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that [e]Shishak[6] king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem:

26 And [f]he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he even took away all: and he took away all [g]the shields of gold which Solomon had made.

27 And king Rehoboam [h]made in their stead brazen shields, and committed them into the hands of the chief of the guard,[7] which kept the door of the king's house.

28 And it was so, when the king went into the house of the LORD, that the guard bare them, and brought them back into [i]the guard-chamber.

1 This had been mentioned at ver. 21, but it is here repeated as if to assign some reason for Rehoboam's great wickedness. She is supposed to have been the daughter of Shobni, one of the royal family of Ammon, who was kind to David during Absalom's rebellion, 2 Sa. 17. 27. David had himself married Maachah, the daughter of the king of Geshur, but the character of Absalom, her son, should have warned him and Solomon against such connections. As Solomon worshipped the gods of Ammon, (among others,) Naamah may have been one of his seducers to idolatry.

2 From here to the end of the second book of Kings, we have a history of the affairs of the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah; while in the second book of Chronicles, from the tenth chapter to the end, the parallel history refers almost exclusively to the affairs of Judah, the particulars of which are there given more in detail than in the books of Kings.

29 ¶ Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, [k]are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

30 And [l]there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days.

31 And [m]Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David: and [n]his mother's name was Naamah, an [1]Ammonitess: and [o]Abijam his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER XV.

Abijam's wicked reign, 1—6. Asa succeedeth him, 7, 8. Asa's good reign, 9—15. The war between Baasha and Asa causeth him to make a league with Benhadad, 16—22. Jehoshaphat succeedeth Asa, 23, 24. Nadab's wicked reign, 25, 26. Baasha conspiring against him, executeth Ahijah's prophecy, 27—30. Nadab's acts and death, 31, 32. Baasha's wicked reign, 33, 34.

NOW,[2] [a]in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam the son of Nebat reigned Abijam over Judah.

2 Three years reigned he in Jerusalem: and [b]his mother's name was [c]Maachah, the daughter of [d]Abishalom.

3 And he walked in [e]all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: [f]and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, as the heart of David his father.

4 Nevertheless, [g]for David's sake, did the LORD his God [h]give him a [3]lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, [i]and to establish Jerusalem;

5 Because [k]David did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, and turned not aside from any thing that he commanded him all the days of his life, [l]save only in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

6 And [m]there was war between Rehoboam[4] and Jeroboam all the days of his life.

7 ¶ Now [n]the rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? And [o]there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.

8 And [p]Abijam slept with his fathers; and they buried him in the city of David: and [q]Asa his son reigned in his stead.

9 ¶ And in the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Asa over Judah.

10 And forty and one years reigned he in Jerusalem: and his mother's[1] name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom.

11 And [r]Asa did that which was right in the eyes of the LORD, as did David his father.

12 And he took away [s]the sodomites out of the land, and removed [t]all the idols that his fathers had made.

13 And also [u]Maachah [v]his mother, even her he removed from being queen,[2] because she had made an idol in a grove: and Asa destroyed[3] her idol,[4] and[w] burnt it by [x]the brook Kidron.

14 But [y]the high places were not removed: nevertheless Asa's heart [z]was perfect[5] with the LORD all his days.

15 And [a]he brought in the things[6] which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, into the house of the LORD, silver, and gold, and vessels.

16 ¶ And [b]there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

17 And [c]Baasha king of Israel went up against Judah, and built [d]Ramah,[7] that [e]he might not suffer any to go out or come in to Asa king of Judah.

18 Then [f]Asa took all the silver and the gold that were left in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house, and delivered them into the hand of his servants; and king Asa sent them to [g]Ben-hadad, the son of Tabrimon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, that dwelt at Damascus,[h] saying,

19 There is a [i]league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent unto thee a present of silver and gold; come and [k]break thy league with Baasha king of Israel, that he may depart[8] from me.

20 So Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Asa, and sent the captains of the hosts which he had against the cities of Israel, and smote [l]Ijon, and [m]Dan, and [n]Abel-beth-maachah, and all [o]Cinneroth,[9] with all the land of Naphtali.

21 And it came to pass, [p]when Baasha heard thereof, that he left off building of Ramah, and dwelt in [q]Tirzah.

22 Then king Asa [r]made a proclamation throughout all Judah; (none was exempted;[1]) and they took away the stones of Ramah, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasha had builded; and king Asa built with them [s]Geba of Benjamin, and [t]Mizpah.

23 ¶ The [u]rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his might, and all that he did, and the cities which he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? Nevertheless [v]in the time of his old age[2] he was diseased in his feet.

24 And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and [w]Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead.

25 ¶ And [x]Nadab the son of Jeroboam began to reign[3] over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two years.

26 And [y]he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and [z]walked in the way of his father, and [a]in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

27 ¶ And [b]Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, [c]conspired against him: and Baasha smote him at [d]Gibbethon,[4] which belonged to the Philistines; (for Nadab and all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon;)

28 Even [e]in the third year of Asa king of Judah did Baasha slay him, and reigned in his stead.

29 And it came to pass, when he reigned, that he smote all the house of Jeroboam;[5] [f]he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed, until he had destroyed him, according unto the saying of the LORD, which he spake by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite:

30 Because of [g]the sins of Jeroboam which he sinned, and which he made Israel sin, by his provocation wherewith he provoked the LORD God of Israel to anger.

31 ¶ Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are [h]they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

32 And [i]there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

It denoted the first lady in rank in the kingdom, compare 1 Ki. 2.19. Thus in 2 Ki. 24. 12, 15, mention is made of Jehoiachim's mother, who in the parallel passage in Je. 29. 2. is called 'the queen.' So in Da. 5. 10. the 'queen' was not one of Belshazzar's wives, but his mother. The title of Oloo-kani, or great queen of the Krim Tartars, was a dignity conferred on some of his female relatives by the Khan: and in Abyssinia the title of Itegue, or king's mother, is not always held by the natural mother of the reigning monarch.

5 He doubtless left the dead bodies of Jeroboam's family unburied, as Ahijah had foretold (ch. 14. 9-14.) Baasha soon showed that his motive in this massacre was his own malice and ambition, and that, in gratifying his thirst for blood, he might secure his usurped authority; for though he roots out the sinners, he cleaves to their sins. Thus ungodly men are 'the rod of God's anger,' even when ripening themselves for his vengeance.

6 Baasha began to reign in the third year of Asa; and he reigned twenty-four years; yet he died, and was succeeded by Elah in the twenty-sixth year of Asa; (ch. 16. 8.) and in like manner Elah, who began to reign in the twenty-sixth year of Asa, & was killed in the twenty-seventh, is said to have reigned two years. Thus it is evident, that a part of a year is calculated as a whole year. In the Chinese annals, the whole year in which the king dies is ascribed to his reign.

CHAPTER XVI.

Jehu's prophecy against the house of Baasha, 1—4, 7. Elah succeedeth him, 5—7. Zimri conspiring against Elah succeedeth him, 8—10. Zimri executeth Jehu's prophecy, 11—14. Omri, made king by the soldiers, forceth Zimri desperately to burn himself, 15—20. The people being divided, Omri prevaileth against Tibni, 21, 22. Omri buildeth Samaria, 23, 24. His wicked reign, 25, 26. Ahab succeedeth him, 27, 28. Ahab's most wicked reign, 29—33. Joshua's curse fulfilled upon Hiel the builder of Jericho, 34.

THEN the word of the LORD came to [a]Jehu[2] the son of [b]Hanani against Baasha, saying,

2 Forasmuch as [c]I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince[3] over my people Israel, and [d]thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast[e] made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins;

3 Behold, I will take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house; and [f]will make thy house like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

4 Him that dieth of Baasha in the city [g]shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth of his in the fields shall the fowls of the air eat.

5 ¶ Now [h]the rest of the acts of Baasha, and what he did, and his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

6 So [i]Baasha slept with his fathers, and was buried in Tirzah:[4] and [k]Elah his son reigned in his stead.

7 And also[5] by [l]the hand of the prophet Jehu the son of Hanani came the word of the LORD against Baasha, and against his house, even for all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, in provoking him to anger [m]with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam; and [n]because he killed him.[6]

8 ¶ In the twenty and sixth year of Asa king of Judah began Elah the son of Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, two years.

9 And his servant Zimri (captain of half his chariots) [o]conspired against him, as he was in Tirzah, [p]drinking himself drunk[1] in the house of Arza, steward[2] of his house in Tirzah.

10 And [q]Zimri went in and smote him, and killed him, in the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and [r]reigned in his stead.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, when he began to reign, as soon as he sat on his throne, that [s]he slew all the house of Baasha: [t]he left him not one that pisseth against a wall, neither[3] of his kinsfolks, nor of his friends.

12 Thus did Zimri destroy all the house of Baasha, [u]according to the word of the LORD, which he spake against Baasha by[4] Jehu the prophet;

13 For all the sins of Baasha, and the sins[5] of Elah his son, by which they sinned, and by which they made Israel to sin, in provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger with their [v]vanities.

14 Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are [w]they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

15 ¶ In the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah did Zimri reign [x]seven days in Tirzah: and the people were [y]encamped against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines.

16 And the people that were encamped heard say, Zimri hath conspired, and hath also slain the king: wherefore all Israel made [z]Omri, the captain of the host, king over Israel that day in the camp.

17 And Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they [a]besieged Tirzah.[6]

18 And it came to pass, when Zimri saw that the city was taken, that he went into the palace of the king's house, [b]and burnt the king's house over him with fire,[7] and died,

19 For his sins which he sinned [c]in doing evil in the sight of the Lord, in walking in the way of Jeroboam, and [d]in his sin which he did, to make Israel to sin.

20 Now [e]the rest of the acts of Zimri, and his treason that he wrought, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

When Jeroboam mounted the throne of Israel, he made Shechem (in his own tribe of Ephraim,) his metropolis, but had a summer palace at Tirzah, which hence, in the history, shares with it the metropolitan dignity. From its following in the list in Joshua, the towns of Dor and Gilgal, it is supposed to have been in the tribe of Manasseh. Brochard, a traveller of the middle age, speaks of it as three hours E. of Samaria, but that is an unsupported, and improbable tradition. It seems to have become the principal seat of government till Omri built Samaria. It appears to have been pleasantly situated, as in Ca. 6. 4. it is said, 'Thou art beautiful, O my love, as Tirzah.'

1 'Let this be a warning to drunkards, that they know not but death may surprise them in that condition. Death easily comes upon men when they are drunk; besides the various diseases which men bring on themselves by hard drinking, which cut them off in the midst of their days. Men in that condition are more easily overcome by an enemy, and are more liable to bad accidents. Death comes terribly upon such, finding them in the act of sin, and incapacitated for any act of devotion; that day comes upon them unawares, as a thief, Lu. 21. 34.'—Henry.

5 There is a remarkable resemblance between the destruction of Baasha's family and Jeroboam's: the son of each reigned but about two years. They were both slain; there was no successor to either family; and both were slain, while the same city was besieged. Yet both Jeroboam & Baasha died in peace.

people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king; and half followed Omri.[1]

22 But the people that followed Omri prevailed against the people that followed Tibni the son of Ginath: so Tibni died, and Omri reigned.[2]

23 ¶ In the thirty and first year[3] of Asa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Israel, [g]twelve years: six years reigned he in Tirzah.

24 And he bought the hill Samaria[4] of Shemer for two talents of silver, and built on the hill, and called [h]the name of the city which he built, after the name of Shemer, owner of the hill, Samaria.[5]

25 ¶ But Omri wrought evil in the eyes of the LORD, and [i]did worse than all that were before him.

26 For [k]he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin, to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger with [l]their vanities.

27 Now [m]the rest of the acts of Omri which he did, and his might that he shewed, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

28 So Omri [n]slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria: and Ahab his son reigned in his stead.

29 ¶ And in the thirty and eighth year of Asa king of Judah began Ahab the son of Omri to reign over Israel: and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel [o]in Samaria twenty and two years.

30 And Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD [p]above all that were before him.

31 And it came to pass, as[6] if it had been [q]a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, that he [r]took to wife [s]Jezebel, the daughter of Ethbaal,[7] king of [t]the Zidonians, [u]and went and [v]served Baal, and worshipped him.

32 And he reared up an altar for Baal in [w]the house of Baal, which he had built in Samaria.

33 And Ahab [x]made a grove; and Ahab [y]did more to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel that were before him.

1 The army, encamped before Gibbethon, chose Omri, their commander, king; but it seems either that some of them were afterwards disgusted by him; or, that the principal persons, who were absent, disapproved of this measure, and set up Tibni against him. As the war lasted four years, numbers no doubt were cut off on both sides, before the contest ended with the death of Tibni, who was probably slain in battle.

2 How much is contained in this concise sentence! and similar contests continually terminate in the same manner. It is an epitome of the history of most civil wars.

3 'He reigned 12 years, not from this 31st year of Asa, (for he died in Asa's 38th year, ver. 28, 29,) but from the beginning of his reign, which was in Asa's 27th year, ver. 15. 16. So he reigned 4 years in a state of war with Tibni, & 8 years peaceably.'

g ver. 8, 29.

4 The destruction of the palace at Tirzah, induced Omri to found a new capital. Some confound Samaria with Shechem; but it is now commonly identified with a locality about 8 miles N. of that place, and about 45 miles N. of Jerusalem. It remained the capital of Israel so long as that kingdom lasted, and perished along with it. Dr Richardson says, 'The situation is extremely beautiful, and strong by nature, more so, I think, than Jerusalem. It stands on a fine large insulated hill, compassed all round by a broad, deep valley, and when fortified, (as it is stated to have been by Herod,) one would have imagined that in the ancient system of warfare, nothing but famine could have reduced it.'

1 As Jericho never seems to have been wholly depopulated, (Ju. 1. 16; 3. 13; 2 Sa. 10. 5,) we are to understand by 'building' here, the fortifying it with walls and gates. Thus in 2 Ch. 14. 6, 7, Asa is said to have built cities in Judah, which is explained by 'making about them walls and towers, gates and bars.' Hiel, being enticed to idolatry at Bethel, set God's curse at defiance, but the consequence was the loss of all his children, the eldest dying at the commencement of his impious attempt, and the youngest on its completion.

CHAPTER XVII.

Elijah, having prophesied against Ahab, is sent to Cherith, the ravens feed him, 1—7. He is sent to a widow of Zarephath, 8—16. He raiseth the widow's son: the woman believeth him —24;

AND Elijah[2] the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, [a]As the LORD God of Israel liveth, [b]before whom I stand, there shall not be [c]dew nor rain[3] these years, but according to my word.

2 And [d]the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,

3 Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and [e]hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

4 And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook: and [f]I have commanded the ravens[4] to feed thee there.

5 So he went, and [g]did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

6 And [h]the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook.

7 And it came to pass, after a [5]while, that [i]the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

8 ¶ And [k]the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,

9 Arise, get thee to [l]Zarephath, [m]which belongeth to Zidon, and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a [n]widow woman[6] there to sustain thee.

10 So he arose, and went to Zarephath: and when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow woman was there gathering of sticks; and he called to her, and said, [o]Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.

11 And [p]as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, [q]a morsel of bread in thine hand.

12 And she said, [r]As the LORD thy God liveth, I have not a cake, [s]but il in a cruse: and, behold, I am gath-ring two sticks,[2] that I may go in nd dress it for me and my son, [t]that ve may eat it, and die.

13 And Elijah said unto her, [u]Fear ot; go and do as thou hast said: but make[v] me thereof a little cake [w]first, nd bring it unto me, and after make or thee and for thy son:

14 For [x]thus saith the LORD God of srael, [y]The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall the cruse of oil ail, until the day that the LORD send-th[3] rain upon the earth.

15 And she went, and [z]did according o the saying of Elijah: and she, and e, and her house, did eat many days.[4]

16 And [a]the barrel of meal wasted not,[5] neither did the cruse of oil fail, ccording[b] to the word of the LORD,
which he spake by[6] Elijah.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, after these hings, that [c]the son of the woman, he mistress of the house, fell sick;
nd his sickness was so sore, [d]that here was no breath left in him.

18 And she said unto Elijah, [e]What ave I to do with thee, [f]O thou man f God? [g]art thou come unto me to all my sin to remembrance,[7] and to lay my son?

19 And he said unto her, Give me
hy son. And he took him out of her osom, and carried him up [h]into a loft where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.

20 And [i]he cried unto the LORD, nd said, O LORD my God, [k]hast thou lso brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?

21 And [l]he stretched[8] himself upon he child three times, and cried unto he LORD, and said, [m]O LORD my God,
I pray thee, let this child's soul come into[9] him again.

22 And the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, [n]and he revived.

23 And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, [o]See, thy son liveth.

5 Heb. we cut not off ourselves from the beasts.

6 Where there is water in the East there is always grass and verdure. During an Eastern summer, even under its usual circumstances, the country is entirely dried up. As the hot season advances, vegetation disappears, every green herb is parched from the roots, unless where it is watered by streams or the labour of man. The fields, lately clothed with verdure, become a brown and arid wilderness. The fountains fail and the rivulets are dried up. If this is the common state of the country, we may easily suppose how exceedingly severe would be the effects of a third year's drought.

CHAPTER XVIII.

In the extremity of famine, Elijah sent to Ahab, meeteth good Obadiah, 1—8. Obadiah bringeth Ahab to Elijah, 9—16. Elijah, reproving Ahab by fire from heaven, conviceth Baal's prophets, 17—40. Elijah, by prayer obtaining rain, followeth Ahab to Jezreel, 41—46.

AND it came to pass [a]after many days, that the word of the LORD came to Elijah in [b]the third year, saying, [c]Go, shew thyself unto Ahab; and [d]I will send rain upon the earth.

2 And Elijah [e]went to shew himself unto Ahab: and there was [f]a sore famine in Samaria.

3 And Ahab called Obadiah,[2] which was the governor of his house:[3] (now Obadiah [g]feared the LORD greatly;

4 For it was so, when Jezebel[4] [h]cut off the prophets of the LORD, that Obadiah took an hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty [i]in a cave, and [k]fed them with [l]bread and water:)

5 And Ahab said unto Obadiah, Go into the land, unto all fountains of water, and unto all brooks; peradventure we may find [m]grass to save the horses and mules alive, that we[5] lose not all the beasts.[6]

6 So they divided the land between them, to pass throughout it: [n]Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

7 ¶ And as Obadiah [o]was in the way, behold, Elijah met him: and [p]he knew him, and [q]fell on his face, and said, Art thou that [r]my lord Elijah?

8 And he answered him, I am: go, tell [s]thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

9 And he said, [t]What have I sinned, that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me?

10 As [u]the LORD thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom [v]whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when they said, He is not there, he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that [w]they found thee not.

11 And now thou sayest, [x]Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

12 And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that [y]the Spirit of the LORD shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, [e]he shall slay me:[1] but I thy servant fear the LORD [f]from my youth.

13 Was it not told my lord [b]what I did, when Jezebel slew the prophets of the LORD, how I hid an hundred men of the LORD's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water?

14 And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here: and he shall slay me.

15 And Elijah said, [c]As the LORD of[d] hosts liveth, [e]before whom I stand, I will surely shew myself unto him today.

16 So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him: and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou [f]he that troubleth[2] Israel?

18 And he answered, [g]I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, [h]in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the LORD, and thou hast followed Baalim.

19 Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto [i]mount Carmel,[3] and [k]the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the [l]prophets of the groves[4] four hundred, which [m]eat at Jezebel's table.

20 So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets together unto mount Carmel.

21 ¶ And Elijah came unto all the people, and said, [n]How long halt ye between two opinions?[5] [o]if the LORD be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people [p]answered him not a word.

22 Then said Elijah unto the people, I, even [q]I only, remain[6] a prophet of the LORD; but [r]Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men.

23 Let them therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under; and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under:

24 And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the LORD; and the God that [s]answereth by fire,[1] let him be God. And all the people answered [t]and said, It is well spoken.[2]

25 And Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, Choose you one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under.

26 And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal [u]from morning even until noon, saying, O Baal, hear us![3] But there was [3]no voice, nor any that answered.[4] And they leaped[5] upon the altar[6] which was made.

27 And it came to pass at noon, that [w]Elijah mocked[7] them, and said, Cry aloud;[8] for he is a god: either he is talking,[9] or he is pursuing,[10] or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and [x]must be awaked.

28 And they cried aloud, and [y]cut themselves, after their manner, with knives and lancets, till the [11]blood gushed out upon them.

29 And it came to pass, when midday was past, and they [z]prophesied until the time of the offering[12] of the evening sacrifice, that there was [4]neither voice, nor any to answer, nor any that regarded.[13]

30 And Elijah said unto all the people, Come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him: and [b]he repaired the altar of the LORD that was broken down.[14]

31 And Elijah took [c]twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the LORD came, [d]saying, Israel shall be thy name;

32 And [e]with the stones he built an altar [f]in the name of the LORD: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

33 And [g]he put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, [h]Fill four barrels with water, and pour it on the burnt-sacrifice, and on the wood.

34 And he said, [i]Do it the second

37 [p]Hear me, O LORD, hear me; that this people may know that thou art the LORD God, and that [q]thou hast turned their heart back again.

44 And it came to pass, at the seventh time, that he said, Behold, there ariseth [e]a little cloud[8] out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say unto Ahab, Prepare[9] thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not.

AND [a]Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal, [b]how he had slain all the prophets with the sword.

2 Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, [c]So let the gods do to me, and more also, [d]if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by [e]to-morrow about this time.

6 And he looked, and, behold, there [n]was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his head:[8] and he did eat and drink, and laid him down again.

7 And [o]the angel of the Lord came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise and eat; [p]because the journey is too great for thee.

8 And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went [q]in the strength of that meat [r]forty days and forty nights, unto [s]Horeb the mount of God.[9]

9 ¶ And he came thither [t]unto a cave, and lodged there: and, behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said unto him, [u]What doest thou here, Elijah?

the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, [w]thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even [x]I only, am left; and [y]they seek my life, to take it away.

11 And he said, Go forth, and stand[z] upon the mount before the LORD. And, behold, [a]the LORD passed by, [b]and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks, before the LORD; but the LORD was not in the wind: and after the wind [c]an earthquake; but the LORD was not in the earthquake:

12 And after the earthquake [d]a fire; but the LORD was not in the fire: and after the fire [e]a still small voice.[1]

13 And it was so, when Elijah heard it, that [f]he wrapped his face[2] in his mantle, and went out, and stood in the entering in of the cave: and, behold, there came a voice unto him, and said, What[g] doest thou here, Elijah?

14 And he said, [h]I have been very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: because the children of Israel have [i]forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.

15 And the LORD said unto him, Go, return on thy way to [k]the wilderness of Damascus; and when thou comest, anoint[l] [m]Hazael to be king over Syria;

16 And [n]Jehu the son of Nimshi shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel; and [o]Elisha the son of Shaphat, of Abel-meholah,[p] shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room.

17 And it shall come to pass, that him[q] that escapeth [r]the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay; and him that escapeth from [s]the sword of Jehu shall Elisha[t] slay.[3]

18 [u]Yet I have left[4] me seven thousand[5] in Israel, all [v]the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, and [w]every mouth which hath not kissed him.

19 ¶ So he departed thence, and found [x]Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was plowing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and [y]he with the twelfth: and Elijah passed by him, and cast [z]his mantle upon him.

20 And [a]he left the oxen, and ran after Elijah, and said, [b]Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee. And he said unto him, Go back again:[1] for what have I done to thee?

21 And he returned back from him, and took a yoke of oxen, and slew them, and [c]boiled their flesh with the instruments of the oxen, and [d]gave unto the people, and they did eat: then he arose, and went after Elijah, and [e]ministered unto him.

CHAPTER XX.

Ben-hadad, king of Syria, not content with Ahab's homage, besiegeth Samaria, 1—12. By the direction of a prophet, the Syrians are slain, 13—21. As the prophet had forewarned Ahab, the Syrians, trusting in the valleys, come against him in Aphek, 22—27. By the word of the prophet, and God's judgment, the Syrians are smitten again, 28—30. The Syrians submitting themselves, Ahab sendeth Ben-hadad away with a covenant, 31—34. The prophet, under the parable of a prisoner, making Ahab to judge himself, denounceth God's judgment against him for his unreasonable lenity, 35—43.

AND [a]Ben-hadad the king of Syria gathered all his host together; and there were [b]thirty and two kings with him,[2] [c]and horses and chariots: and he went up and [d]besieged Samaria, and warred against it.

2 And [e]he sent messengers to Ahab king of Israel into the city, and said unto him, Thus saith Ben-hadad,

3 Thy [f]silver and thy gold is mine; thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest, are mine.

4 And the king of Israel answered and said, My lord, O king, according to thy saying, [g]I am thine, and all that I have.

5 And the messengers came again, and said, Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, saying, Although I have sent unto thee, saying, Thou shalt deliver me thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children;

6 Yet I will send my servants unto thee to-morrow about this time, [h]and they shall search thine house, and the houses of thy servants; and it shall be, that whatsoever is pleasant[3] in thine eyes, they shall put it in their hand, and take it away.[4]

7 Then the king of Israel called [i]all the elders of the land, and said, [k]Mark, I pray you, and see how this man [l]seeketh mischief:[5] for he sent unto me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver, and for my gold, and I denied him not.[6]

2 If we go back to the early ages of Syria, we find a number of isolated cities surrounded by a territory of very limited extent, & governed by kings or princes. Sometimes one of these towns obtained a marked superiority over the others, over which it arrogated a species of dominion; and of this number was Damascus. But this dominion was no more than a forced alliance, which only obliged these cities to furnish troops and subsidies in time of war; without compromising their distinct existence, under their own laws and rulers. —Heeren.

4 Ahab understood the first demand as only a claim to dominion over him and his property or kingdom; and in abject terms consented to be Benhadad's vassal, to do him homage, and pay him tribute. Benhadad, therefore, perceiving his terror & pusillanimity grew more insolent, and by a second message, demanded the immediate possession and use of them all.

5 Sin brings men into straits by putting them out of divine protection. 'If God do not rule us, our enemies shall; a rebel to God is a slave to all besides. Guilt makes men cowards: Ahab knew Baal could not help, and had no reason to think that God would; and therefore he is content to buy his life on any terms.'

8 And all the elders, and all the people, said unto him, Hearken not unto him, nor consent.

9 Wherefore he said unto the messengers of Ben-hadad, Tell my lord the king, All that thou didst send for to thy servant at the first I will do: but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed, and brought him word again.

10 And Ben-hadad sent unto him, and said, [m]The gods do so unto me, and more also, [n]if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls[1] for all the people that follow me.[2]

11 And the king of Israel answered and said, Tell him, [o]Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off.[3]

12 And it came to pass, when Ben-hadad heard this message,[4] (as he was drinking,[p5] he and the kings in the pavilions,)[6] that he said unto his servants, Set yourselves in array:[7] and they set themselves in array against the city.

13 ¶ And, behold, there came[8] a prophet[9] unto Ahab king of Israel, saying, Thus saith the LORD, [q]Hast thou seen all this great multitude? behold, I will deliver it into thine hand this day; and [r]thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

14 And Ahab said, By whom? And he said, Thus saith the LORD, Even by the young men[10] of the princes of the provinces.[11] Then he said, Who shall order[12] the battle? And he answered, Thou.

15 Then he numbered the young men of the princes of the provinces, and they were [s]two hundred and thirty-two; and after them he numbered all the people, even all the children of Israel, being [t]seven thousand.

16 And they went out at noon:[13] but Ben-hadad[u] was drinking himself drunk in the pavilions, he and the kings, the thirty and two kings that helped him.

17 And [v]the young men of the princes of the provinces went out first: and Ben-hadad sent out, and they told him, saying, There are men come out of Samaria.

18 And he said, [w]Whether they be come out for peace, take them alive; or whether they be come out for war, take them alive.

19 So these young men of the princes of the provinces came out of the city, and the army which followed them.

20 And [x]they slew every one his man: and [y]the Syrians fled,[1] and Israel pursued them; and Ben-hadad the king of Syria [z]escaped on an horse with the horsemen.

21 And the king of Israel [a]went out, and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter.

22 ¶ And [b]the prophet came to the king of Israel, and said unto him, Go, [c]strengthen thyself, and mark, and see what thou doest: for [d]at the return of the year the king of Syria will come up against thee.

23 And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, [e]Their gods are gods of the hills,[2] therefore they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.

24 And do this thing; [f]Take the kings[3] away, every man out of his place, and put captains in their rooms:

25 And number thee an army like the army that thou hast lost,[4] horse for horse, and chariot for chariot; and we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. And he hearkened unto their voice, and did so.

26 And it came to pass, at the return of the year, that Ben-hadad numbered the Syrians, and went up to [g][5] Aphek, to fight against Israel.[6]

27 And the children of Israel were numbered, and were all present,[7] and went against them: and the children of Israel pitched before them [h]like two little flocks of kids; but the Syrians filled the country.

28 ¶ And [i]there came a man of God, and spake unto the king of Israel, and said, Thus saith the LORD, [k]Because the Syrians have said, The LORD is God of the hills, but he is not God of the valleys, [l]therefore will I deliver all this great multitude into thine hand; and ye[m] shall know that I am the LORD.

29 And they pitched one over against the other [n]seven days: and so it was, that in the seventh day the battle was joined: and the children of Israel slew of the Syrians [o]an hundred thousand footmen in one day.

30 But the rest fled to Aphek, into the city; and there [p]a wall fell upon twenty and seven thousand of the men that were left.[1] And Ben-hadad [q]fled, and came into the city, into an inner chamber.[2]

31 ¶ And [r]his servants said unto him, Behold now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are [s]merciful kings: let us, I pray thee, [t]put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes upon our heads, and go out to the king of Israel: [u]peradventure he will save thy life.

32 So they girded sackcloth on their loins, and put ropes on their heads,[3] and came to the king of Israel, and said, Thy[v] servant Ben-hadad saith, I pray thee, let me live. And he said, Is he yet alive? [w]he is my brother.

33 Now [x]the men did diligently observe whether any thing would come from him, and did hastily catch it: and they said, Thy brother Ben-hadad. Then he said, Go ye, bring him. Then Ben-hadad came forth to him; [y]and he caused him to come up into the chariot.

34 And Ben-hadad said unto him, The[z] cities which my father took from thy father I will restore; and thou shalt make streets for thee in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria. Then, said Ahab, I will send thee away with this covenant. [a]So he made a covenant with him, and sent him away.

35 ¶ And a certain man [b]of the sons of the prophets said unto his neighbour in[c] the word of the LORD, [d]Smite me, I pray thee. And the man refused to smite him.

36 Then said he unto him, [e]Because thou hast not obeyed the voice of the LORD, behold, as soon as thou art departed from me, a lion shall slay thee. And as soon as he was departed from him, a lion found him, and slew him.[4]

37 Then he found another man, and said, [f]Smite me, I pray thee. And the man smote him, so that in smiting[1] he wounded him.

38 So the prophet departed, and waited for the king by the way, and [g]disguised himself with ashes[2] upon his face.

39 And as the king passed by, he cried unto the king: and he said, [h]Thy servant[3] went out into the midst of the battle; and, behold, a man turned aside, and brought a man unto me, and said, Keep this man: if by any means he be missing, Then shall [i]thy life be for his life, [k]or else thou shalt pay[4] a talent of silver.

40 And as thy servant was busy[5] here and there, he was gone.[6] And the king of Israel said unto him, [l]So shall thy judgment be; thyself hast decided it.

41 And he hasted, and took [m]the ashes away from his face; and the king of Israel discerned him that he was of the prophets.

42 And he said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, [n]Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man whom I appointed to utter destruction, therefore [o]thy life shall go for his life, and thy people for his people.[7]

43 And the king of Israel [p]went to his house heavy and displeased,[8] and came to Samaria.

CHAPTER XXI.

Ahab being denied Naboth's vineyard is grieved, 1—4. Jezebel writing letters against Naboth, he is condemned of blasphemy, 5—14. Ahab taketh possession of the vineyard, 15, 16. Elijah denounceth judgments against Ahab and Jezebel, 17—26. Wicked Ahab repenting, God deferreth the judgment, 27—29.

AND it came to pass [a]after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard, which was in [b]Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria.

2 And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, [c]Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for [d]a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house: and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or, if it seem good[9] to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

3 And Naboth said to Ahab, [e]The LORD forbid it[10] me, that [f]I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

3 'Ropes about their necks,' would better convey the sense of the Hebrew, which uses the word for 'head,' in a more extended sense than is done in English. The design of this act was to intimate that they came before Ahab as suppliant captives, putting their lives into his hands, to spare or destroy according to his pleasure. In the sculptures of Egypt and Persepolis, captive prisoners are represented as dragged before the conquering king by a rope, which passes round the necks of all, and ties them together. The reader of English history will recall the case of the six citizens of Calais, in the reign of Edward III.

4 The refusal being made by the son of a prophet, had no excuse in ignorance; and disobedience to God's command in a prophet, was punishable with death, (De. 18.19.) Ahab would hear of this event; and if one who humanely refused to smite a pious prophet at the command of God, was thus punished, he might conclude that he should not be spared who disobeyed God, by forming an alliance with a haughty idolatrous king, whom the Lord required him to destroy.

2 By the change of a single letter, (so like that they are often mistaken,) instead of 'aphar,' ashes, we read, 'aphad,' a bandage, and this is supported by the Gr. and Chald. It suits also the prophet's previous act of causing himself to be wounded; for that did require a bandage, but there is no connection between a wound and ashes. He intended by being wounded, the better to personate a soldier who had been in the battle, and had deserved well of his king, though he had failed of his duty in one particular.

4 And Ahab came into his house heavy[g] and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him; for he had said, [h]I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers: [i]and he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.[1]

5 ¶ But [k]Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, [l]Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?

6 And he said unto her, [m]Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he answered, [n]I will not give thee my vineyard.

7 And Jezebel his wife said unto him, [o]Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel?[2] Arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry: [p]I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

8 So [q]she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal,[3] and sent the letters unto [r]the elders and to [s]the nobles that were in his city dwelling with Naboth.

9 And she wrote in the letters, saying, [t]Proclaim a fast,[4] and set Naboth on high among the people;[5]

10 And set [u]two men, [v]sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, [w]Thou didst blaspheme[6] God and the king: and then carry him out, and stone him, that he may die.

11 And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, [x]did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them;

12 They [y]proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people.

13 And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him: and [z]the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did [a]blaspheme God and [b]the king. Then [c]they carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones, that he died.

6 The word generally signifies, 'to bless,' and hence Parkhurst would translate, 'Thou didst bless the Aleim, (heathen gods) especially Molech.' But the cognate terms in Arabic, Chaldee, and Syriac, have also sometimes the signification of to curse, and so in Ethiopic, baracha, and in Maltese, bjrek, (both from the Heb. barach,) have the sense of both blessing and cursing. The idea common to both acts is a wish or prayer in the one case for good, in the other for evil.

14 Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, [d]Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, [e]Arise, take possession[1] of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money: for Naboth is not alive, but dead.

16 And it came to pass, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that [f]Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

17 ¶ And [g]the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

18 Arise, go down to meet[2] Ahab king of Israel, [h]which is in Samaria: behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it.

19 And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, [i]Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, [k]In the place where dogs licked[3] the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine.

20 And Ahab said to Elijah, [l]Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?[4] And he answered, I have found thee; because [m]thou hast sold thyself [n]to work evil in the sight of the LORD.

21 Behold, [o]I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity, and will cut off from Ahab [p]him that pisseth against the wall, and [q]him that is shut up and left in Israel,

22 And will [r]make thine house like the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of Baasha the son of Ahijah, for the provocation wherewith thou hast provoked me to anger, and [s]made Israel to sin.

23 And of [t]Jezebel also spake the LORD, saying, The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall[5] of Jezreel.

24 Him [u]that dieth of Ahab in the city the dogs shall eat; and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat.

25 But [v]there was none like unto Ahab, which did [w]sell himself[6] to work wickedness in the sight of the LORD, [x]whom Jezebel his wife stirred up.[7]

26 And he did [y] very abominably in following idols, [z] according to all things as did the Amorites, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, when Ahab heard those words, that [a] he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and [b] lay in sackcloth, and [c] went softly.

28 And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

29 [d] Seest thou how [e] Ahab humbleth himself before me? because he humbleth himself before me, [f] I will not bring [g] the evil in his days; but [h] in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

CHAPTER XXII.

Ahab, seduced by false prophets, according to the word of Micaiah, is slain at Ramoth-Gilead, 1—36. The dogs lick up his blood, and Ahaziah succeedeth him, 37—40. Jehoshaphat's good reign, 41—44 His acts, 45—49. Jehoram succeedeth him, 50. Ahaziah's wicked reign, 51—53.

AND [a] they continued three years without war between Syria and Israel.

2 And it came to pass [b] in the third year, that [c] Jehoshaphat the king of Judah came down to the king of Israel.[1]

3 (And the king of Israel said unto his servants, Know ye that [d] Ramoth in Gilead is ours,[2] and we be still,[3] and take it not out of the hand of the king of Syria?)

4 And he said unto Jehoshaphat, Wilt [e] thou go with me to battle to Ramoth-gilead? And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, [f] I am as thou art, my people as thy people, my horses as thy horses.

5 ¶ And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, [g] Enquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to-day.

6 Then the king of Israel gathered the [h] prophets together, about four hundred men, and said unto them, Shall I go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, [i] Go up; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.[4]

7 And Jehoshaphat said, [k] Is there not here a prophet of the LORD besides, that we might enquire of him?

8 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, There is [l] yet one man, Micaiah the son of Imlah, by whom we may enquire of the LORD; [m] but I hate him:[1] for he doth not prophesy [n] good [o] concerning me, but evil. And Jehoshaphat said, [p] Let not the king say so.

9 Then the king of Israel called an officer,[2] and said, [q] Hasten hither Micaiah[3] the son of Imlah.

10 And the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, sat each on his throne, [r] having put on their robes, in a void[4] place in the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and [s] all the prophets prophesied before them.

11 And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made him [t] horns of iron:[5] and he said, [u] Thus saith the LORD, With these shalt thou push the Syrians, until thou have consumed them.

12 And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, [v] Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the king's hand.

13 And the messenger that was gone to call Micaiah spake unto him, saying, [w] Behold now, the words of the prophets declare good unto the king with one mouth: let thy word, I pray thee, be like the word of one of them, and speak that which is good.

14 And Micaiah said, As the LORD liveth, [x] what the LORD saith unto me, that will I speak.

15 ¶ So he came to the king. And the king said unto him, Micaiah, [y] shall we go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear? And he answered him, [z] Go, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.[6]

16 And the king said unto him, How many times [a] shall I adjure thee [b] that thou tell me nothing but that which is true in the name of the LORD?

17 And he said, [c] I saw all Israel scattered upon the hills, [d] as sheep that have not a shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master; let them return every man to his house in peace.

18 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, [e] Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?

1 There was an affinity between Jehoshaphat & Ahab, the son of the former having married Athaliah, Ahab's daughter. It is singular, that the first formal alliance between the two kingdoms should be made in the reigns of two princes of such opposite characters. If the confederation was a political good in itself, the wicked character of Ahab and his family, and the alienation of his people from God, more than neutralised the advantages to Judah.

2 Also called Ramath Hammizpeh, i. e. the tower on the height. It lay fifteen Roman miles N. W. of Rabbah-Ammon, not far from the Jabbok. The Gadites gave it up to the Levites, and it became a city of refuge. Some think the site is now occupied by Szalt, a place which lies on the side of a hill with a castle. It was among the cities Ben-hadad had promised to restore to Ahab. (ch.20.34.)

6 Perhaps some ironical gesture accompanied Micaiah's words. Many instances of irony are to be found in scripture; and that Micaiah now spoke in irony is too manifest to escape the notice of the most cursory reader. His words are precisely those of the false prophets, ver. 6, 12, and were doubtless intended by him to reprove the king for his idolatry and impiety. That the design of the prophet was perceived by Ahab, is evident from his immediately adjuring him to speak nothing but the truth, that is, to discover to him what really would be the result of the expedition; upon which the prophet assumed another tone, and related to him his vision.

19 And he said, [f]Hear thou therefore the word of the LORD: [g]I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and [h]all the host of heaven standing by him on his right hand and on his left.

20 And the LORD said, Who shall persuade[1] Ahab, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one said on this manner, and another said in that manner.

21 And [i]there came forth a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will persuade him.

22 And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith? And he said, I will go forth, and I will be [k]a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And he said, [l]Thou shalt persuade him, and prevail also: go forth, and do so.

23 Now therefore, behold, [m]the LORD hath put a lying spirit[2] in the mouth of all these thy prophets, and [n]the LORD hath spoken evil concerning thee.

24 ¶ But [o]Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah went near, and [p]smote Micaiah on the cheek, and said, [q]Which way went the Spirit of the LORD from me to speak unto thee?

25 And Micaiah said, [r]Behold, thou shalt see in that day, when thou shalt go into an inner chamber[3] to hide thyself.

26 And the king of Israel said, Take Micaiah, and [s]carry him back unto Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son;

27 And say, Thus saith the king, [t]Put this fellow in the prison, and feed him with [u]bread of affliction, and with water of affliction, [v]until I come in peace.

28 And Micaiah said, [w]If thou return at all in peace, the LORD hath not spoken by me. And he said, [x]Hearken, O people,[4] every one of you.

29 ¶ So [y]the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, went up to Ramoth-gilead.

30 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, I will disguise[5] myself, and enter into the battle; but [z]put thou on thy robes. And the king of Israel [a]disguised himself, and went into the battle.

31 ¶ But the king of Syria commanded his [b]thirty and two captains, that had rule over his chariots, saying, [c]Fight neither with [d]small nor great, save only with the king of Israel.[1]

32 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, Surely it is the king of Israel. And they turned aside to fight against him: and [e]Jehoshaphat cried out.

33 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, [f]that they turned back from pursuing him.

34 ¶ And a certain man drew a bow at a venture,[2] [g]and smote the king of Israel between the joints[3] of the harness: wherefore he said unto the driver of his chariot, Turn thine hand, and carry me out of the host; for I am wounded.[4]

35 And the battle increased[5] that day; and the king was stayed up[6] in his chariot against the Syrians, and [h]died at even: and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst[7] of the chariot.

36 And [i]there went a proclamation throughout the host, about the going down of the sun, saying, [k]Every man to his city, and every man to his own country.[8]

37 ¶ So the king died, and [9]was brought to Samaria; and they buried the king in Samaria.

38 And one washed the chariot in the pool of Samaria; [l]and the dogs licked up his blood, (and they washed his armour,[10]) according unto the word of the LORD which he spake.

39 ¶ Now [m]the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and [n]the ivory house which he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

40 So Ahab [o]slept with his fathers; and [p]Ahaziah his son reigned in his stead.

41 ¶ And [q]Jehoshaphat the son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth[11] year of Ahab king of Israel.

42 Jehoshaphat was [r]thirty and five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty and five years in

2 All that this seems to imply is, that God permitted Ahab's prophets to be guilty of prophesying falsely in his name. 'These men, called prophets, were only pretenders to prophecy, whom the wicked king of Israel had in his pay, and who knew how to suit his humour, and flatter his vanity. Micaiah distinctly calls them Ahab's prophets. The address of Micaiah is not a real representation, as if the Almighty were at a loss for expedients, or had any hand in the sins of his creatures. It is a parable, and tells, in figurative language, the events shortly to take place, and the permission on the part of God for these agents to act. It is a known idiom of the Hebrew language, to express things in an imperative and active form, which are to be understood only permissively.'—T. H. Horne.

1 See in this at once the baseness of ingratitude, & the righteous retribution of heaven. Benhadad repays the misplaced kindness of Ahab by the most bitter enmity against his person, and seeks above all things his destruction. Ahab seems to have had some private information of this, for he went himself into the battle disguised, but basely persuaded Jehoshaphat to appear in the ensigns of royalty, no doubt expecting, what actually happened, that Jehoshaphat would be taken for him.

10 The sense is, 'They washed his chariot in the pool of Samaria, and as they were cleansing his armour the dogs licked his blood.' This is the arrangemen of the Syriac version. Some have thought it difficult to reconcile this verse with ch. 21. 19, as Naboth was put to death in Jezreel, and Ahab's chariot was washed in Samaria. But the expression 'place' may be considered as referring in a larger sense to the district generally. For aught we know, the pool of Samaria was so near to Naboth's vineyard, (not in the town, but in the territory of Jezreel,) as that they might be spoken of as in the same place. Thus were signally reconciled the seemingly discordant declarations of Elijah, (ch.21. 19,) and of Micaiah, (ch. 22.20,) regarding Ahab's death; compare Note at ch. 21. 19.

1 In 2 Ch. 20. 36, it is said he did join Ahaziah in a nautical expedition; but perhaps thereference here is to a second proposal which he rejected. Some, however,by changing one Hebrew letter (of similar sound,) instead of 'would not,' translate 'consented tohim.' This would harmonize the two narratives better still. CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE FIRST BOOK OF KINGS.

THE first event of importance recorded in this book, is the rebellion of Adonijah, which Hales places in the year B. C. 1030, the same year as the accession of Solomon. He supposes the temple to have been begun B. C. 1027, and finished B. C. 1020; Tadmor built, 1006; temples on the mount of Corruption, 996; death of Solomon, and accession of Rehoboam, 990. In the same year the revolt of the ten tribes took place under Jeroboam, whence arose the kingdom of Israel; and the following is the synchronistic view presented by Hales, of the reigns of the kings of Judah and Israel, whose history is detailed in this first book of Kings:

Kings of Judah.

	Years.	B. C.
1 Rehoboam,	17	990
2 Abijah,	3	973
3 Asa,	41	970
4 Jehoshaphat,	25	929

Kings of Israel.

	Years.	B. C.
1 Jeroboam,	22	990
2 Nadab,	2	968
3 Baasha,	(24) 23	966
4 Ela,	(2) 1	943
5 Zimri and Omri,	(12) 11	942
6 Ahab,	22	931

As the Jewish state acquired under David the full extent of dominion that had been promised to Abraham, so in the reign of Solomon it reached the highest pitch of prosperity which it was destined to enjoy. 'Now the predominant tribe of Judah lay as a lion, which no nation ventured to rouse up, (Ge. xlix. 9; Nu. xxiii. 24; xxiv. 9). The Hebrews were the ruling people, and their empire the principal monarchy in Western Asia. Peace gave prosperity, commerce brought wealth, and at the same time promoted the arts and sciences, which found an active promoter in the king, who was himself one of the most distinguished of the learned. The building of the temple, and of several palaces, introduced foreign artists, by whom the Hebrews were instructed. Many strangers and even sovereign princes, were attracted to Jerusalem, in order to see and converse with the prosperous royal sage. The regular progress of all business, the arrangements for security from foreign and domestic enemies, the good order in the administration of the affairs of the empire, and in the service of the court, excited as much admiration as the wisdom and learning of the viceroy of Jehovah.'—Jahn.

Yet it was this very prosperity of the 'wise man,' that destroyed both him and his kingdom. While his effeminacy and licentiousness made him an easy prey to idolatry, his wasteful extravagance imposed upon his people the most grievous burdens; and the seeds of discontent thus sown during his life, yielded immediately after his death the fruits of sedition and revolt.

The great and powerful empire of David was then rent into two unequal parts; and the history of both (as contained in this book,) offers much valuable instruction to all, whether in public or private life. Among the kings of Judah, the reckless folly of Rehoboam, and the wickedness of his son Abijah, are relieved by the view of the piety of Asa, and the still more decided fidelity of his son Jehoshaphat. But the kings of Israel, without exception, did 'that which was evil in the sight of the Lord;' and the idolatry and crimes, both of them and their nation, are uniformly traced by the sacred historian to the fatal example of the founder of the monarchy—'Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.' In the reign of Ahab, the state of things was fearfully aggravated by his marriage with Jezebel, a devoted worshipper of Baal; and through her influence, so great did the corruption and degeneracy become, that it appeared as if the knowledge of Jehovah was for ever lost to the Israelites. But then it was that the great Elijah appeared,—'who stood up as a fire, and whose word burned as a lamp,' Ecclesiasticus xlviii. 1; an illustrious champion of God's truth and cause, and one of the most remarkable characters brought before us in the scripture, whether we look to his official acts, or his personal history. The brief but interesting record of his life and times will amply repay a careful and devout perusal. In the uncompromising integrity of his principles, and the 'power and spirit' of his words, he was a striking type of the Messiah's Forerunner. But a higher honour still awaited him. As, like Moses the giver of the law, Elijah its restorer had enjoyed a sublime vision of Jehovah at mount Sinai; so having been caught up into glory, he was with Moses admitted on mount Tabor to sublime fellowship with 'God manifest in flesh,' when the representatives of the law and the prophets spake with Him who came to fulfil both, of the 'decease he should accomplish at Jerusalem,' Lu. ix. 41.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE

KINGS,

COMMONLY CALLED THE FOURTH BOOK OF THE KINGS.

A MORE natural termination of the former book would be that adopted in the old translation of Coverdale, viz., to close it with the fiftieth verse of the last chapter, and commence the second book with ver. 51. According to that division, this book takes up the history of Israel and Judah, at the reign of Amaziah, son of Ahab, in the former kingdom, and of Jehoram, or Joram, son of Jehosaphat, in the latter. A continuous narrative is presented of the affairs of both nations, down to the period of the captivity, when they ceased to exist as independent states. This event happened in the case of Israel, in the reign of Hoshea; and in the case of Judah, in the reign of Zedekiah; Shalmanezer, king of Assyria, being the conqueror of the one country, and Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, of the other.

In Israel, the kings were, without exception, idolatrous and wicked; for the constitution was very much based upon the worship of the golden calves, established by Jeroboam, the founder of the monarchy. Yet it was in Israel that the great Elijah was raised up, and there too the 'schools of the prophets' furnished a succession of gifted seers as illustrious as those who appeared in Judah. 'Here,' says Krummacher, (in describing Elijah's interview with the prophets of Bethel, before his ascension, ch. ii. 2, 3,) 'notwithstanding the malignant influence of an Ahab and a Jezebel, and the apostacy of a whole nation, these blooming plantations of truth had thriven amid storm and tempest, in those parts of the country where Satan's seat had more especially been set up. It must have cheered the heart of the prophet to associate with his thought of heavenly glory, the thought of leaving behind him such goodly bands of champions on the side of the God of Israel.'

Too many of the kings of Judah resembled in character those of Israel, but as the reigns of the pious monarchs were commonly more extended than those of the idolatrous princes, the state of religion was, on the whole, much more flourishing here than among the revolted tribes. Yet, after the decease of 'good king Josiah,' the priests and people became universally corrupt, until they too, like their brethren of Israel, ripened themselves for heaven's judgments.

This Book comprises twenty-five chapters, and may be divided into two parts, viz.,—I. The History of Judah and Israel, to the subversion of the latter kingdom, ch. i.—xvii. II. The History of Judah alone, until its decline and fall, ch. xviii.—xxv. According to the common chronology, it embraces a period of about 300 years, from A.M. 3115, to A. M. 3416; according to Hales a period of 318 years, from B. C. 904, to B.C. 586.

During this period lived almost all the prophets (strictly so called) whose writings form so large a portion of the Old Testament Canon; and as they continually refer to the facts recorded in this book, they may be regarded as sanctioning its divine authority, which indeed none but infidels have ever called in question.

BEFORE CHRIST, 896.—JULIAN PERIOD, 3818.—CYCLE OF THE SUN, 10.—CYCLE OF THE MOON, 18.—YEAR FROM THE CREATION, 3108.

CHAPTER I.

Moab rebelleth, 1. Ahaziah, sending to Baalzebub, hath his judgment by Elijah, 2—4. Elijah twice bringeth fire from heaven upon those whom Ahaziah sent to apprehend him, 5—12. He pitieth the third captain, and, encouraged by an angel, telleth the king of his approaching death, 13—16. Jehoram succeedeth Ahaziah, 17, 18.

THEN[1] [a]Moab rebelled against Israel [b]after the death of Ahab.

2 ¶ And Ahaziah fell down through a[c] lattice[2] in his upper chamber that was in Samaria, and [d]was sick: and he sent messengers, and said unto them, Go, enquire of [e]Baal-zebub the [f]god of Ekron [g]whether I shall recover of this disease.

3 But [h]the angel of the LORD said to [i]Elijah the Tishbite, [k]Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, [l]Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that [m]ye go to enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron?

4 Now therefore thus saith the LORD, Thou[3] shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, [n]but shalt surely die. And Elijah departed.

5 ¶ And when the messengers turned back unto him, he said unto them, Why are ye now turned back?

6 And they said unto him, There came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, Go, turn again unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? [o]therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

7 And he said unto them, [1]What manner of man was he which came up to meet you, and told you these words?

8 And they answered him, He was [p]an hairy man,[2] and girt with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said, It is Elijah the Tishbite.[3]

9 Then the king [q]sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty: and he went up to him; (and, behold, [r]he sat on the top of an hill;) and he spake unto him, [s]Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down.

10 And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, [t]If I be a man of God, then [u]let fire[1] come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, [v]and consumed him and his fifty.

11 [w]Again also he sent unto him another captain of fifty with his fifty: and he answered and said unto him, O[x] man of God, thus hath the king said, Come down quickly.

12 And Elijah answered and said unto them, [y]If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And the fire of God came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

13 ¶ And [z]he sent again a captain of the third fifty with his fifty: and the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell[2] on his knees before Elijah, and [a]besought him, and said unto him, O[b] man of God, I pray thee, let my life, and the life of these fifty thy servants, be precious in thy sight.

14 Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifties with their fifties: therefore let my [c]life now be precious in thy sight.[3]

15 And the angel[4] of the LORD said unto Elijah, Go down with him; be[d] not afraid of him. And he arose, and went down with him unto the king.

16 And he said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, [e]Forasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to enquire of Baal-zebub[5] the god of Ekron, (is it not because there is no God in Israel to enquire of his word?) therefore thou shalt not come down off that bed on which thou art gone up,[6] but shalt surely die.

17 ¶ So he died, according to the word of the LORD which Elijah had spoken: and Jehoram reigned in his stead,[7] [f]in the second year[8] of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah; because he had no son.

1 Rather, 'fire will come down,' & so the Sept. Boothroyd, &c. It was God's own act. If Elijah had been influenced by mere selfishresentment, the fire would not have come down at his bidding. When our Lord rebuked the two disciples, for desiring fire from heaven to consume the Samaritans, they were indulging in a revengefulspirit; but Elijah was constrained to a painful duty, necessary under that dispensation, for the truth's sake. He merely predicted what would happen, to show the king the truth of the message. The words were not imprecatory but declarative.

CHAP. II.

Elijah, taking his leave of Elisha, with his mantle divideth Jordan, 1—8; and, granting Elisha his request, is taken up by a chariot into heaven, 9—11. Elisha, dividing Jordan with Elijah's mantle, is acknowledged his successor, 12—15. The young prophets, with difficulty obtaining leave to seek Elijah, could not find him, 16—18. Elisha with salt healeth the unwholesome water, 19—22. Bears destroy the children that mocked him, 23—25.

AND it came to pass, when the LORD would [a]take up Elijah into [h]heaven [b]by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with [c]Elisha from [d]Gilgal.

3 And [i]the sons of the prophets that were at Beth-el came forth to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away thy master from thy head to-day? And he said, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

4 And Elijah said unto him, Elisha, tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to [l]Jericho. And he said, [m]As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they came to Jericho.

6 And Elijah said unto him, Tarry, I pray thee, here; for the LORD hath sent me to Jordan. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on.

7 And [p]fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood to view[3] afar off: and they two stood by Jordan.

8 And Elijah took [q]his mantle,[4] and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they [r]were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground.

10 And he said, [v]Thou hast asked[1] a hard thing: nevertheless, [w]if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so.[2]

11 ¶ And it came to pass, as they still went on, and talked, that, behold, there appeared [x]a chariot of fire,[3] and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up [y]by a whirlwind into[z] heaven.

12 ¶ And Elisha [a]saw it, and he cried, [b]My father, my father! the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. And [c]he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own clothes, and [d]rent them in two pieces.

13 He took up also [e]the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and went back, and stood by the bank[4] of Jordan;

14 And he took the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and [f]smote the waters,[5] and said, [g]Where is the LORD God of Elijah? And when he also had smitten the waters, they parted hither and thither; and Elisha went over.

15 And when the sons of the prophets, which were [h]to view at Jericho, saw him, they said, [i]The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and [k]bowed themselves to the ground before him.

16 ¶ And they said unto him, Behold now, there be with thy servants fifty strong men;[6] let them go, we pray thee, and seek thy master: lest peradventure [l]the Spirit of the LORD hath taken him up, and cast him upon some[7] mountain, or into some valley. And he said, Ye shall not send.

17 And when [m]they urged him till he was ashamed,[8] he said, Send. They sent therefore fifty men; and they sought three days, but [n]found him not.

18 And when they came again to him, (for he tarried at Jericho,) he said unto them, Did I not say unto you, Go not?

19 ¶ And the men of the city said unto Elisha, Behold, I pray thee, the situation of the city is pleasant, as [o]my LORD seeth; but [p]the water is naught, and the ground barren.[9]

20 And he said, Bring me a new cruse, and put [q]salt therein: and they brought it to him.

21 And he went forth unto the spring of the waters, and [r]cast the salt in there, and said, Thus saith the LORD, [s]I have healed these waters; [t]there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land.

22 So the waters were healed unto this day,[1] according to the saying of Elisha which he spake.

23 ¶ And he went up from thence unto [u]Beth-el: and as he was going up by the way, there came forth [v]little children[2] out of the city, and [w]mocked him, and said unto him, [x]Go up,[3] thou bald-head; go up, thou bald-head.

24 And he turned back, and looked on them, and [y]cursed them in the name of the LORD: and there came forth two [z]she-bears out of the wood, and tare[4] forty and two [a]children of them.

25 And he went from thence to [b]mount Carmel; and from thence he returned to Samaria.

CHAPTER III.

Jehoram's evil reign, 1—3. Mesha rebelleth, 4, 5. Jehoram, with Jehosaphat, and the king of Edom, being distressed for want of water, by Elisha obtaineth water, and promise of victory, 6—20. The Moabites, deceived by the colour of the water, coming to spoil, are overcome, 21—25. The king of Moab sacrificeth his eldest son, and raiseth the siege, 26, 27.

NOW [a]Jehoram the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria the eighteenth[5] year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years.

2 And he [b]wrought evil in the sight of the LORD, [c]but not like his father, and [d]like his mother; for he put away the image[6] of [e]Baal that his father had made.

3 Nevertheless [f]he cleaved unto the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [g]which made Israel to sin; [h]he departed not therefrom.

4 ¶ And Mesha king of Moab was [i]a sheep-master, and [k]rendered unto the king of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and an hundred thousand rams, with the wool.

5 But it came to pass, when Ahab was dead, [l]that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel.

6 ¶ And king Jehoram went out of Samaria the same time, and [m]numbered all Israel.

7 And he went and sent to Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, saying, The king of Moab hath rebelled against me: [n]wilt thou go with me against Moab to battle? And he said, I will go up: I am as thou art, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses.

8 And he said, Which way shall we go up? And he answered, The way through [o]the wilderness of Edom.

9 So the king of Israel went, and the king of Judah, and [p]the king of Edom; and they fetched a compass of seven day's journey: and there was [q]no water for the host, and for the cattle that followed[1] them.

10 And the king of Israel said, Alas! that [r]the LORD hath called these three kings together,[2] to deliver them into the hand of Moab!

11 But Jehoshaphat said, [s]Is there not here a prophet of the LORD, [t]that we may enquire of the LORD by him? And one of the king of Israel's servants answered and said, Here is Elisha the son of Shaphat, [u]which poured water[3] on the hands of Elijah.

12 And Jehoshaphat said, [v]The word of the LORD is with him. So [w]the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat, and the king of Edom, went down to him.

13 And Elisha said unto the king of Israel, [x]What have I to do with thee? [y]get thee to [z]the prophets of thy father, and to the prophets of thy mother. And the king of Israel said unto him, [a]Nay:[4] for the LORD hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab.

14 And Elisha said, [b]As the LORD of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, surely, were it not that [c]I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, [d]I would not look toward thee, nor see thee.

15 But now [e]bring me a minstrel.[5] And it came to pass when the minstrel played, that [f]the hand of the LORD came upon him.

16 And he said, Thus saith the LORD, [g]Make this valley full of ditches:

17 For thus saith the LORD, [h]Ye shall not see wind,[6] neither shall ye see rain; yet that valley shall be filled with water, [i]that ye may drink, both ye, and your cattle, and your beasts.

18 And [k]this is but [l]a light thing in the sight of the LORD: [m]he will deliver the Moabites also into your hand.

19 And [n]ye shall smite every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall [o]fell every good tree, and stop all wells of water, and mar[1] every good piece of land with stones.

20 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning, [p]when the meat-offering was offered, that, behold, there came water by the way of Edom, and the country was [q]filled with water.

21 And when all the Moabites heard that the kings were come up to fight against them, they gathered[2] all that were able to put[3] on armour, and upward, and stood in the border.

22 And they rose up early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water, and the Moabites saw the water on the other side as red as blood:[4]

23 And they said, [r]This is blood: the kings are surely slain,[5] and they have smitten one another: [s]now therefore, Moab, to the spoil.

24 And when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up and [t]smote the Moabites, so that they fled before them: but they went forward[6] smiting the Moabites, even in their country[7]

25 And they [u]beat down the cities, and on every good piece of land cast every man his stone, and filled it;[8] and they [v]stopped all the wells of water, [w]and felled all the good trees: only[9] in [x]Kir-haraseth[10] left they the stones thereof; howbeit the slingers went about it, and smote it.

26 ¶ And when the king of Moab saw that the battle was too sore for him, he took with him seven hundred men that drew swords, to break through even [y]unto the king of Edom: but they could not.

27 Then he took his eldest son, that should have reigned in his stead, and [z]offered him for a burnt-offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation against Israel:[11] and [a]they departed from him, and returned to their own land.

CHAPTER IV.

Elisha multiplieth the widow's oil, 1—7. He giveth a son to the good Shunammite, 8—17. He raiseth again her dead son, 18—37. At Gilgal he healeth the deadly pottage, 38—41. He miraculously satisfieth an hundred men with twenty barley loaves, 42—44.

NOW there cried a certain woman of the wives of the [a]sons of the prophets[1] unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that [b]thy servant did fear the LORD: and [c]the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen.

2 And Elisha said unto her, [d]What shall I do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thine hand-maid hath not any thing in the house, [e]save a pot of oil.

3 Then he said, Go, borrow thee vessels abroad of all thy neighbours, even [f]empty vessels; borrow[2] not a few.

4 And when thou art come in, [g]thou shalt shut the door upon thee, and upon thy sons, [h]and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full.

5 So [i]she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out.

6 And it came to pass, when [k]the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, Bring me yet a vessel. And he said unto her, There is not a vessel more. [l]And the oil stayed.

7 Then she came and told the man of God: and he said, Go, sell the oil, and [m]pay thy debt,[3] and live thou and thy children of the rest.[4]

8 ¶ And it fell[5] on a day, that Elisha passed to [n]Shunem,[6] where was [o]a great woman:[7] and [p]she constrained[8] him to eat bread. And so it was, that, as oft as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread.

9 And [q]she said unto her husband, Behold now, I perceive that [r]this is an holy [s]man of God which passeth by us continually.

10 [t]Let us make [u]a little chamber,[9] I pray thee, on the wall; and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick: and it shall be, when he cometh to us, that he shall turn in thither.

11 And it fell on a day, that he came thither, and he turned into the chamber, and lay there.

12 And he said to [v]Gehazi his [w]servant, Call this Shunammite. And when he had called her, she stood before him.

13 And he said unto him, Say now unto her, Behold, [x]thou hast been careful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? wouldest thou be spoken for [y]to the king, or [z]to the captain of the host? And she answered, [a]I dwell [b]among mine own people.[1]

14 And he said, What then is to be done for her? And Gehazi answered, Verily [c]she hath no child, and her husband is old.

15 And he said, Call her. And when he had called her, she stood in the door.

16 And he said, [d]About this season,[2] according to the time of life, [e]thou shalt embrace a son. And she said, Nay, [f]my lord, thou man of God, [g]do not lie unto thine handmaid.

17 And [h]the woman conceived, and bare a son at that season that Elisha had said unto her, according to the time of life.

18 ¶ And when the child was grown, it fell on a day, that he went out to his father [i]to the reapers.

19 And he said unto his father, [k]My head, my head! And he said to a lad, Carry him to his mother.

20 And when he had taken him, and brought him to [l]his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, [m]and then died.[3]

21 And she went up, and laid him on [n]the bed of the man of God, and shut the door upon him, and went out.

22 And she called unto her husband, and said, Send me, I pray thee, one of the young men, and one of the asses, that [o]I may run to the man of God, and come again.

23 And he said, Wherefore wilt thou go to him to-day? it is neither [p]new moon nor sabbath. And she said, It shall be well.[4]

24 Then [q]she saddled an ass, and said to her servant, [r]Drive, and go forward; slack[5] not thy riding[6] for me, except I bid thee.

25 So she went, and came unto the 9 In Heb. aleeah. The Arabs give the name of oleah to a small tenement connected with the main building, but having a separate access. It is commonly in the outer court; and by 'the wall' here is meant, the wall of that court. The phrase, 'let us make,' does not refer to the building it, but to the making it ready for the prophet's constant use.

3 This was probably the coup de soleil, or stroke of the sun, by no means uncommon in hot climates, & often fatal. In the time of the crusades, the army of king Baldwin IV. suffered considerably from this circumstance near Tiberias; 'more were slain by the sun than the sword.' And Egmont & Heyman, (in the 18th century,) found the air about Jericho extremely hot; & say that the heat destroyed several persons the year before they were there. Madden witnessed cases of it in the desert between Palestine and Egypt, two of which terminated fatally in forty-eight hours. He thinks it the real inflammatory fever. 'One of my camel drivers,' says he, 'was attacked during the journey; he complained suddenly of intense pain in the back of his head; he laid his finger on the spot, and from the moment of his seizure he had a burning fever.'

man of God [s]to mount Carmel. And it came to pass, when the man of God saw her afar off, that he said to Gehazi his servant, Behold, yonder is that Shunammite:

26 [t]Run now, I pray thee, to meet her; and say unto her, [u]Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with the child? And she answered, It[v] is well.[1]

27 And when she came to the man of God to the hill, she caught him[2] by[w] the feet: but Gehazi came near to thrust[x] her away. And the man of God said, [y]Let her alone; for her soul is vexed[3] within her: and the LORD hath [z]hid it from me, and hath not told me.

28 Then she said, [a]Did I desire a son of my lord? did I not say, [b]Do not deceive me?

29 Then he said to Gehazi, [c]Gird up thy loins, and [d]take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, [e]salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and [f]lay my staff upon the face of the child.

30 And the mother of the child said, As[g] the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, [h]I will not leave thee. And he arose, and followed her.

31 And Gehazi passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but there was [i]neither voice nor hearing:[4] wherefore he went again to meet him, and told him, saying, The child is [k]not awaked.

32 And when Elisha was come into the house, behold, [l]the child was dead, and laid upon his bed.

33 He went in therefore, and [m]shut the door upon them twain, and [n]prayed unto the LORD.[5]

34 And he went up, and [o]lay upon the child, and put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands; and he stretched himself upon the child, and the flesh of the child waxed warm.

35 Then he returned, and walked in the house to and fro;[6] and went up, and stretched himself upon him: and the child sneezed seven times, [p]and the child opened his eyes.

1 Lane mentions in one of the Notes to his new translation of 'The Thousand and One Nights,' that among the Arabs, when one asks what news, the answer always is, 'good,' even tho' it may be bad news. In the present case the Shunammite may have meant her answer as the common form of civility addressed to Gehazi, while she pressed on towards his master, to whom alone she would make known her heavy grief. Yet, in the exercise of faith, she doubtless did believe that in the true and highest sense, all was well. When God calls away our dearest relations by death, it becomes us quietly to say, It is well, for all is well that God does; all is well with them that are gone to heaven; and all is well with us who remain behind, if, by the affliction, we are furthered in our way thither.

2 This is supposed to have been the fruit of the colequintida, i. e. the colocynth, or bitter gourd, about the size of a large orange. It is often brought from the Levant, and is known by the name of bitter apple. Both the pulp & seeds are intensely bitter, and violently purgative. It has a nauseous odour, and is fully as bitter as the colocynth.

CHAPTER V.

Naaman, by the report of a captive maid, is sent to Samaria to be cured of his leprosy, 1—7. Elisha, sending him to Jordan, cureth him, 8—14. He refuseth Naaman's gifts, granteth him some of his earth, 15—19. Gehazi, abusing his master's name unto Naaman, is smitten with leprosy, 20—27.

ible,[1] because [c]by him the LORD had given deliverance[2] unto Syria: he was also a mighty man in valour; but he [d]was a leper.[3]

2 And the Syrians had gone out [e]by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and [f]she waited[4] on Naaman's wife.

3 And she said unto her mistress,[5] Would [g]God my lord were with[6] the prophet that is in Samaria! for [h]he would recover[7] him of his leprosy.

4 And one went in [i]and told his lord, saying, Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

5 And the king of Syria said, [k]Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed, [l]and took with[8] him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten[m] changes of raiment.

6 And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying, Now, when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy.

7 And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that[n] he rent his clothes, and said, [o]Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? wherefore consider, I pray you, and [p]see how he seeketh a quarrel against me.

8 ¶ And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had [q]rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? [r]let him come now to me, [s]and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9 So [t]Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha.

10 And Elisha [u]sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and [v]wash in Jordan [w]seven times, and [x]thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

11 But [y]Naaman was wroth, and went[z] away, and said, [a]Behold, [9]I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the LORD his God, and strike[1] his hand[2] over the place, and recover the leper.

12 Are not Abana[3] and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus,[4] [b]better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned, and went away in a rage.

13 And [c]his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, [d]My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, [e]Wash, and be clean?

14 Then [f]went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, [g]according to the saying of the man of God: and [h]his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, [i]and he was clean.

15 ¶ And [k]he returned to the man of God, he and all his company, and came and stood before him: and he said, Behold, [l]now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel; now therefore, I pray thee, take [m]a blessing of thy servant.

16 But he said, [n]As the LORD liveth, before whom I stand, [o]I will receive none. And he urged him to take it; but he refused.

17 And Naaman said, Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden [p]of [5]earth? for thy servant [q]will henceforth offer neither burnt-offering nor sacrifice unto other gods, but unto the LORD.

18 In this thing[6] the LORD pardon thy servant, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he [r]leaneth on my hand, [s]and I bow myself in the house of Rimmon; when I bow down myself in the house of Rimmon, [t]the LORD pardon thy servant in this thing.

19 And [u]he said unto him, [v]Go in peace. So he departed from him a little way.[7]

21 So Gehazi followed after Naaman: and when Naaman saw him running after him, [a]he lighted down from the chariot to meet him, and said, Is all well?[1]

22 And he said, All is well. [b]My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, even now there be come to me from mount Ephraim two young men of the [c] sons of the prophets: [d]give them, I pray thee, [e]a talent of silver, and two changes of garments.

23 And Naaman said, Be content,[2] take two talents. [f]And he urged him, and [g]bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants; and[h] they bare them before him.

24 And when he came to the tower,[3] he took them from their hand, [i]and bestowed them in the house; and he let the men go, and they departed.

25 But he went in, and [k]stood before his master: and Elisha said unto him, [l]Whence comest thou, Gehazi? And he said, [m]Thy servant went no whither.[4]

26 And [n]he said unto him, [o]Went not mine heart[5] with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? [p]Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and olive-yards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and maid-servants?

27 The [q]leprosy therefore of Naaman shall cleave unto thee, and [r]unto thy seed for ever. And he went out from his presence [s]a leper as white as snow.[6]

CHAPTER VI.

AND [a]the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, [b]the place where we dwell with thee is [c]too strait for us.

2 Let us go, we pray thee, unto Jordan, [d]and take thence every man a beam, and let us make us a place there, where we may dwell. And he answered, Go ye.

5 The Chaldee has, 'By the prophetic spirit it was shown unto me when the man,' &c. He gave Gehazi further proof of his prophetic spirit, in telling him that with the money he hoped to receive, he intended to set up a splendid establishment. But considering the distressed state of Israel, by reason of the famine, and the low estate of religion, other interests & employments called for Gehazi's attention. The prophets of Jehovah were required to show themselves men of another spirit than the false prophets, by a disinterested indifference about the world; and the state of Naaman's mind, and the peculiarity of his case, rendered this action the most ill-timed that could be.

17 And Elisha [f]prayed, and said, LORD, I pray thee, [g]open his eyes, that he may see. And the LORD opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw:[1] and, behold, the mountain was full[h] of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha.

18 ¶ And when they came down to him, Elisha prayed unto the LORD, and said, [i]Smite this people, I pray thee, with blindness.[2] And he smote them with blindness, according to the word of Elisha.

19 And Elisha said unto them, This is not the way, neither is this the city;[3] follow[4] me, and [k]I will bring you to the man whom ye seek. But he led them to Samaria.

20 And it came to pass, when they were come into Samaria, that Elisha said, LORD, [l]open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the LORD opened[m] their eyes, and they saw; and, behold, they were in the midst of Samaria.

21 And the king of Israel said unto Elisha, when he saw them, [n]My father, shall[o] I smite them? shall I smite them?

22 And he answered, Thou shalt not smite them: [p]wouldest thou smite those whom thou hast taken captive with [q]thy sword and with thy [5]bow? Set[r] bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master.

23 And [s]he prepared great provision for them: and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. [t]So the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

24 ¶ And it came to pass after this, that Ben-hadad king of Syria [u]gathered all his host, and went up, and besieged Samaria.

25 And there was [v]a great famine in Samaria: and, behold, they besieged it, until [w]an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung[6] for five pieces of silver.

26 ¶ And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, [x]Help, my lord, O king!

27 And he said, If[1] the LORD do not help thee, [y]whence shall I help thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the wine-press?

28 And the king said unto her, [z]What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said unto me, [a]Give thy son, that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow.

29 So we boiled my son, and did eat him:[2] and I said unto her on the next[3] day, Give thy son, that we may eat him; and [b]she hath hid her son.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the woman, that [c]he rent his clothes; and he passed by upon the wall, and the people looked, and, behold, he had sackcloth within upon his flesh.

31 Then he said, [d]God do so and more also to me, [e]if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat shall stand on him this day.[4]

32 But Elisha sat in his house, and the elders sat with him; and the king sent a man from before him: but, [g]ere the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, [h]See ye how this [i]son of a murderer hath sent to take away mine head? look, when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door: is not [k]the sound of his master's feet behind him?

33 And, while he yet talked with them, behold, the messenger came down unto him:[5] and he said, Behold, [l]this evil is of the LORD; what should I [m]wait for the LORD any longer?

6 Bochart started the notion, that this denotes a kind of pulse, still so called by the Arabs. But the Arabic word rather describes a saline plant, (Salsola Kali,) found in the desert. The ancient versions understand the phrase in its literal import, but it is doubted whether the dung was used for manure or for food. For the former purpose, pigeon's dung is much used in Persia in the raising of melons. Yet the other alternative is not without examples in history. During the siege of Jerusalem by the Romans, and the famine in Egypt, A. D. 1200, and in England, A. D. 1316, the dung of oxen, camels, and doves, was thus employed; and the horrible narrative which follows, renders it not improbable, that a similar use was made of it now.

3 ¶ And there were [h]four leprous men at the entering in of the gate; and they said one to another, [i]Why sit we here until we die?

4 If we say, [k]We will enter into the city,[1] then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, and [l]let us fall into the host of the Syrians: [m]if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, [n]we shall but die.

5 And they rose up [o]in the twilight, to go unto the camp of the Syrians; and when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, [p]behold, there was no man there.

6 For [q]the LORD had made the host of the Syrians to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses,[2] even the noise of a great host; and they said one to another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired against us [r]the kings of the Hittites, and [s]the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us.

7 Wherefore [t]they arose, and fled in the twilight, and left their tents, and [u]their horses, and their asses, even the camp as it was, [v]and fled for their life.

8 And when these lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and [w]hid it; and came again, and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it.

9 Then [x]they said one to another, We do not well: [y]this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace; if we tarry till the morning-light, some[3] mischief[z] will come upon us: now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household.

10 So they came, and called unto the[a] porter[4] of the city; and they told them, saying, We came to the camp of the Syrians, and, behold, there was [b]no man there, neither voice of man, but horses tied, and asses tied,[5] and the tents as they were.

11 And he called the porters, and they told it to the king's hou within.

12 ¶ And the king arose in the nigl and said [c]unto his servants, [d]I will n show you what the Syrians have do to us. They know [e]that we be hung therefore are they gone out of t camp to [f]hide themselves[1] in the fie saying, When they come out of t city, we shall catch them alive, a get into the city.

13 And [g]one of his servants swered[2] and said, Let some take, pray thee, five of the horses that main, which are left in[3] the ci (behold, they are as all the multitu of Israel that are left in it; behold say, [h]they are even as all the mu tude of the Israelites that are c sumed,) and let us send and see.

1 It is difficult to understand otherwise than hypothetically this statement, which seems to imply that these lepers were at liberty to have re-entered the town if they had pleased. They had been recently expelled, either on account of their leprosy, or to relieve the town of the charge of their maintenance. Some think they resided in tents without the wall; but were admitted within the gate when the enemy threatened an assault.

5 The ancient oriental camps were arranged much on the same principle as at present, with the cattle outside, and the whole tied with halters to ropes extended on the ground, and fastened by pegs of wood or iron. Thus the cattle form a sort of outer border to the camp, and this enables them to be taken for forage or water, without interfering with the order of the camp, while they are in readiness to be mounted and ridden off on any sudden occasion that may arise.

1 The stratagem of war here ascribed to the Syrians, was in modern times practised upon them. In the history of the revolt of Ali Bey, it is said that the Pacha of Damascus, having approached the sea of Tiberias, found Sheik Daher encamped there: but the Sheik, deferring the engagement till next morning, during the night divided his army into three parts, and left the camp with great fires blazing, and with all the stores as they were, including all sorts of provisions, and a large quantity of strong liquors. In the middle of the night, the Pacha, imagining the Sheik had fled with precipitation, took possession of the camp; and his soldiers indulged so freely in the liquor, that they soon fell into profound repose, in which state they were attacked by the Sheik, and almost wholly cut up.— Harmer.

The words in brackets are not found in the Sept. the Vulg. the Syr. nor the Targ. They are wanting in more than forty MSS.; in some are without points; in others have been written in and then blotted out; in others four, and in others five, of the seven words are omitted—so that Kennicott and De Rossi reject them as an interpolation.
